WELL, YOU'D HAVE to say they know a good man in Randolph when they see one.

Irving Isaacson was recently installed as president of the Goldie and Louis Trilling House Association.

Irving and his wife, Esther, had lived in Quincy over a half-century before moving to the senior complex on North Main St. less than a year ago.

And it didn't take long for the residents there to recognize their good luck.

In addition to serving as association president, Irving works in the grocery store in the building and Esther at the front desk. Both volunteers.

But their hearts are still in Quincy.

Irving says he will remain active in the Quincy Jewish War Veterans, the Quincy Veterans Council, and the Quincy DAV, three of which he has served as commander.

And he will continue as chairman, and emcee of the QJWA "Citizen of the Year" program which he has headed for over 40 years. And he and Esther will remain active in Beth Israel Synagogue.

And he will try to squeeze in a little time at his senior citizen clubhouse in Quincy.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1920s postcard view of Manet Beach on the south shore of Houghs Neck looking east. Quincy Yacht Club is in the distant right center. The area in the left foreground is along today's Edgewater Drive that was known then as River Road. The old granite seawall was an early attempt to control the frequent flooding in the area. The city has recently installed a new seawall along here that has proven quite effective in recent stormy high tides.

QHS, Central Students Will Both Benefit

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a parent of a former Central Middle School student and a current Quincy High student, I'm very pleased that the city is building a new Quincy High School and renovating QHS for a new Central Middle School. I applaud Mayor Sheets for his vision to give us schools we can be proud of.

This plan will benefit educationally the students at both schools. The students from Central Middle and Quincy High won't have to live through the educational disruptions and health consequences of being in a building under construction as advocated by someone who wants to leave Quincy High right where it is. In a recent letter a woman who lived through the renovations of North Quincy High School during the 1970's urged city officials not to do that again to another group of students.

Quincy High School needs extensive renovations such as heating, plumbing, flooring, wiring, roofing, air conditioning and fire sprinklers which would take two years to accomplish if the building was empty. The school is filled with asbestos. When asbestos is disturbed it becomes airborne. It is extremely dangerous to breathe and becomes a respiratory and carcinogenic danger. Just one exposure to low levels of asbestos can have lifelong consequences. There is also lead paint in the building and fumes from the heating system to consider.

It is obvious that educationally speaking renovating Quincy High School isn't sound. All the noise, dust and fumes that comes with construction as well as the re-routing of classrooms would adversely affect the students. As hard as it would be for your average student to learn under these circumstances, those with special needs couldn't tolerate the constant disruptions.

Central is structurally unsound and too small by new Mass. DOE regulations to house the 600 students it serves. Housing CMS at a renovated Quincy High will give Central the room it needs.

The citizens of Quincy have been fortunate that their legislators fled the application in time to take advantage of the 90 percent state reimbursement for this project. Now is the time to speak out in support of a new Quincy High.

Opposes Building New Quincy High School

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a concerned Quincy resident and taxpayer, I am against building a new Quincy High School. Making state-of-the-art changes in computer technology along with repairing and renovating the building seems the clear-cut way to go. What advantages would a newly built high school have over the present school? Let us look at the ledger.

The present school is centrally located, handy to the Quincy "T," the Thomas Crane Library, the South Shore "Y," the practice field used for football and Adams Field used for baseball is within walking distance. The Quincy Avenue site would be built over asbestos and the park department site would further invade our beautiful Blacks Creek area; the proximity to amenities of both sites pale when compared to the present school's location. There is no logic or need for a new Quincy High School.

Cousin Brings His Own Credibility To Campaign

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

After I got home from the office I sat down and read the May 3rd issue of The Quincy Sun. On page 12 there is an article about how upset Ms. Christine Cedrone was about Ward 3 City Council Candidate Alan Cousin using her name in an invitation to a campaign kick off party.

Having received an invitation to attend Mr. Cousin's party I was a little confused about what the big deal was. I very quickly went to find the invitation. I asked myself: maybe I missed something when I first read the invitation? Well, the invitation I have states, Cousin for Council Campaign Kickoff with special guest speaker Christine M. Cedrone.

In my opinion that invitation was simply telling the people who received it that Ms. Cedrone was going to speak at the party. I can't imagine what was unacceptable or in appropriate as the Quincy Sun has Ms. Cedrone quoted as saying.

It's no secret that I am working on Alan Cousin's campaign committee and that I have worked on past efforts of Ms. Cedrone. But the plain truth is that Alan Cousin was in no way using Ms.

Cedrone's name to bring credibility to his campaign. Anyone that has ever met Alan Cousin knows that he is an intelligent well-spoken person who brings his own credibility to his campaign.

Citizens Groups Take Stands On Four Issues

The Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations recently wrote and sent a letter to Mayor James Sheets and the nine members of the city council expressing the organizations' positions on four city-wide issues.

Namely, the groups expressed support for the renovation of Quincy High School at its present site; opposition to the Hancock Lot Development as currently proposed; opposition to real estate development of excess parcels of land owned by Quarry Hills Associates in West Quincy; and support for the preservation of Faxon Park and Merrymount Park.

Quincy's Yesterdays City Aid Needed To Save Shellfish Industry

By PAUL HAROLD

Local shellfish dealer Joseph Malick of Ratchford St. said the city and was needed to save the shellfish industry that at its peak in 1954 employed 300 people and grossed a half million dollars. At the time 200 diggers were looking for work.

Malick said mussels have invaded clam flats and were preventing clams from reproducing. He said the city had to rid the flats of mussels for the seedling clams to grow.

To compound the problem, Malick noted pollution has closed the flats at Nut Island and dredging on the Fore River would remove one and a half miles of productive clam flats.

2,400 GIVEN POLIO VACCINE IN ONE DAY

Health Commissioner Dr. Richard Ash reported that 2,400 pre-school children were inoculated with the Salk polio vaccine in the first day of clinics.

Clincs were scheduled for all pre-schoolers and students at the city's private and parochial schools, including the South Shore Christian School and the Wollaston Lutheran School.

Dr. Alfred Mahoney, president of the medical staff at Quincy City Hospital, assigned the city's physicians to the clinics that were being held throughout the city.

COUNCIL SENDS DYNAMITE QUESTION TO LICENSE BOARD

The city council by a vote of 4-3 sent the question of permitting the Hercules Powder Company to locate in West Quincy to the licensing board.

Since there already were dynamite companies operating in the city, the majority of the councillors decided there was no need for a new ordinance to regulate the business.

Voting against the new ordinance were councillors Thomas Burtin, Charles Shea, Amelia Della Chiesa and David McIntosh. Voting to block the permit were councillors James McIntyre, Carl Anderson and Edna Austin.

Atty. Arthur Burgess who represented the Hercules Company was told that even if permitted, their building might have to be reduced in size if the anticipated construction of new homes in the quarry area took place.

QUINCY-ISMS

Constanzo Pagnano was nominated by City Manager Edward Lewis to the Quincy Housing Authority board of directors. Pagnano was the president of the International Granite Cutters' Union. Lewis's predecessor, Donald Blatt, had nominated Elmer Lagerlund of the Granite Manufacturers' Association to the seat. 'Christmas In Our Hometown' Theme For Quincy's 49th Parade

"Christmas In Our Hometown" is the winning theme for the 49th annual Quincy Christmas parade sponsored by the Quincy Festival Committee to be held Nov. 25.

General Chairman George White announced the winning theme was submitted by Steve Maccini of Braintree.

The general public is invited each year by the Festival Committee to assist in selecting an appropriate theme for the parade.

Maccini said he comes to Quincy for such family events as the annual Flag Day Parade and First Night. He looks forward to riding with his family as guests in the Christmas Parade.

He said he submitted a parade theme suggestion for this year's Quincy parade "because it's family oriented."

Maccini's favorite television holiday program is The Waltons' "The Homecoming -- A Christmas Story" about how important it was for the Walton family to be reunited at Christmas.

Maccini submitted his entry after reading about the theme contest. "The Quincy parade reminded me of all the Walton family members getting together," he said.

Students Perform NQHS' First-Ever Voice Recital

The Voice Majors in the North Quincy High School Renaissance program, under the direction of Tracy O'Sullivan, recently gave the very first voice recital in the school's history.

The event took place in the choir room of NQHS and was attended by invited guests, including parents, friends, and faculty.

The program consisted of classical and contemporary works in both solo and ensemble settings. Selections included: Panis Angelicus by Cesar Franck, Ici bas by Gabriel Faure, Embraceable You by George Gershwin, Ave verum Corpus by Wolfgang A. Mozart, and Ev'ry Time I Feel The Spirit by William A. Dawson.

Voice students are: Rebecca Ballard, Susan Lee, Keith Murray, Peter Chan, Katie Lynch, Meghan Dis-

coll, Michelle Mattson, Catherine Constantine, and Peter Tam (piano accompanying/voice).

The impressive performance, O'Sullivan said, evolved out of the very hard work and dedication of the students and a desire to educate and share an idea voiced by Giuseppe Verdi that "Most singing is done not with the voice, but with the brain and the ears."

Connecticut River Topic At Library May 15

Dr. Stan Nikkel will share stories of the Connecticut River in a scenic slide illustrated talk Tuesday, May 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

The Connecticut River is the heart of a picturesque region of small towns, mountains and grand vistas of meadows and forests where it forms the border between New Hampshire and Vermont. In Massachusetts and Connecticut it becomes a wide artery of industry and recreation through a heavily populated area. Along its route it has an abundance of historic and fascinating things to see and stories to hear.

Dr. Nikkel has researched a number of historic events in the United States and authored two books, one of which is City of Presidents, A Guidebook of Quincy, Massachusetts. He recently bicycled along the whole route of the Connecticut River from Canada to Long Island Sound.

Bob Bell Scholarship Fund Dance On USS Salem

The Bob Bell Scholarship Fund Committee will host its second dance and fund raising event Friday, May 18 from 7 to 11 p.m. at the USS Salem.

Proceeds will go to continue the funding of scholarships for North Quincy High Schools students in memory of Bob Bell, Bob and Susan Bells' two children, Lisa and Robby both graduated from NQHS. Last June, two scholarships were awarded in Bob Bell's memory.

Before succumbing to cancer in May, 1999, Bell was active in the Quincy business community, working for many years as a realtor. He was also active in developing and helping to fund numerous youth programs.

The first scholarship event, in November of 1999 raised $12,500 and drew 260 people to St. Mary's Parish Hall. In addition to hors d'oeuvres and the dance, there will be tours of the ship. The event will also include a cash bar, and a raffle of items donated by local businesses. Free parking is available at the ship's location, 739 Washington St., Quincy Point.

Tickets can be purchased by calling committee members Ed Duff at 617-479-5639, Elaine Walsh at 617-472-8839, or Jerry Ryan at 617-471-9400.

Quincy Salvation Army Commanders Promoted To International Posts

Majors Edward and Florence Forster, commanding officers of the Salvation Army Quincy Temple Corps, have been promoted and reassigned to International Headquarters in London, England.

Edward Forster will be Editor-in-Chief, Literary Secretary and Editor of The Officer magazine and overseeing other Salvation Army editors and publications.

Mrs. Forster will be assigned to the Programme Resources Department to work on the reorganization of the International Headquarters.

They will report for their new duties July 2. There is no announcement yet on who will replace them.

The Forsters, who are originally from Somerville, were appointed commanding officers of the Quincy Temple Corps July 1, 1999.

"We have very mixed feelings about leaving Quincy," said Edward Forster. "It was wonderful to serve in Quincy and to be so close to Somerville where Florence and I both grew up."

"We would like to have stayed in Quincy at least five years or more but we are also looking forward to the challenge of our new assignments."

As editor-in-chief, Edward Forster will oversee six publications, including The Officer magazine which is distributed to every Salvation Army officer in 107 countries on a bi-monthly basis.

He will oversee editors who produce such publications as the Salvation Army Year Book, magazines all over the world, the Global Exchange for women and all Salvation Army international news.

As editor-in-chief, he will be interviewing General Gowans, head of the Salvation Army, for each installment of The Officer magazine.

Before coming to Quincy, the Forsters served as editor-in-chief and circulation manager for all the Salvation Army publications in Canada and Bermuda from 1994 to 1997. He was also assistant editor-in-chief of U.S. Salvation Army publications in Washington from 1989 to 1993. An officer for 36 years, he has spent 24 of them in pastoral ministry and community service, and seven of the last 11 years in editorial work.

The Salvation Army International Headquarters has had a famous address since 1880: 101 Queen Victoria St.

The Salvation Army was founded by William and Catherine Booth in 1865 and is now in 107 countries. It has been in the United States since 1880 and in Quincy for more than 100 years.

Hanley Resolve Redefines Fire Role In Mutual Aid

The resolve listed protection of Quincy residents and property as the main reason behind the decision but also noted that the city was obligated to pay expenses associated with coverage, including lost wages, medical bills, and overtime.

A mutual aid agreement allows a fire department of one community to both receive and offer assistance to other fire departments in other communities.

THE MARRIOTT HOTEL in the Crown Colony Office Park is set to open May 15, boasting 464 rooms, 16 function halls, and a grand ballroom as well as Hancock's Restaurant and Kilroy's Pub. A 325-space parking garage is also under construction.

464-Room Hotel Scheduled To Open May 15

Quincy Marriott Will Be First Full-Service Hotel On South Shore In 25 Years

When the 464-room Marriott Hotel in Quincy opens its doors to the public May 15, it will become the first full-service hotel to open on the South Shore in nearly 25 years.

And just in time, it seems, judging from the 27 weddings already booked for the hotel, which sits atop a granite ledge overlooking the Crown Colony Office Park.

Marriott International is partnering with Flatley Construction to develop and manage the Boston Marriott Quincy, part of a commercial development which houses 1.4 million square feet of office space and a 325-space parking garage, which is still under construction.

With the high occupancy rate of Boston hotels, there was a real need for alternative hotels in the area," said Martin Joyce, director of Sales and Marketing. "We are happy to be filling that need while expanding the offerings on the South Shore."

Joyce said that 210 of the more than 500 associates needed to staff the hotel have already been hired and have begun training in anticipation of the May 15 opening. He added that 12 delivery trucks recently filled the hotel's ballroom with a staggering inventory of glasses, sheets, silverware, beds, and so on needed for a hotel of that size.

Paul Pizzanghera, a 23-year veteran of the industry and former general manager at the Peabody and Newton Marriott hotels, is general manager of the Boston Marriott Quincy.

Thomas Flatley, president of the Flatley Company, said, "Of the many hotels that we have built and owned over the years, this will be our first hotel to carry the Marriott name. We are proud to fly the Marriott flag, as it represents the highest level of service and quality for the business traveler and hotel guest."

The upscale Boston Marriott Quincy will offer 464 guest rooms. The nine-floor hotel has eight executive suites boasting a wonderful view of Quincy and Boston. It has 16 function rooms and a Grand Ballroom which can accommodate 1,400 for receptions and 840 for banquets.

Twenty-four rooms in the hotel are specially designed for handicapped accessibility, including wider doors and grab bars, and there is a 24-hour business center with two computer terminals, a printer, and a fax machine.

There is no specific hotel shuttle service planned as yet, although weekday, rush-hour shuttle service from the MBTA to Crown Colony already exists. The hotel, Joyce said, is currently exploring the possibility of a separate shuttle service for the MBTA and even shopping needs.

For the hungry traveler, options include Hancock's restaurant, serving breakfast, lunch, and dinner; and Kilroy's, a casual pub offering drinks and snacks in a cozy setting. For a quick snack, Starbucks and the hotel lobby lounge are available.

Hotel guests can also relax in the full-size fitness center, lap pool, Jacuzzi, and sauna.

For catered events, the hotel offers a variety of menus from lavish banquets and weddings to creative coffee breaks and themed parties.

Each guest room includes a wet bar and has been installed with two phone lines and high-speed Internet access.

Construction of the hotel, which is located at 1000 Marriott Drive in the Crown Colony Park, began in January of 2000, taking more than 17 months to complete, with 300 employees working on the project.

The hotel joins ten Marriott hotels in Boston and its surrounding area, including: Boston Marriott Burlington, Boston Marriott Cambridge, Boston Marriott Copley Place, Boston Marriott Long Wharf, Boston Marriott Newton, and Boston Marriott Peabody.

Ribbon cutting ceremonies are scheduled for May 21.

For Boston Marriott Quincy general information and reservations, call (617) 472-1000.

Hosting Benefit For Children's Hospital Saturday Marshall, Tufts Families In Special 'Thank You' For Lives Of Two Children

The Marshall and Tufts families share a strong bond of togetherness.

Their two young children have survived a rare and in most cases fatal disease, called Primary Pulmonary Hypertension (PPH).

And they are so grateful to Children's Hospital in Boston they are holding their first annual fundraiser to benefit the hospital Saturday.

It was at Children's Hospital where Clifford J. Marshall and Julianne Tufts were given a new lease on their young lives.

CJ, as he is known, is the son of Chris and Kate Marshall of Weymouth and grandson of Mrs. Louise Marshall of Quincy and the late Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall.

Julianne is the daughter of Glenn and Margie Tufts of Bridgewater.

CJ, now 3, was diagnosed with PPH when he was seven days old. Julianne, now 4, was diagnosed when she was eight weeks old.

First Julianne and then CJ, because of her success, were treated with an experimental drug called Nitric Oxide. The drug was originally intended to prolong life while awaiting a lung transplant.

But both infants showed significant improvement after the treatment and so far more invasive surgery has been unnecessary.

"We consider this miraculous since it has enabled our children to survive their first year of life and thrive as toddlers," the two families say.

The parents bonded together to support one other through the crisis for each youngster.

"Our bond has become stronger," they say, "as we have pledged our mutual desire to work toward eliminating this deadly disease."

On Saturday, the Marshall and Tufts families, in conjunction with the Clifford H. Marshall Foundation that honors CJ's late grandfather, will sponsor a dinner dance and silent auction.

The special event will be held at 7 p.m. at the Massachusetts Conference Center, 770 Crescent St., Brockton.

A guest will be Dr. David Wessel, Director Cardiac Intensive Care Unit at Children's Hospital, who has done major research in the treatment of pulmonary hypertension disorders and has directed the nitric oxide program.

On the light side, a "Funky Tie" celebration will be held with those attending asked to wear their craziest tie.

The suggested donation is $50 per person. Checks should be made payable to Papa's Gift/CHM Foundation.

For those who cannot attend, the checks may be sent in care of:

Chris and Kate Marshall, 25 Williams Ave., Weymouth, MA 02190 or Glenn and Margie Tufts, 17 Marianne Drive, Bridgewater, MA 02324.

For more information call the Marshall family at 781-337-7829 or the Tufts family at 508-697-7486.

YOUNG SURVIVORS — Clifford (CJ) Marshall, 3, grandson of the late Sheriff Clifford Marshall, and Julianne Tufts, 4, survived a rare disease as patients at Children's Hospital in Boston. In gratitude, their families are hosting a benefit dinner dance for the hospital Saturday.

Awards Presented At Quincy Court Law Day Ceremony

Retired Judge Albert Kramer, who served for many years as the presiding justice of Quincy District Court, delivered the address at the 48th annual Law Day observance held there last Thursday, telling his audience that the court system was nothing less than the foundation of freedom and democracy.

"Every single dispute in society which people cannot handle by themselves comes here to be addressed," Kramer reminded the packed courtroom, adding that Law Day ceremonies were a celebration of and a dedication to that "awesome responsibility."

Kramer said the daily struggles of the court, such as whether a suspect's Miranda rights had been read to him or whether there was probable cause for officers to search someone's house, would actually be seen as the daily defense of the Constitution of the United States.

"And that defense goes on here every day," Kramer said.

This year's Law Day ceremonies, emceed by First Assistant Clerk Magistrate Robert Bloom, recognized many individuals and organizations whose efforts had helped to bring justice to the local community with the following awards:

- The Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award For Law Enforcement to Quincy Police Officers Paul Brown, Michael Sullivan, Edward Ryan, and Bruce Tait for their rescue of Quincy residents from a burning building on Old Town Way on April 10, 2000.

- The Mark S. Charbonnier Award given to Lt. Michael Crisp of the Massachusetts State Police for his successful capture of an armed criminal wanted by Tennessee authorities.

- The James R. McIntyre Award given to Congressman Joseph Moakley for his many years of humanitarian service.

- The Dennis F. Ryan Student Essay Contest Awards given to Boa Hoi Truong of Quincy High School, Katy Johnson of North Quincy High School, Kenneth Arienti of Boston College High School, and Kimberly Ryan of Fontbonne Academy.

- The Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award to William McPhee, posthumously, for McPhee's work helping those with substance abuse

SHEILA MCINTYRE, wife of the late Mayor James McIntyre, announces that Congressman Joseph Moakley is the recipient of the James R. McIntyre Award, given for outstanding humanitarian endeavors, at the 48th annual Law Day ceremonies. Due to his battle with cancer, Congressman Moakley was unable to attend, but a letter of thanks was read by longtime friend and former Mayor Arthur Tobin, currently the clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court.

ATTORNEY MARY HICKEY, first assistant clerk at the Dedham Superior Court, received the Quincy Bar Association's Alfred P. Maloney Award, presented by Quincy Bar Association President Edward Kelly.

LT. MICHAEL CRISP of the Massachusetts State Police (left) was the recipient of the Mark S. Charbonnier Award for his pursuit and capture of a wanted criminal which ended in a shootout in a parking lot in Hanover. Presenting the award to Lt. Crisp is State Trooper Kenneth Halloran, a former colleague of Trooper Charbonnier, who was killed in the line of duty.

Quincy's former mayor and state senator "one of the finest men I've had the honor to call my colleague and, more importantly, my friend," adding that the world "could use a whole lot more" of men like McIntyre.

Moakley's letter was just one highlight of an event designed to emphasize the spirit of community among the many fields of the justice system.

"What we honor inside the courtroom is dependent upon what happens outside the courtroom," said District Attorney William Keating, who presented several awards that day.

Sheets quoted Adams as saying, "How proud he would be if he were here today."

McNamee Endorsed By Tunnel Workers

The Committee to elect Brian McNamee announces Tunnel Workers Local 88 has endorsed Brian McNamee as a candidate for city councillor at-large.

In response to the endorsement McNamee commented:

"I am aware how important this endorsement is given the number of tunnel workers living in Quincy. Local 88's contributions to our world come from a dedicated membership often working hidden from public view. Their work, which often carries high risk, rarely gets the public recognition it deserves. I consider it a distinct privilege to stand before their membership as their choice for councillor-at-large."

Local 88 has been involved in construction of the new Central Artery and is currently engaged in tunnel construction for the sourcing of water to the MWRA water district.

Mass Co-Op Foundation Donates $1,000 To Quincy 2000

The Massachusetts Co-operative Charitable Foundation recently presented a check in the amount of $1,000 to the Quincy 2000 Corporation as part of this year's community contributions.

Quincy 2000 Corporation, located at 1250 Hancock St., was established in 1992 and has worked to promote development and enhance the position and perception of Quincy as a desirable place to live and work. The contribution made was to support small businesses with start-up expenses. Contributions can be arranged by calling Joseph Mannarino at (617) 847-1454.

The Massachusetts Co-operative Charitable Foundation was formed by Massachusetts Fincorp, Inc., the holding company of The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank, to establish a bond between the bank and the community in which it operates to enable the community to share in the potential growth and success of the bank over the long term.

The Foundation has assets of approximately $250,000 and each year donates a percentage of its assets to the communities in and around which The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank maintains a banking office.

The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank, established in 1908, is a community bank with offices in Boston, Milton, and Quincy.

Home Ownership: One Step At A Time

Advice For First-Time Homebuyers

While home ownership can be a wonderful thing, there are especially for first-time buyers — some financial pitfalls.

"Buying a house is a complicated process and involves investigating things you may never have considered before," says Cynthia Becker, regional education coordinator for Consumer Credit Counseling Service (CCCS) of Southern New England. "Many first-time homebuyers are unaware of the additional costs associated with buying a home, above and beyond the downpayment."

"Expenses such as closing costs, taxes, heating systems, roofs, exterminators and title searches can add up quickly. Consumers need to have a plan to take all home buying costs into consideration — particularly in today's economic climate. Interest rates may be lowering, but a dipping economy means families might need to tighten their purse strings in the future."

Becker offers the following advice to those looking to purchase a home:

- Do your homework — First-time homebuyers should turn to local resources.

Your local library and bookstores are good places to start. Call CCCS at 1-800-208-2227 for a schedule of first-time homebuyer educational presentations in your area. Government housing agencies are also a good resource for first-time homebuyer education.

- Know your limits — Some people think if a bank issues you a credit card, it has been scientifically determined you are able to handle the maximum credit limit. Those individuals regard mortgage approvals the same way: "the bank knows best." This false logic assumes if the bank approved the mortgage, then you must be able to handle that amount of debt.

In fact, while banks want to issue only trouble-free mortgages, their decisions are based on standard formulas and limited information. You know a lot more about your finances than they do. Be firm if you feel you would be overextended, even if the bank thinks you can comfortably carry.

- Audition for your new home — A good way to determine what you can handle is to "audition" for your new home while in your present home or apartment. Each month, put into a savings account the difference between your present housing costs (rent, utilities and associated costs) and the projected costs for a new home (mortgage, utilities, etc.). If all your financial arrangements go on month after month without any problems while you are saving the difference between your present living situation and your projected one, it is a good indication you can handle the financial demands of your new home.

- Shop intelligently — Don't simply go to the corner bank, a neighbor or an old high school friend for a mortgage. A mortgage is the largest financial decision most people make. Shop for your mortgage just as carefully as you shop for your house. Homebuyers have lots of options; mortgages can be structured very differently, and there is a range of interest rates. Ask if you may be eligible for CRA and CHFA sponsored mortgages. Even if you have been in financial difficulty, you still may qualify for a conventional mortgage. The CreditWorks program, offered by Freddie Mac and Bank of America through CCCS, allows qualified individuals and families who are successfully enrolled in a Debt Management Plan to apply for a conventional rate mortgage.

And, make time before you sign on the dotted line to learn what the terms mean, including legal or financing wording like "sub-prime lender" or "balloon mortgage." Retain an attorney to explain and protect your interests.

- Plan a budget and stick to it — Buying a house gives you an unprecedented opportunity to spend money on all sorts of items that aren't absolutely essential, but seem like a good idea — at least until the bills come in. Many homeowners can afford housing costs, but end up putting their overall financial situations at risk because of credit purchases of new furniture, carpets, kitchen appliances, windows, a pool or other nice-to-have's.

The joy and happiness of having your own home sometimes creates a period of euphoria in which judgment loses out to enthusiasm and people try to upgrade everything at once. To enjoy your new home for the long term, take home ownership one step at a time.

A GREAT COMPANY TO DO BUSINESS WITH

Real Estate in the New Era

by Vin Mascardelli

GETTING PERSONAL

While the Internet has empowered consumers with more information, including the ability to shop for mortgage rates and compare loans, it has not yet reached its perceived potential as a conduit by which consumers transact mortgages. It had been thought that online mortgage transactions would be favored to the extent that mortgage brokers would be largely eliminated from the process. As it turns out, however, a recent study of potential homebuyers conducted by Fannie Mae shows that 80% of respondents would turn to a trusted financial professional with a Web site before using a pure Internet player for their lending needs. This shows that the mortgage loan is still regarded as a very personal process, requiring personalized attention.

Despite the growing importance in our lives of the Internet, personal, one-on-one service is still a preferred means of doing business for many people. At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we emphasize individualized relationships and take the time to guide our clients through each step of the real estate process beginning with our initial meeting through the purchase and sale and walkthrough. Our goal is to bring buyers and sellers together to the mutual satisfaction of both. Call us at 617-328-1312 to arrange a consultation, or visit us at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway.

To Assist First-Time Homebuyers

Neighborhood Housing Services Joins Home Ownership Effort

Mayor James Sheets and Jane Hackett, chief of staff for Weymouth Mayor David Madden, joined over eighty representatives of banks and lenders at a recent luncheon to formally announce Neighborhood Housing Services' acceptance into the National Campaign for Home Ownership.

Normand Grenier, executive director of NHS, and Debbie Kidd, NHS Housing Coordinator, welcomed the partners and other guests to the luncheon.

The two discussed the upcoming programs for assisting first-time homebuyers. Doug Dylla, national coordinator for the Home Ownership Campaign, congratulated NHS for its efforts.

NHS is a fully chartered member of the NeighborWorks Organization sponsored by Neighborhood Reinvestment, a federally funded national agency.

The NeighborWorks Campaign for Home Ownership 2002 is the largest national initiative of its kind: a joint effort of banks, insurance companies, secondary markets, government, the real estate community, and others all working with 108 local community-based NeighborWorks organizations to bring more families of modest means into home ownership.

The original campaign (1993-1997) helped 15,880 families become homeowners, challenging the conventional wisdom about who could be a success at home ownership.

The NeighborWorks Campaign for Home Ownership 2002 (1998-2002) will educate 200,000 families, create 25,000 new homebuyers, and generate $1.8 billion of investment in underserved communities.

Homebuyer's Workshop May 12, 19

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in collaboration with the city of Quincy Saturday, May 12 and May 19.

The workshop will be held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services (NHS) is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

Prospective buyers will learn how they can buy a home with little or no money down.

The agenda is comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program based on needs.

Advanced registration is required. Space is limited. A $10.00 refundable registration fee is required.

For more information and to register for the workshop, contact Janice Tucker at (617) 770-2227 ext. 22.

By CHRIS POISSON

As the surprising Quincy softball team continues to win games, coach Mike Sedar has changed his mind set since the beginning of the season. "In the beginning of the year I said if we stayed in the hunt every game, I'd be happy," he said. "I've changed my mind now. I want to win them all."

That's what winning does, especially for a program that had been stuck in neutral for the past several years.

After dropping a pair of games last week that snapped a three-game winning streak, Quincy pulled out a 6-5 win over cross-town rival North Quincy Monday afternoon at McCoy Field to jump back on the north-bound lane.

Quincy (4-5 overall, 4-3 Old Colony League) will look to continue its ride this week. Yesterday (Wednesday) it hosted first-place Taunton at 4 p.m. and tomorrow it faces Barnstable at home at 4 p.m.

Meanwhile, North Quincy (0-10, 0-7) is another young team whose season has been going south. Coach Bob Doyle was looking for Monday's game to be a turning point. Although the Red Raiders couldn't notch their first W of the season, they showed signs of improvement.

"I was hoping to kind of make this the turning point in the season and maybe steal one here [Monday]," Doyle said. "But it wasn't meant to be. I'm just asking the girls not to hang their heads low and look to improve. I think we're starting to show some signs."

North Quincy held a 3-2 lead going into the fifth inning before its defense collapsed, making three errors that led to three Quincy runs for a 5-3 advantage. Senior Andrea Verlicco had an RBI single.

"The fifth inning was the turning point in the game," Doyle said.

In the sixth inning, Quincy scored what proved to be the game-winner when sophomore Diane Gillbody crossed the plate thanks to another North Quincy miscue.

"We're our own worst enemy," Doyle said. "That's what it came down to. The team that made the fewest mistakes was going to be victorious. We made some rookie errors, but the frustrating thing is when we do it over and over. I have a young squad so patience is a big thing."

The Red Raiders didn't fold, though. Sophomore Lisa Schifone scored an unearned run in the sixth to make it 6-4.

They threatened in the bottom of the seventh when freshman Beth Goodrich led off with a beautiful bunt single and sophomore Marilyn Power reached on catcher's interference. After a double steal, North Quincy had both runners in scoring position with no outs.

But sophomore hurler Stacy Andrew buckled down for the Presidents as she got the next batter to pop up. Senior Jen Conley knocked in Goodrich with a groundout to make it 6-5, but the next batter flied out to center to end the game.

"Once again, we didn't come up with a timely hit," Doyle said. "We had runners on almost every inning. We just couldn't get the runners across."

North Quincy jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Conley had an RBI groundout and senior Kelly Doherty scored from second base as Quincy made an error on the play.

In the second, each team scored a run. Senior Christina Keenan had an RBI groundout for Quincy, while junior Kathryn MacRitchie ripped an RBI single for North Quincy.

In the third, Quincy pulled within 3-2

when junior Christina Roosa walked with the bases loaded to score Gillbody.

Both pitchers pitched well in their complete game efforts. Andrew allowed just four hits and two earned runs, while walking three and striking out five. North Quincy junior Alyssa Hawksley yielded five hits and two earned runs while fanning seven. She had nine walks, but five came in the first two innings.

"I was very pleased with my pitcher, Alyssa Hawksley, despite giving up nine walks. But she was around the plate and gave us an opportunity."

It was an opportunity North Quincy let slip by, and Sedar and his Presidents are thankful they came out on the right end.

"In this game you throw everything out the window," Sedar said. "It scares me when someone comes in with that many losses, anyway. They have a good ball club. I knew they would be up for it. They're a nice, young team like us."

Red Raiders' Doherty Dazzles Presidents

Just like Brighton, Silver Lake, Milton, Falmouth, Taunton and Plymouth South, the Quincy baseball team stood no chance against the cyclone of the Old Colony League who has been paving a path of destruction for the past month.

Keith Doherty is just that good.

A large crowd jammed into Adams Field Monday night and not only were they frozen to their seats by a chilling wind, they were stuck there because North Quincy's senior left-hander delivered yet another mind- and body-numbing performance.

In an abbreviated stint on the mound, Doherty held the Presidents to two measly hits over four innings, while punching out seven and walking no one. When he left the game North Quincy had a 9-0 lead and it ended up walking away with a 14-7 win after both team's bench players finished out the game.

In 46 innings this season, Doherty (6-1, 0.42 ERA) has struck out 70 and walked only 13. The three earned runs he has given up all came in one game, the 8-4 win over Taunton on April 27.

"Keith Doherty went out there and pitched four scoreless innings," said North Quincy head coach Larry Taglieri. "Jumping out to a 5-0 lead was good. A lot of players contributed. Todd White got his first start behind the plate and did a great job."

North Quincy (9-3, 5-2) will try to extend its three-game winning streak this week at home, but it won't be easy as it jousts with some of the league's stronger teams in Silver Lake (Wednesday, 4 p.m.) and Taunton (Friday, 4 p.m.). As of Tuesday, North Quincy, Taunton and Falmouth were tied for second place behind front-runner Barnstable (7-1).

In the first inning, the Red Raiders touched up senior pitcher John Lupo for five runs and they never looked back. Senior Chris Lockhead had a two-run double and senior Sean Crowley ripped a two-run single for the damage. The only out Lupo got was junior Mike Feetham's sacrifice fly that scored a run.

Sophomore southpaw Anthony Boyle, in his first appearance of the season, relieved Lupo and after giving up a bloop hit to load the bases, he got the next two batters out to escape the jam.

Boyle pitched the final 6 2/3 innings and gave up nine runs — only two were earned — while striking out seven. He gave up 12 hits, but some of those were bloopers and grounders that found holes through the infield.

"Boyle pitched a real good game," said Quincy head coach Michael Draicchio. "He got some squeakers in there and plays that should have been made. That's baseball. It's going to happen. But he did a great job, especially when he hasn't thrown."

After scoring four unearned runs in the fourth, capped by junior Wayne Moynihan's three-run double, North Quincy tacked on another run in the fifth on junior Pat Bregoli's RBI single for a 10-0 lead.

In the bottom half, Quincy got on the board with four runs off Bregoli, who pitched two innings in relief of Doherty. Sophomore Rob Muollo walked with the bases loaded for the first run and freshman Matt Germain followed with a two-run single down the first-base line. Junior Dave Germain, his brother, then lined an RBI single down the third-base line.

"They're doing a great job," Draicchio said of the Germans. "They're making contact all the time. I had a lot of young guys play at the end. That's what I'm happy with there: the young guys doing their job. It's time to make some moves. We all knew it was going to happen at some point. It's time. The young guys proved it tonight. They got some runs across the plate."

Senior Olympics Start Monday

Registration is underway throughout Quincy and the South Shore for the 19th annual Quincy Senior Olympics, sponsored by Beechwood on the Bay and the city of Quincy.

The annual games, designed for adults ages 55 and over, will begin Monday, May 14, at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Primarily for the Quincy Middle School and Boston Middle School sports sponsors, this year are Quincy Rotary Club, Bay Club and Marina Place. Other friends and supporters contributing to the increasingly popular Senior Week are Fallon Ambulance, Olinda's Lanes, Club 58, Torre Dei Passeri Club and Presidents Golf Course.

This year, 250 seniors are expected to register, according to Kathleen Prince, director of Elder Services at Beechwood on the Bay and coordinator of the Senior Olympics Planning Committee.

Senior Olympian George Conway will lead competition in the Senior Olympics. At age 98, he is the South Shore's "Senior" Senior Olympian and will light the Olympic Torch with Mayor James Sheehy in the Opening Ceremony May 14. The Senior Games will culminate with an Awards Ceremony May 23.

The week-long event offers:

Bowling, darts, bocce, billiards, one-mile walk, three-mile walk, one-mile run, half-mile walk, swimming (sprint, freestyle, breast stroke, 100- and 50-yard swims, butterfly), softball game, celebrity volleyball, track & field events (softball throw, javelin throw, running and standing long jump, shotput, golf and rotation events (horseshoe pitch, basketball throw).

The Olympics Planning Committee, chaired by Prince, includes Barry Welch, recreation director; Daniel Keating, Office of the Mayor; Sharon Beals, executive director of the Bay Club; John Gormley, manager of the Bay Club; and Roger Buckley, athletic director at North Quincy High School.

All interested seniors are invited to join. Registration forms are available at The Quincy Sun, Quincy Business and Professional Association and Beechwood on the Bay.

To register or more information, stop by Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., or call 617-471-5712.

Employee Assistance Programs Combat Personal Problems In The Workplace

By RONNIE MURRY, M.Ed., LSW
Certified Employee Assistance Professional
 Each year, businesses lose billions of dollars to employee absenteeism, lower productivity, turnover, substance abuse, employee theft and workers' compensation claims. An Employee Assistance Program (EAP) can effectively reduce these costs through the promotion of early intervention with troubled employees.

An EAP is a strategy designed to help companies manage the impact of employee personal problems. A successful EAP can include services such as confidential counseling, referral to outside resources, consultation and training for supervisors and managers, health promotion seminars, and assistance with company policy development and benefits design.

The benefits from an EAP are countless — fewer accidents, reduced turnover, lower absenteeism, high productivity and increased morale to name a few. An EAP can provide assistance for employees facing personal problems, including:

- Marital or family conflict.
- Co-worker problems.
- Emotional stress.
- Anxiety.
- Depression.
- Drug or alcohol abuse.
- Stress related to legal or financial matters.
- Lifestyle changes.

Bayview Associates Employee Assistance Program, a program of South Shore Mental Health, has services that are available in the workplace or at one of our counseling centers throughout the South Shore and Southeastern Massachusetts. For more information call us at (800) 852-2844 and ask to speak to an EAP counselor.

South Shore Mental Health is a community resource providing mental health and substance abuse services throughout the South Shore, Southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod. For more information about any of our programs, call (617) 847-1950.

Hot Or Cold Treatment Debate

By Dr. MARTIN RIGBY

Hot or cold? Hot or cold? Something is hurting and the internal debate about which form of treatment to use has begun. Cold treatment, or cryotherapy, is one of the safest and most readily adaptable forms of home care for early treatment of many common injuries, and may even prevent some injuries from occurring.

In any physical activity soft tissues (muscles, ligaments and tendons) can suffer microtrauma from the repetitive nature of the activity. There are elastic limits in these soft tissues. When these limits are exceeded, injury can occur if the body's tissues are not properly regenerated.

The soft tissue microtraumas begin at the cellular level, causing injured cells to rupture and die. Fortunately, pain or fatigue usually forces us to cease our activity before we literally self-destruct. At this point the body naturally begins to repair itself. This might be done by creating a muscle spasm to restrict movement, or firing pain signals that warn us to stop the offending movement.

Even though this is a natural process, the muscle that acts as a splint spasm and the swelling that accompanies most injuries can actually delay recovery. The appropriate use of cold can intervene in this pain-spasm-swelling process, and will speed recovery and return to activity. The depth of penetration of the most common types of cold therapies (ice packs or cold packs) is about two inches. Ice produces an analgesic (pain-killing) and anesthetic (numbing) effect in the injured area by decreasing nerve impulses from the comprised tissue. By decreasing the tissue temperature, the cell metabolism slows, breaking the pain-swelling-spasm response. Cold also leads to the constriction of blood vessels, creating another way to prevent swelling in an injured area.

Why is swelling of such great concern? The extracellular fluid (fluids outside and between the cells) becomes very difficult to remove once it is there. A buildup of fluid can lead to a natural, but unwanted immobilization of the joint, which can lead in turn to a protracted recovery period.

While treating an injury with cryotherapy is good, an interesting thing happens if the cold therapy lasts too long. When the body's tissuess are cooled for too long, the vascular network in the injured area can dilate, which causes an increase in the blood supply to the area and protects the tissues against possible frostbite.

In acute or recently incurred conditions you might want to apply repeated short bursts of cold in order to constrict the blood vessels in an injured area which will decrease the swelling. As healing time progresses, long applications of cold (up to 20 minutes) can be used that will first constrict blood vessels, then dilate these blood vessels. This type of treatment creates a pumping action which flushes out cell debris and then allows the fresh blood full of nutrients into the area to accelerate repair to the injured tissues.

There are several different ways to use ice. Ice massage refers to treatment where an ice cube is rubbed directly on an injured area for five to seven minutes.

Cold water immersion is another effective treatment which is particularly useful for contoured areas like the hands or feet. The water temperature should be 55 to 65 degrees and immersion should last 20-30 minutes. The ice slush bath used in the past is now being discouraged because the temperature of the slush is too cold.

Probably the most common form of cold therapy is the ice bag. When an Ace bandage is used in conjunction with an ice bag, it adds compression to acute injuries, helping to keep swelling to a minimum.

Emergency situations dictate creativity. Frozen bags of vegetables, such as peas or corn, can make an efficient cold pack in the absence of ice. Simply leave the vegetables in the bag, and mold the bag over the injured area.

Cryotherapy does have some drawbacks and its application should be considered on an individual basis.

Interfaith Social Services Receives $500 Check

The Massachusetts Co-operative Charitable Foundation recently presented a check in the amount of $500 to Quincy Interfaith Social Services, 1250 Hancock St., as part of this year's community contributions.

Interfaith Social Services was established in 1947 and has worked with families to assure all individuals in the South Shore have access to food, clothing and counseling. It also provides permanent homes to children. Currently, it is helping over 10 communities in the South Shore. Contributions can be arranged by calling Robert Taylor at (617) 773-6203.

The Massachusetts Co-operative Charitable Foundation was formed by Massachusetts Fincorp, Inc., the holding company of The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank, to establish a bond between the bank and the community in which it operates to enable the community to share in the potential growth and success of the bank over the long term.

The foundation has assets of approximately $250,000 and each year donates a percentage of its assets to the communities in and around which the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank maintains a banking office.

The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank, established in 1908, is a community bank with offices in Quincy, Boston and Milton.

Tom Boyer, organist and choir director at Bethany Church will direct the Spear Street Singers.

Quincy Girl Scouts Recognized At Annual Meeting

Seven Girl Scouts from Quincy were recently honored as graduating seniors at the Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council's annual meeting attended by more than 450 people at Boston's Park Plaza Hotel.

Local graduates are: Jessica Crehan, Holly Golden, Gillian Hawes, Laetitia Lutti, Colleen McCarthy, Vicki Tang and Janet Yankun.

Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council congratulates the Quincy Girl Scouts on their recognition and is honored to have such dynamic young women as members of the Girl Scout movement.

Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council serves nearly 30,000 girls annually in Greater Boston, but the "girl" in Girl Scouting represents only a part of those involved. Each year, more than 9,000 adult volunteers serve as troop leaders, adult trainers, special event organizers, and board members.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

NOBODY KNOWS BUT MOTHER
 Nobody knows of the work it makes
 To keep the home together;
 Nobody knows of the steps it takes,
 Nobody knows - but mother.
 Nobody listens to childish woes
 Which kisses only smother;
 Nobody's pained by naughty blows,
 Nobody - only mother.

*Nobody knows of the anxious fears
 That darlings may not weather
 The storm of life in after years,
 Nobody knows - but mother.*

*Nobody knows of the sleepless care Bestowed on baby brother;
 Nobody knows of the tender prayer
 Nobody - only mother.*

*Nobody knows of the lessons taught
 Of loving one another;
 Nobody knows of the patience sought

 To thank the Heavenly Father
 For the sweetest gift - a mother's love,
 Nobody can - but mother. (Author Unknown)*

A Message From Welch Healthcare
How To Choose Your Primary Care Physician

By: Ellen Laramée, RN
Resident Care Director
Allerton House at Harbor Park Assisted Living Community, Hingham

You've relocated, your physician has moved, your insurance has changed... how do you successfully find a new physician?

You take the time to shop around for the best deals on cars, clothes, and food; you owe it to yourself to be as diligent with your physician search.

These guidelines will help you choose the best physician for you:

- Know your insurance plan.
- Obtain a list of providers.
- Ask relatives, friend, and co-workers for recommendations.
- Call your hospital's physician referral service.
- Do you prefer a male or female physician?

Ask questions: What is your educational background? Where did you do your residency? What is your primary hospital affiliation?

Make an appointment and evaluate the office: Is the staff friendly, professional, and helpful? How easy was it to obtain an appointment? How long was the wait? Did the physician appear organized?

Be aware of the physician's style, did it match yours?

Find a physician before you are in crisis.

Choosing a physician, and visiting him or her regularly, is a great way to get healthy and stay healthy. Your goal should be to have a trusting and long-lasting relationship with your doctor. Shop around, ask questions, and feel good about your choice.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Relationships on the job and/or at home are stronger, thanks to your efforts to shore up the weak spots. An unexpected visitor arrives with surprising but welcome news.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A favorite hobby could turn into a profit-making venture. For a Taurus, that could be sculpting, making vases or even creating baked specialties. Look into it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Yours might be the sign of the Twins, but you still need to be wary of double-talk coming from someone who is trying to avoid having you uncover his or her true motives.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Someone who has owed you an apology for a long time suddenly comes through with it. Accept it graciously, even if you don't feel like resuming a friendly relationship.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel things are going too slowly, but resist the urge to let loose a Leonine roar at those you believe are holding you back. Instead, use some gentle purrrrr-suasion, Kitty Cat.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might feel you were not treated right during a recent workplace shift. But be patient. Things are still in a state of flux, and another change might be in the offing.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might want to consider consulting with an expert before you invest money and time in a venture that could hold some unforeseen and potentially perilous pitfalls.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Travel aspects are strong, making this a good time to finalize vacation plans. A family situation that has been worrisome has now taken a turn for the better.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your Archer's arrow is well and truly aimed, but are you sure about the target you've set up? You might want to take another look at your plans before acting on them.

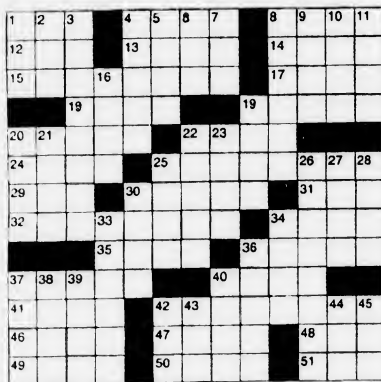

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's a good time to make plans to get away for some much-needed fun and relaxation. A cruise (you are the Sea Goat, of course) would be a great way to go.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're going to have to deal with some changes, even though you'd rather accept things just as they are. But it all turns out for the best.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might need to step away from a difficult situation so that you can get a better perspective on how to handle it. Good advice might come from a most-unexpected source.

Atherton Hough Penny Drive Benefits New Playground

Students of the Atherton Hough Elementary School recently presented a check for $1,221 -- the proceeds of its annual Penny Drive -- to Houghs Neck HOPE, which will see its dream of a playground at LaBrecque Field become a reality in June.

The Atherton Hough donation, said Houghs Neck HOPE spokesman Wayne Batson, brings the total amount raised to $41,000, just shy of the group's revised goal of $50,000.

And, with the exception of roughly $12,000 raised via corporate donations, the funds came from city residents themselves, especially the neighborhood of Houghs Neck.

"Houghs Neck is not that big," Batson said. "For the community to respond the way it has is simply amazing."

The group, Batson said, raised $1,700 from its recent Easter Bunny Fun Day and also held fundraising events such as spaghetti dinners and voluntary toll booths at neighborhood roadways.

Fiona Canavan, a past president and member of the Atherton Hough PTO, joined Batson in praising the hard work of the students of Atherton Hough.

"It was unbelievable the way the children responded," said Canavan. "Can you imagine how excited they were: their pennies going toward a playground?"

According to Canavan, the Annual Penny Drive started four years ago as a grass-roots effort to upgrade computer equipment at the school, with totals of $440, $770, and more than $1,000 in its first three years.

A recent $50,000 commitment from the city for a new computer lab at the school, Canavan said, made it possible for the Penny Drive proceeds to go the new playground this year and similar worthy causes in the future.

All classes compete in the Penny Drive, which begins at the start of the school year, and the class which raises the most funds receives a pizza and ice cream party.

For the second year in a row, top honors went to the Grade 2 class of Margaret Brownell, which this year raised $335.

Pizza for the pizza party is being donated by The Granite Rail, Quincy Center.

In addition to $50 commemorative bricks which are still being sold, Houghs Neck HOPE is planning a Blues Night Fundraiser May 16 at The Yard Rock, East Howard Ave.

Park and Recreation Department employees, who have donated time and labor, will construct the playground at LaBrecque Field beginning in late May.

A Houghs Neck HOPE ribbon cutting, in conjunction with the Parks Department and the Quincy Police Athletic League, is scheduled for Saturday, June 9 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Alan Cousin Responds To Campaign Mailing Dispute

ALAN COUSIN

Alan Cousin, candidate for Ward 3 City Councillor, said he "immediately" apologized to School Committee member Christine Cedrone over a Cousin mailing which included Cedrone's name without her knowledge.

But Cousin attributed the incident to a simple misunderstanding rather than an attempt at misrepresentation, as Cedrone claims.

"Quite frankly, I think she panicked," Cousin said, explaining further that Cedrone's name was listed as a guest speaker for Cousin's May 22 fundraiser at Raffael's Restaurant because she had agreed to do just that.

Cedrone said that she agreed to speak at the event but only on such topics as Quincy High School or on being a fellow Republican. Her name and background on the mailing, Cedrone said, implied an endorsement which did not and does not exist.

Cedrone, who said she was "really upset" about what she saw as Cousin's attempt to gain credibility through an established politician, has since reconsidered and will no longer speak at the fundraiser.

But Cousin, chairman of implicitly understand that if they agreed to speak at an event, their name would feature in the publicity. I have never had to ask. I have never had to explain. It is commonly understood ... the invitations with her listed as a 'special guest speaker' meant only that -- that she would be the guest speaker at the event.

"It happens that Christine and I are both Republicans. The Massachusetts Republican party is often jocularly referred to as 'a shootout in a lifeboat.' I have the greatest admiration for Christine's public service in Quincy, and I decline to participate in a lifeboat shootout with her.

"I choose to give her the benefit of the doubt and attribute her reaction to a lack of understanding of how these things work. The event will go on with another speaker."

Commission On Disability To Meet May 14

The Quincy Commission on Disability will meet May 14 at 6:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

The public is invited.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the Commission on Disability should contact Jonathan Yip at 617-376-1515 or Nancy Magee at 617-770-4530.

18 Candidates Take Nomination Papers papers but did not specifically say for what office although he indicated it might be for mayor.

McNamee and Keenan were the first to pick up their papers early Monday morning.

Newton was also early and not only picked up papers but within a couple of hours returned a sheet with 50 signatures on it. He said he would be back with more.

Candidates for mayor, city councillor at-large and school committee must obtain 50 valid voter signatures collected city-wide. Ward council candidates also need 50 signatures but all obtained in the ward in which they are running.

Deadline for returning the papers is 5 p.m. Tuesday, July 24.

The preliminary election will be held Sept. 11 and the final election Nov. 6.

DIABETIC NEUROPATHY

Many diabetics experience link between diabetes and neuropathy, a nerve disorder that leads to numbness, tingling and sometimes pain.

Neuropathy most often affects nerves to the feet, the body's longest nerves. The longer a person has diabetes, the more susceptible he or she is to developing neuropathy. Smokers, those over 40, and people with trouble controlling their blood glucose are also prone to neuropathy. When neuropathy affects the feet, numbness, tingling, burning, or a prickly sensation may be felt. Feet may be insensitive to pain or temperature changes but excessively sensitive to touch. Sharp pain, cramping and loss of balance may also occur. Chemical changes in the nerves can be caused by high blood glucose, which "burns" the nerves.

PS: Symptoms of neuropathy are often worse at night.

Building Plans Moving Ahead, Morrissey Seeks Ramp Study Funds

Office Complex X-way Ramp Seen For N.Q.

By CRAIG SALTERS

Both a 265,000 square foot office building and an off-ramp connection to the Southeast Expressway are part of future plans for North Quincy.

Groundbreaking on the office building next to the North Quincy MBTA station is expected to begin within the next 12 months.

As a result, renewed consideration is being given an off-ramp directly connecting the northerly route of the Southeast Expressway to Neponset Circle and the Neponset River Bridge.

Mayor James Sheets confirmed Tuesday that Dickinson Development, located at 1266 Furnace Brook Parkway, is moving forward with an earlier project which included a 265,000 square foot office building along with 700 to 800 additional parking spaces, adding that the project could start "within the next 12 months."

To accommodate the increased number of vehicles in an already dense area, Sheets said, the concept of the off-ramp was being re-considered.

"It would be a good idea to have a ramp and I support it," Sheets said.

State Senator Michael

Morrissey wants funds in this year's state budget for the Massachusetts Highway Department to conduct a feasibility study on the project, emphasizing that there were currently no proposals.

Morrissey made a similar feasibility study request last year, he said, but it was not included in the state's final budget.

Preliminary drawings previously created by Dickinson Development would serve as the starting

New Budget Could Add Bldg. Inspector, Assistant Solicitor

By CRAIG SALTERS

The $193 million proposed budget submitted by Mayor James Sheets to the City Council May 7 includes funding for an additional building inspector and an additional assistant city solicitor as well as new positions for the recently expanded Thomas Crane Public Library and added crossing guards.

The new assistant solicitor's position, said Daniel Keating, executive secretary to Mayor Sheets, will allow the city to hire on a full-time basis Attorney David Grunenbaum, who has been handling the city's contract labor negotiations for more than a decade.

Hiring Grunenbaum full-time, said Keating, will save the city money over the long term, given that Quincy has 16 contract labor negotiations over the next 18 to 24 months.

Annual salary for the proposed position is $42,500.

The proposed budget also calls for an additional building inspector at an annual salary of $51,726.

Speaking before a recent meeting of the Quincy Business Council, Sheets said the position was necessary because of the increased building in the city, such as the HighPoint Development in West Quincy.

The mayor's budget fully funds four librarian positions which were created midway through the current fiscal year. In addition, the recently expanded library is expected to receive an additional security guard position and an additional custodial maintenance position.

According to Keating, a plan currently being consid-

'Make An Impact Week' To Promote Disaster Resistance

Quincy will participate in national "Make An Impact Week" May 20-26 to promote disaster resistance for residents, businesses and government agencies.

Quincy, a designated Project Impact community will open this week and encourage the adoption of disaster resistance measures. Monday, May 21 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon in the first floor meeting room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

The first distribution of the "Quincy Project Impact Brochure" will be made at that time. There will also be a disaster resistance related to floods demonstration.

Speakers will include Mayor James Sheets, Planning Director Richard Meade and Director of Building

Inspection Services Walter White who are co-chairmen of Project Impact.

Representatives from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the Massachusetts Emergency Department (DEM) and the American Red Cross will attend.

A demonstration of Quincy's Geographic Information System (GIS) relative to flood plains and wetlands will be given. Refreshments will be provided.

Since its inception in 1997, 250 communities representing over 900 jurisdictions and 2,500 business partners have embraced Project Impact. Instead of waiting for disasters to occur, Project Impact communities plan mitigation projects, develop private and public partnerships, initiate mentor relationships and conduct public outreach to reduce damage from potentially devastating disasters.

Quincy was designated a Project Impact community in December, 1998 because of a willingness to address a long history of repetitive flood losses. The city received $300,000 from FEMA to promote a broad community based partnership, support mitigation projects and bring attention to resulting success and lessons.

The Quincy Project Impact committee consists of representatives from the City's Inspection Services, Planning, Public Works, and Emergency Management Departments, the American Red Cross and various private businesses and associations.

For more information about Project Impact or preventing damage, call Walter White at 617-376-1456 or 202-646-4117.

NEW OR RENEW?
The good news is that the generally higher quality of most vehicles built in the late 1980s and 1990s has led to increased visibility of autos of this era on the roads. Thanks to improved engineering and corrosion-resistance, the median age of cars on the highways these days is 8.3 years, which is up from 5.9 years in 1979. And, while these older vehicles offer their owners good value, it is time to assess the condition of any vehicles as its odometer approaches 90,000 miles. A thorough inspection at this time can help owners decide whether it is worth the expense to repair worn or damaged systems and components, or turn the vehicle in for a newer model. Parking Issue Holds Up Restaurant Opening

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
When Barbara and Joseph Keenan purchased Kelly's at 21-27 Billings Road back in February, they thought the parking lot went with it.

But Tuesday at the License Board meeting, they found out that after spending thousands of dollars renovating, and hoping to open their new restaurant Caralilly's they have been unable because of the parking issue they didn't know existed.

Peter Kelly had apparently sold the parking lot without the knowledge of the Keenans or the License Board, according to Walter White, Director of Inspection Services.

Back in February, when Kelly's license was transferred to the Keenans, White was the only board member voting against the transfer.

He said then, and repeated at Tuesday's meeting that because of the expansion of some retail stores in the area, there is not enough additional parking for the restaurant. He said on street parking would not be acceptable, and would be in violation of the zoning ordinances.

Other issues included fire alarm upgrading and new bathrooms installed, which Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton assured the board that the Keenans were complying with those issues.

Atty. John Nelson, representing the Keenans said his confusion lies in other restaurants in the central district. He asked White why restaurants like Dee Dee's and Murphy's have practically no parking and are still able to operate. He said "why is this restaurant an exception?"

White said all new premises and "change of use" are subject to zoning laws. He said when Dee Dee's was established, they only had to abide by the existing zoning ordinances.

City Engineer Jack Gillan said he thought the parking was "not critical at this particular location."

Gillan said a good amount of patrons eating lunch at the restaurant are within walking area as most of their work in area offices.

He said that the cleaning establishment next door closes before the restaurant hours peak and that those spaces would be used for the restaurant.

He said parking spaces are adequate, but if the restaurant had a large "take out" I'd be concerned with double parking."

Nelson said the Keenans had already made arrangements with the cleaning establishment for 15 additional parking spaces. He added that the owners had promised to paint the spaces and also to provide new signage.

Newton appealed to White to revisit the area and explained that the Keenans are in danger of "facing foreclosure because they have to pay their mortgage and meet their bills".

Newton appealed to the board and said the issue was "sending the wrong message to families and neighbors trying to start a business." He said he hoped the board would "make the right decision for a Quincy family."

Nelson said if the parking is in violation, then the Keenans purchased a "useless piece of property" and added a "worthless asset".

Nelson told the board that the restaurant used to seat 180 persons, but that

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

METATARSALGIA

Metatarsalgia is a foot disorder affecting the joints in the ball of the foot, causing pain and inflammation. Patients often describe the sensation of walking on a stone. This condition can be caused by a person's anatomy (narrow, high-arched feet or bent, misshapen toes), a systemic condition (excess weight, arthritis, or circulatory problems), certain behaviors (wearing high-heeled or pointy-toed shoes, standing or walking on hard surfaces), or injury (a tight Achilles tendon, pinched nerve, or stress fracture). Calluses often appear under the affected metatarsal joints, which explains the feeling of walking on a stone. In mild cases, changing footwear or using foot pads can help relieve the pain of metatarsalgia. More serious cases may require orthotics or surgery.

We offer preventive care, medical intervention, and surgical treatment services for a full range of foot concerns. We are committed to providing uncompromising excellence in diagnosis and treatment of your foot or ankle problem, as well as in advising you on how to keep you feet healthy. Feet of all ages are our priority here at Randolph at 999 North Main Street, in the medical office building. Please call 781-986-3668 for an appointment.

P.S. Anti-inflammatory medication can help relieve the inflammation associated with metatarsalgia.

Council To Review Candidate Signature Requirements

A resolution authored by Ward 3 Councilor Patrick McDermott seeks a review by the Oversight Committee of the city's signature requirements to run for municipal elections.

It also requests a review of the circumstances where a recount may be either requested or required, with the city clerk and solicitor reporting back to the Oversight Committee no later than Sept. 1.

A resolution was referred to the Oversight Committee May 7.

Currently, 50 signatures citywide are required to be on the ballot for the offices of mayor, councilor-at-large, or member of the School Committee.

To run for ward councilor, 50 signatures are required from the particular ward.

Any decision reached by the council would not impact the upcoming elections.

A State Honor For George

George Burke wasn't doing it for any glory the day he rescued the historic Colonel John Quincy Tinkard from the auction block.

But it seems to keep coming his way.

Latest is a pretty prestigious honor: the Massachusetts Historical Commission's Outstanding Individual Achievement Award.

It will be presented to Burke at the 2001 Preservation Awards Ceremony Thursday, May 31 at 5 p.m. in the Great Hall at the State House.

In a letter to Burke informing him of his selection, Secretary of State William F. Galvin, who is chairman of the Historical Commission, cited his unselfish financial contributions towards helping the "Church of the Presidents" and his role as a preservationist.

Galvin noted in part:

"As the State Historic Preservation Office, the Massachusetts Historical Commission has an appreciation of the Commonwealth's valuable historic and cultural assets.

"Throughout your distinguished career as an attorney, a former legislator and district attorney and as a civic leader, you have persevered above and beyond what is normally expected.

"Your commitment to the community and your willingness to preserve a piece of the past has made you a true preservationist at heart."

Burke earlier this year was recognized by the Quincy Historical Society and the Beechwood Community Life Center for saving the tankard. And has been a hero in the eyes of many residents who appreciate Quincy's rich history.

The 234-year old tankard was one of 11 pieces of colonial silver auctioned off in New York City in January by United First Parish Church to pay for needed repairs to the church building.

The tankard, crafted in 1767, was bequeathed to the church by Colonel Quincy, grandfather of Abigail Adams and great-grandfather of sixth President John Quincy Adams.

Quincy was named for him. And he is why we call it Quin-zee and not Quin-see because he pronounced his name that way.

Thus, the tankard is a direct link to him and to Quincy's history.

So when the 11 pieces of silver were shipped down to Sotheby's in New York to be auctioned off, Burke was determined that at least one of them -- the Quincy tankard -- was coming back.

The auction catalogue listed the tankard's value at between $30,000 and $50,000.

Burke got on the phone in his North Quincy office and started bidding but soon found the tankard's value to be much greater than thought. The bids kept soaring until finally, Burke won it: at $160,000.

But the final price tag for him was close to $200,000 after coming up with a $21,000 commission to Sotheby's, nearly $10,000 in state taxes to New York, insurance and other expenses.

Together, the 11 pieces of silver brought in $2.7 million, considerably more than expected by the church. But the Colonel Quincy tankard was the only piece that came back to Quincy, thanks to Burke.

"It was well worth it," Burke says of the near $200,000 he shelled out. "The tankard is an historic link and belongs here. And now it is going to stay here."

The tankard has been on public display under police protection twice since coming home. First in the window of The Quincy Sun and then at the Quincy Historical Society.

Burke hopes that arrangements can be made to have it shown to students in all the schools in Quincy.

And, he hopes a permanent display site will be selected for it.

"A well secure place and one where the most people can easily get to see it," he says.

Meanwhile, the tankard is in the custody of Mayor James Sheets who is keeping it safely tucked away in an undisclosed vault between displays and until a permanent home for it is found.

No word on where it might next be exhibited.

But how about the Great Hall at the State House May 31 when Burke receives his award for rescuing it?

M. TOBIN

MARK TOBIN is getting off to an early start in his bid for Norfolk County Register of Probate.

He has a kick-off campaign fundraiser set for Thursday, May 24, 6 to 10 p.m. at Pa'Flanagan's restaurant, 79 Parkway. Donation is $15 per person.

Tobin, a Democrat, is the son of former Quincy Mayor-Senator Arthur Tobin, now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court. And he is the brother of state Rep. Steve Tobin.

But he says it's his experience that he is running on. He has been an assistant clerk magistrate in Bristol County Juvenile Court the past four years and before that served 13 years as an administrative assistant in the Norfolk County Register of Probate office.

A RECEPTION FOR Paul Harold, city council president and Norfolk County Register of Deeds, will be held Tuesday, May 22, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Common Market, Willard St.

Tickets are $100. For more information call Mike Linnane at 617-770-0166.

TIM CAHILL will kick off his bid for an eighth city council at-large term Thursday, May 24, 7 to 9 p.m. at a campaign reception at the Common Market, Willard St.

Tickets will be available at the door or can be obtained by calling John Vignoni, treasurer, at 617-773-3029.

GOOD FRIEND Fr. Joseph Downey, former pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point, will lead a pilgrimage to Rome, Assisi, Lourdes and Paris, June 9 to June 19. The trip will include a Papal audience June 13.

Fr. Downey is now in residence at Jeanne Jugan Pavilion, Room 205, 190 Highland Ave., Somerville, MA 02143-1595.

Anyone wishing to participate in the pilgrimage may contact him by writing him at the residence or calling him at 617-623-7231.

FR. DOWNEY

MILESTONE: You might say Deanna Gazarian of Phase II Jewelry and her husband, Greg, have another phase two: twin grandchildren.

Daughter Karin and son-in-law Jim Sheridin became parents of Lindsay and Matthew April 19 at Brigham and Women's Hospital. Lindsay weighed in at 5 pounds, 10 ounces and Matthew at 4 pounds, 8 ounces. They have a big sister, Courtney, age 5.

Nana has been proudly handing out chocolate bars with a special wrapper featuring a photo of the new arrivals and the statistics.

And there's good reason for a second celebration: daughter Jessica, who works in Sheriff Michael Bellotti's Legal Unit, recently passed the Massachusetts Bar.

Congratulations.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of the Furnace Brook Parkway in West Quincy. The graceful Quincy granite bridge was built by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad to carry its Granite Branch tracks over the mainline in Atlantic through the Montclair marshes to East Milton and West Quincy and back to the mainline near Capen's Bridge in Braintree. The service was stopped in 1941. Today the Southeast Expressway crosses Furnace Brook Parkway in this same location. The expressway was built on the railroad right-of-way through West Quincy.

Locking Central To New QHS A Major Mistake

Editor, The Quincy Sun: As both a parent of a North Quincy High School student and as a substitute teacher in the Quincy Public Schools, I have been following the public debate over the siting of a proposed new Quincy High School.

I was so glad to read former School Committee member Peggy Nigro's letter to The Quincy Sun (April 5). I agree with her that locking the Central Middle School to the Coddington Street site was a major flaw in the process.

If the City of Quincy needed two new schools, the wisest course would have been to deal with each proposal on its own merits. However, the foundation was created that said Central was coming to the present Quincy High School building, so they need for a new Quincy High School took on a rush job. We are basing the move of Quincy High School solely on the needs of Central Middle School, aren't we?

Soon, the siting committee will offer the Quincy School Committee a site for the new high school. Will it be one of two sites at Merrymount Park? Will it be the DPW headquarters on Sea Street? Will it be on Coddington Street next to the high school and Center for Technical Education by Faxon Field? No matter the choice, you can bet the choice was made for the wrong reasons which has become typical Quincy style politics to most by now.

Of the four choices available to the siting committee, all of them were imperfect sites. However, no one seemed to care. Once again we're rushing to find a new high school site based on the needs of a middle school.

Also, can someone on the school committee, the city council or the mayor himself tell us why they would want four of the city's five middle schools all south of Quincy Square and Coddington Street? Right now, Atlantic

Middle School is the only middle school north of Furnace Brook. Why is the northern tier of the city getting shortchanged when it comes to middle schools, especially when there is so much student growth there? Atlantic is already overworked. Isn't it time to consider that any new middle school by whatever name it goes by should be on the north side of town?

Like Peggy Nigro, I too hope that the final decision on the high school site was made to benefit the students and not the politicians as I suspect.

A Mother Grateful For The CHIP Program

Editor, The Quincy Sun: To all the sponsors, organizers and volunteers for the CHIP program which was held at the Quincy Masonic Temple April 21:

As a parent of two young boys, I thank you.

After the excitement of finding out that you are expecting, all your worries begin. It is almost immediate. You can do as much as you can to keep your children healthy and happy. The safety issue is always the toughest one.

As a mother, you cannot go over rules and boundaries enough. You children's first lessons in numerals is reciting "911" over and over. The seat belts are always on, they are walked to and from school and all baby sitters are interrogated like spies.

A parent's worst nightmare is to have a child stolen and not know anything. I cringe at the mere act of writing those words. I have wept for Molly Bish and all those missing. I have wept at the TV movie "Adam." I have felt the sheer panic of hearing a parent frantically call for a child who is just out of sight for even a minute at a playground.

I brought my sons to the CHIP program at the Masonic Temple in Quincy last weekend. I brought them to be prepared if my worst nightmare came true. It was gut-wrenching to think that it is a possibility that it could happen to my family. As I walked in there, I was eased by the smiles and calmness of the volunteers and there were many of them.

They had it so child friendly with clowns, pediatric dentists and Rainbow girls to take their videos. I, as an adult, was eased by the incredible organization of the various stations and all of the volunteers help. It was just wonderful.

As we were leaving with our new toothbrushes from the pediatric dentists, our toothprints, fingerprints and fabulous identification videos of each son, we met Officer Ralph Radzevich and Officer "McGruff" from the Quincy Police Department. The boys ran to Officer

"McGruff" for hugs, and Officer Radzevich shook their hands, answered all of their questions and gave them Junior Quincy Police badges. They were thrilled.

Again, thank you to the Freemasons, the pediatric dentists, the Rainbow girls, the clowns, Officer Ralph Radzevich and the Quincy Police Department for giving parents a chance to ease one of their parental fears.

The boys had a terrific time to boot.

Apollo Moonship Launched

By PAUL HAROLD

The USNS Vanguard, the first of three space tracking ships to be built at the General Dynamics shipyard, successfully completed the first phase of sea trials this week. The other ships to be built at Fore River for the Apollo space program were the Redstone and the Mercury.

The Vanguard's performance was better than expected according to Navy officials who were expected to return the ship to Quincy this week.

300 ATTEND DEDICATION OF RYAN SQUARE IN WEST QUINCY

An estimated 300 people attended ceremonies dedicating the intersection of Quarry and Common Streets in memory of John Ryan, a former West Quincy resident.

Ryan was a Navy carpenter's mate killed at age 23 in a kamikaze attack in Okinawa on Aug. 2, 1945. He was buried in St. Mary's cemetery.

The program was jointly sponsored by the Morrisette Post and the city's Veterans' Services department. Among those participating in the program were Ryan's mother, Mrs. Jane Ryan of West Quincy, his sister, Mrs. Robert Crandell of Wollaston and Rev. Dominic Menna, curate at St. Mary's.

MERGER VOTED FOR

QUINCY AND WELLESLEY BANKS

Quincy's biggest bank, the South Shore National Bank, could get bigger following the recent merger vote of its directors and stockholders and those of the Wellesley National Bank. The approval of the Comptroller of the Currency was needed before the merger could be finalized according to Winthrop Sargent, vice president at South Shore.

The combined banks would have assets of $110 million with 28 offices county-wide. It would keep its main offices in Quincy Center with South Shore's William Martin continuing as president.

'Lowell Blues' Ends Season For Independent Film Series

The South Shore Independent Film Series at First Parish Church, Quincy Square, will present its last show of the season tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. with Lowell Blues, a film by Henry Ferrini.

The film is a look at Lowell, Massachusetts through the eyes and words of one her most famous native sons: Jack Kerouac.

Lowell Blues, which has been shown on WGBH-TV Channel 2, includes readings from Kerouac's works as well as memories of his home town.

In addition, four award-winning short subjects will be presented: Atlas Gets a Drink, The Birth of Independent Film, Rejected, and Zen and the Art of Landscaping.

Several filmmakers are expected to be present to discuss their work and answer questions. Combined running time is approximately 85 minutes.

Cara Owens Performs In 'H.M.S. Pinafore'

Quincy resident Cara Owens, a sixth grader at Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, recently starred as one of the ladies in the middle school production of Gilbert and Sullivan's HMS Pinafore, also known as The Lass That Loved a Sailor.

The musical production, adapted and arranged by M.J. Arnold,

'Androcles And The Lion' At ENC Friday, Saturday

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present "Androcles and the Lion," a production for all ages, May 18-19.

In support of theater for young audiences, one child under 12 will be admitted free with the purchase of a adult ticket.

The adventure takes off when the comic servant Androcles removes a large thorn from the paw of the injured Lion. Androcles and the Lion overcome their fear of one another and become friends. The act of bravery and kindness is later returned when the two meet again in the Roman arena.

Emily Plank will direct a cast of student actors. Professor Michael Ballard designed the set and lighting.

Curtain time is 7 p.m., Friday, and 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are $7. Tickets can be ordered by calling the box office at 617-745-3715 or by sending a check to Eastern Nazarene College, Department of Communication Arts, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy MA 02170.

Andrew Card Guest At Historical Society Capital Campaign Kickoff June 1

Andrew H. Card, Jr., Chief of Staff to President George W. Bush, will be the special guest at a buffet inaugurating Quincy Historical Society's Capital Campaign Friday, June 1, at noon, at State Street South, John Adams Building, 1776 Heritage Drive, North Entrance off Newport Ave.

Tickets are $100 per person and may be obtained from the Historical Society at (617) 773-1144 or from Historical Society President Joyce Baker at (617) 471-5439.

"We are pleased and proud that Andrew Card will be our guest," Mrs. Baker said. "His presence underscores the importance of Quincy to the nation's history and how essential it is that we preserve our heritage."

She said that the Society is setting a Capital Campaign target of $250,000.

Funding will be used to achieve four fundamental goals: installation of a new comprehensive exhibit of Quincy history; preserving the structure of the Adams Academy; restoration of the Academy's lobby area; and making information from the Society's collections electronically accessible.

"These steps will enable the Society to fulfill its mission in ways appropriate to the new century," Mrs. Baker said.

Card, a native of Holbrook, was appointed White House Chief of Staff by Bush last Nov. 26. From 1992 to 1993 he served as U.S. Secretary of Transportation under President George Bush and from 1988 to 1992 as Assistant to the President and Deputy Chief of Staff. Card also served in President Reagan's administration and was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives from 1975 to 1983.

Quincy Choral Society Spring Concert Sunday

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

REMOVABLE PARTIAL DENTURES

While patients often prefer fixed partial dentures, there are cases when the dentist may recommend a removable partial denture. A toothless span, for instance, may be too long or there may be too much bone loss. Removable partial dentures replace missing teeth by attaching acrylic or porcelain teeth to a gum-colored plastic base that is connected by a metal or acrylic frame. Metal clasps, which are designed to grasp the abutment tooth or the precision attachments built onto a crowned abutment tooth, help retain the partial denture in the mouth. Precision attachments are generally more aesthetic than metal clasps and they are nearly invisible. To ensure a successful fit, a thorough preplanning evaluation with the dentist is essential.

If you have partial dentures, pay special attention to cleaning the teeth that fit under the denture's metal clasps. Plaque that becomes trapped under the clasps will increase the risk of tooth decay. We can demonstrate how to properly brush and clean between teeth. Selecting a balanced diet for proper nutrition is also important. For more information or to schedule an appointment, please call us at 617-479-6220. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we offer 21st century dental care. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Crowns are necessary with precision attachments on removable partial dentures.

Rice Fritters

On our recent vacation, we went to a Mardi-Gras with our friends Laura and Jim. In addition to throwing beads at all of us, they also threw packages of rice and beans. We were lucky because we got both the beads and the rice and beans.

This particular bag of rice was made with saffron (a seasoning such as curry) so it had a hue to it. After having it for part of our dinner one night, we had some left over. And when our daughter Nancy invited is over for dinner, I decided to make some rice fritters out of the leftovers.

Rice Fritters

2 cups rice (cooked)

1 1/2 tablespoons flour

1 egg

1/4 cup grated romano or parmesan

corn meal or bread crumbs for coating. (used the corn meal this time) olive or vegetable oil for frying

salt and pepper to taste

1 tablespoon fresh parsley (minced)

In a bowl, mix the rice, egg, flour, parsley and grated cheese and blend. If mixture seems watery, just add a smidgen more of the flour. Place the corn meal or crumbs on a piece of wax paper or a paper plate. Take the mixture by tablespoons and coat with the crumbs.

Fry in the hot oil turning until they are golden brown. Drain on a paper towel. Serve hot. They can be heated in the microwave or in a warming oven depending on how much time you have. They are a great side dish for any entree.

Beechwood Life Center Elects New Officers

The Beechwood Community Life Center, East Squantum Street, North Quincy, elected new officers at the recent annual meeting, announces Executive Director Sharron Beals.

Helen Gallahue Irvin was elected president, succeeding Donald Uvanitte. Also elected were: Paul Reynolds, vice president; Judith Paul, secretary, and Atty. William Macdonald, treasurer.

Irvin is president of HGI Associates, a Quincy-based public relations firm and was a legislative aide to U.S. House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

She received her Master of Science degree in public administration and her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Massachusetts and also studied at George Washington University in Washington, D.C. She lives with her husband and daughter in Squantum.

Reynolds, a Real Estate Engineer, is President of Reynolds Company in Marina Bay. He and his wife also live in Marina Bay.

Paul is an educator/counselor with Quincy

Public Schools and a Quincy resident. She is the widow of Cecil Paul, founder of Beechwood Community Life Center and former President of Eastern Nazarene College.

Macdonald is a retired attorney, a community activist and a long-standing member of the Beechwood Board and Executive Committee. He and his wife live in Quincy.

New members elected to Beechwood's Board of Directors were Brendan Smith of Salem Five Cents Savings Bank and Donald McNally of Granite Smith Self-Storage.

Continuing members of the board are:

Herb Fontaine, Atty. Michael Joyce, Peter Racicot, Donald Uvanitte, Caryn Smith, Janet Lanham and Brian Spillane.

Lydon Funeral Home Provides Planting Of Memorial Trees

For the Lydon Funeral Home of Quincy, Earth Day is a year long observance.

The Lydon Funeral Home makes arrangements to have a young tree planted for each service that they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to help renew the forest life in Massachusetts.

These memorial trees are planted on public lands where professional planters determine they are most needed, and they serve more than one purpose. The plantings are meant to bring peace and comfort to the families and to contribute to the health and preservation of the forest. They cleanse the air and provide habitat for wildlife.

The Lydon Funeral Home is a member of the Lofty Oaks Association, a nationwide organization dedicated to renewing forests in all 50 states since 1981.

USS Salem--At Squantum Point Park

A COMPUTER RENDERING of what the 716-foot USS Salem would look like at Squantum Point Park off Marina Bay was created by Quincy resident James Walker, a former crewman and volunteer aboard the museum ship. Walker used nautical charts and a nautical sextant to calculate the measurements to scale, then fit an appropriately sized image into the background using Adobe Photoshop. Walker, who said the actual image seen is of a scale model of the Salem put at a 25 percent angle to provide the correct proportion of width to height, noted the distance from the ship's pier to the West Condo at Marina Bay, seen at right, would be 1,425 feet, roughly the same distance from City Hall to Quincy High School. Photo was taken from just off the Southeast Expressway in Dorchester before the gas tanks.

Honored By City Council

Merrymount Students Create Wildlife Sanctuary

The hard work and dedication of 11 students from the fourth and fifth grades of the Merrymount Elementary School has paid off with the recent designation of a section of school property as an Urban Wildlife Sanctuary.

The students, who met four times after school during the Fall of 2000 under the direction of Mary Smith, a parent and local landscape architect, include: Grade 4 students Briana Kiley, Krenare Loxha, Lindsay Dockham, Scott Vallatini, Ellen Einsidler, Deirdre Lombard, Ryan Martini, Benjamin Francisco, and Thomas Ahern; and Grade 5

students John Costello and Sarah Vu.

The roughly 200 by 160 foot section of woodland at the side and back edge of the Merrymount School received the designation in March from the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS), joining more than 250 public and private properties that have been certified by the HSUS as valuable wildlife habitats.

Recently the students and Smith presented an official HSUS sign and certificate to Merrymount Principal Kathleen Kelly.

The students themselves were honored May 7 by the City Council in recognition of their community service efforts.

Smith and the students will continue their efforts at the sanctuary with the planting of viburnum shrubs.

"The children were very enthusiastic about the idea of improving the habitat for the animals," said Smith, president of Mary Smith Associates, who guided the students through the process and helped prepare the application for the sanctuary designation. "They were very observant."

The students, Smith said, spent their time walking the site, making both "existing conditions" and "proposed improvements" maps and discussing various ideas for improvements to the school property so that it could receive the "Urban Wildlife Sanctuary" designation.

As part of their work the students marked interesting items and creatures on their maps, from the locations of trees and shrubs to birds and various nests and even the home of a local cat named Sylvester, dubbed "Killer" by the children for his abilities in catching chipmunks.

Student proposals to improve the habitat and make the area more "wildlife-friendly" included mouse houses, bird and squirrel houses, rockpiles, birdhouses and birdbaths, and various plantings such as bushes with thorns or berries or wildflowers.

After much discussion, the students decided not to banish dogs or cats, build snake houses, or create piles of cut shrubs, in consideration of their school's neighbors.

"The suggestions that they finally adopted were very thoughtful," said Smith. "The items cover the requirements of 'habitat,' food and shelter, that the children discussed. They are not hard to care for, require minimal effort to install, and are not offensive to nearby residents."

"In addition, the improvements are long-lived, permanent installations that represent 'stewardship' to the children -- doing what they can to make the school property more hospitable to wild creatures."

Smith praised the students for their commitment, noting one student who rearranged her family's vacation plans because she could not miss working on the site.

Smith was not alone in her praise of the Merrymount students. Said Margaret Baird, assistant director of the Urban Wildlife Sanctuary Program for the HSUS:

"We are overjoyed to welcome the Merrymount School and its dedicated staff, students, and parents into the program. In today's world of suburban sprawl and habitat fragmentation, the creation of a wildlife sanctuary on school grounds, where children will be exposed to the sights and sounds of wild creatures and see the concepts of humane stewardship in action, is integral to increasing our understanding and enjoyment of urban wildlife."

The Urban Wildlife Sanctuary designation signifies that those responsible for the area have demonstrated their dedication towards preserving a wildlife habitat and resolving human-wildlife conflicts in a humane manner.

Members receive a free copy of Wild Neighbors: The Humane Approach to Living With Wildlife and a complimentary one-year subscription to Wild Neighbors News, a quarterly publication offering seasonal suggestions for helping wildlife, ideas for enhancing habitats, and feature articles on urban wildlife species.

"Virtually any property has the potential to provide some or all of the necessities wild animals need to survive," added Baird. "From an apartment balcony to a large tract of rural land, all it takes is a sincere desire to help wild animals by preserving and enhancing habitat and a commitment to resolving conflicts with wildlife using humane approaches."

The HSUS Urban Wildlife Sanctuary Program is open to all -- individuals, homeowners, neighborhood associations, community organizations, municipal governments, corporate property owners, and developers -- with an interest in making cities and towns more hospitable for wildlife.

Gutro Seeks Quick Action On Potholes Sidewalk Repairs

Doug Gutro, Ward 5 city council candidate, is seeking quick action on the patching of potholes and repairs to streets and sidewalks in the ward.

Gutro, Tuesday submitted a petition with the names of more than 150 residents to Mayor James Sheets and Public Works Commissioner David Colton calling for the work to be done. Along with the petition was a list of streets he said were in need of repair.

"Certain streets in this city have been disproportionately dealt a bad hand after this winter," said Gutro. "A day hasn't gone by, when someone hasn't mentioned to me the need for road and sidewalk repairs."

"Potholes in particular pose safety hazards to drivers and pedestrians alike. With this many potholes in the city, it is easy to imagine a rise in front-end alignments of accident rates."

Gutro cited several well-traveled streets he said are in need of pothole repair, including Hancock St., Fenno St., Elm Ave., Beach St., Woodward Ave., Dimmock St. and Burgin Parkway. Other streets in need of pothole repair include: Bigelow St., Cedar St., Clay St., Colonial Drive, Glendale Road, Greenleaf St., Hamden Circle, Hamilton St., Linden Ave., Marlboro St., Merrymount Ave., Rice Rd., St. Ann's Rd., Wayland St., Wendell Ave., Willet St., and Willow Ave.

Gutro commended the Public Works Highway Department for establishing a hotline for residents who want to report potholes. The number is 617-376-1914. "Commissioner Colton and John Catalano have put a system in place to address these hazards," Gutro said. "We as residents need to be vigilant about reporting problem areas."

Gutro also called on Sheets to expedite road and sidewalk repairs, calling them "basic city services."

"Many streets, especially those along bus routes, don't even have sidewalks with curbing," he said. "Crumbling sidewalks are a safety hazard for seniors and make navigating a baby carriage a real challenge." "There are few things that correlate more directly to neighborhood quality of life and public safety than well paved streets and sidewalks."

The Finance Committee of the City Council made no cuts Monday night to Mayor James Sheets proposed $193 million budget, leaving the total cut so far at $28,200.

Four departments -- Inspectional Services, Traffic Control, Council on Aging, and the Harbormaster -- were held back at the request of various councillors and will be addressed during the committee's final meeting scheduled for Thursday, June 7.

"Whatever we cut will be minuscule," said Councillor Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee, explaining that there weren't many areas to cut in the mayor's already tight budget.

At the committee's first meeting May 10, councillors voted to trim $28,200 from the budget, including $20,000 from the Elections Department.

The rationale, McCauley said, was that there would be less elections in the city this year than last, with the possibility of preliminary elections held only in Wards 3 and 5.

An important benefit of the budget process, McCauley added, was that it provided councillors the opportunity to meet face to face with all city department heads, giving councillors a better understanding and oversight of department and city needs.

"WHAT IS A FOREIGN BODY REACTION?"

A "Foreign Body Reaction" is as the name implies, a reaction to a substance that enters some part of the body. In the foot, the reaction takes place in the top layers of the skin, depending how far the foreign substance has penetrated. Foreign bodies may include splinters, glass, nylon fibers, metal particles, etc. The invading particle can be trapped by the body in the form of a cystic (balloon-like) structure that may be fluid-filled. A defect may be seen on the skin where the structure forms and can be felt as well. Sometimes the foreign particle (or part of it) may be "pushed out" through the skin surface followed by some draining material. At times this is enough to resolve the condition.

If the condition worsens, there are some treatment options. At first, one of the most important things is to resolve and/or contain an infection that may form at the site. Usually a combination of oral antibiotics and gentle probing and draining of the area may be enough. If the condition fails to improve, a more aggressive surgical approach may be necessary. This may involve a skin incision and removal of the abnormal tissue either with the help of a local anesthetic or a more involved procedure in the hospital. The removal of the tissue will also help identify what the problem was when analyzed by a Pathologist.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 617-773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

The hard work and dedication of 11 students from the fourth and fifth grades of the Merrymount Elementary School has paid off with the recent designation of a section of school property as an Urban Wildlife Sanctuary.

The students, who met four times after school during the Fall of 2000 under the direction of Mary Smith, a parent and local landscape architect, include: Grade 4 students Briana Kiley, Krenare Loxha, Lindsay Dockham, Scott Vallatini, Ellen Einsidler, Deirdre Lombard, Ryan Martini, Benjamin Francisco, and Thomas Ahern; and Grade 5

students John Costello and Sarah Vu.

The roughly 200 by 160 foot section of woodland at the side and back edge of the Merrymount School received the designation in March from the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS), joining more than 250 public and private properties that have been certified by the HSUS as valuable wildlife habitats.

Recently the students and Smith presented an official HSUS sign and certificate to Merrymount Principal Kathleen Kelly.

The students themselves were honored May 7 by the City Council in recognition of their community service efforts.

Smith and the students will continue their efforts at the sanctuary with the planting of viburnum shrubs.

"The children were very enthusiastic about the idea of improving the habitat for the animals," said Smith, president of Mary Smith Associates, who guided the students through the process and helped prepare the application for the sanctuary designation. "They were very observant."

The students, Smith said, spent their time walking the site, making both "existing conditions" and "proposed improvements" maps and discussing various ideas for

Cleaner, Greener Challenge Winners Announced

The 12th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy took place under sunny skies Saturday as teams from around the city cleaned, planted, and improved parks, beaches, and open space areas in an effort to win the title of "Cleaner, Greener Quincy Challenge Champions."

The City of Quincy has announced the winners of the first Cleaner, Greener Quincy Challenge. The challenge was a new component added to the annual city-wide volunteer clean up effort. More than 15 teams, comprised of close to 1,000 volunteers, vied for the title.

The first place winners were the Houghs Neck HOPE/Marsh Madness group led by P.J. Foley. This group of almost 50 volunteers cleaned six different marshes, parks, and beach areas. The group cleaned more than 80 yards of debris from the marshes and beaches in Houghs Neck.

Second place went to the Shoreside Beach volunteers from Post Island. Led by Allan Mullaney, this group toiled for hours removing the significant amount of driftwood, sea grass, and other debris that washed up on Shoreside Beach during this winter's many bad storms.

Six dump trucks helped carry the debris cleaned off the beach by this group of volunteers.

Third place recognition went to North Quincy High School Interact Club, led by Don and Lynne Houghton, who cleaned and planted the area at the intersection of East Squantum St. and Hancock St. The Interact Group planted more than a dozen new plants and mulched in planting beds on both sides of the high school.

"I would like to congratulate all of the participants in the 12th annual Cleaner, Greener Quincy," said Mayor James Sheets. "The work of all of the volunteers is deeply appreciated. Because of their hard work and efforts, we will all benefit from a more beautiful city."

Following the cleanup, volunteers enjoyed hot dogs, hamburgers, soda, and fun and games at Mayor Sheets' appreciation barbecue at the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex. Stop & Shop Supermarkets donated the food and refreshments for the barbecue.

"We enjoyed another successful Cleaner, Greener Quincy program this year because of our hard-working volunteers throughout the city," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. "The temperatures were much hotter than anticipated yet we still had a great number of volunteers toiling away to make our city cleaner."

"I appreciate all the help we got from our volunteers and the assistance of the Department of Public Works, the Recreation Department, and Stop & Shop Supermarkets."

Veterans' Flags Sought For Flag Day Parade

The Keohane Funeral Homes and the Quincy Flag Day Committee are seeking veterans' flags for display during the 50th annual Quincy Flag Day Parade and Celebration Saturday, June 16.

The Flag Day Committee will honor veterans of this country by displaying their flags during the parade.

Families of deceased veterans should drop their flag or flags off at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. The flags will be placed on a float to be displayed in the parade and can be picked up after the parade. Flags must be dropped off before June 14 to be included in the parade.

"The Flag Day Committee hopes to honor the people who served the flag which we celebrate and protected the values that the flag represents," said Edward Keohane, proprietor of Keohane Funeral Homes and a member of the Quincy Flag Day Committee. "The veterans' flag display provides us all an opportunity to appreciate the sacrifices made by our veterans."

The parade will begin on Coddington Street in Quincy Center at 6:30 p.m. It will proceed to Hancock Street and head north before turning down Merrymount Parkway. The parade will end on Merrymount Parkway at the entrance to Pag-eant Field.

Following the parade, there will be a flag-raising ceremony featuring the raising of a 30 foot by 60 foot version of Old Glory. The night will be capped off by a fireworks display over Black's Creek.

Speakers at the workshop will discuss different stages of the homebuying process, including mortgage qualification, working with real estate agents, home inspections and the role of closing attorneys.

Completion of the workshop is a requirement for different below market rate mortgage programs through Mass Housing Finance Agency and Soft Second Programs. A downpayment assistance program up to $10,000 is also available for eligible applicants.

QCAP is a certified U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) Housing Counseling agency. Aside from providing first-time homebuyer counseling, QCAP also offers a variety of housing services for both homeowners and renters.

Advance registration for the workshop is required. For more information about the workshop and to register, call Nelson Wong, housing coordinator, at 617-479-8181, ext. 115.

Four Ways To Save On Your Electric Bill

Skyrocketing electric bills. Blackouts. Brownouts. As electricity becomes more scarce and more expensive, you can help yourself, the environment and the economy by taking some simple steps to conserve power.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), lighting accounts for 20 to 25 percent of all electricity in the United States. That's why the Leviton Institute recommends that you install energy-efficient lighting devices. They can have a big impact by significantly reducing electric consumption.

Here are four tips from the Leviton Institute that can take the effort out of saving dollars on your electric bill.

- Install dimmers switches. By dimming the lights in a room, you use less electricity. For example, a light bulb at 50 percent brightness uses approximately 40 percent less electricity. A dimmer switch also extends the life of your bulbs. A bulb at 50 percent brightness will last approximately 20 times longer.

- Install occupancy sensors. An occupancy sensor automatically turns lights on when someone enters a room, and then turns them off after the person leaves the area. They're ideal for closets, hallways, the laundry room and garages — all the places where lights may needlessly be left on for hours, or even days. Occupancy sensors are designed to replace standard wall switches, so they're easy to install.

- Install motion detectors outside. Many homeowners know that outdoor lighting makes their home less appealing to a burglar. But keeping outdoor floodlights on all night can be expensive. Instead, install a motion detector to control your outdoor security lights. Motion detectors are designed to react to body heat. When they detect the presence of a person, they automatically turn on the outside lights. When they no longer detect the presence of body heat, they turn the lights off.

- Install digital timers. If anyone in your family has left a bathroom exhaust fan on all day, you'll appreciate the convenience of timers — and the fact that they can reduce energy consumption. The latest digital timers are installed right in the wall, wherever you would put a standard wall switch. Some models come from the factory with present time intervals; others offer programmable time settings. To use a timer with a preset interval, simply push the button for the length of time you want the fan or lamp to be on. The timer will turn it off automatically. You can use digital timers with longer time intervals to control landscape lighting.

So, instead of constantly reminding your family to turn off the lights when they leave a room, consider installing one or more of these new electrical devices. They take the effort out of saving electricity and they'll pay for themselves quickly with the amount of electricity they save.

South Shore Coastal Bank Donates $10,000 To USS Salem

In a strong show of support for Quincy's shipbuilding legacy, South Coastal Bank has donated $10,000 to help fund general operations and education programs for the USS Salem.

The heavy cruiser was built at the Quincy Shipyard during World War II and is now home to the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

John O'Connor, president and CEO of South Coastal Bank, officially marked the bank's contribution with Mayor James Sheets aboard the USS Salem.

The bank's contribution, O'Connor said, is based on its commitment to investing in the communities in which it operates. South Coastal Bank opened a banking office at 1259 Hancock St. in Quincy Center last November.

"We are proud to support the preservation and education efforts provided by the staff and volunteers of the USS Salem," O'Connor said. "Our business philosophy of providing exemplary customer service is extremely compatible with the shipbuilding museum's philosophy of providing outstanding educational opportunities."

South Coastal Bank is an independent, state chartered mutual bank. The bank and its employees have a long history of commitment to the community. Founded in 1868, South Coastal Bank has branches in Braintree, Carver, Quincy, Rockland and Scituate.

Dr. Daniel Sweeney To Attend Cosmetic Dentistry Conference

Local dentist Daniel P. Sweeney, DDS, will attend the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry's 17th Annual Scientific Session in Boston later this month.

The American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry (AACD) is the world's largest and most respected authority on the fastest growing field in dentistry.

According to a recent study by a leading dental publication, 78 percent of dentists pursue their continuing education in the field of cosmetic dentistry. In the last five years, demand for cosmetic whitening treatments among consumers has increased by over 300 percent.

"I am excited to attend the educational weekend in Boston," Dr. Sweeney said. "With the knowledge I gain through the AACD and its Scientific Session, I stay up-to-date and excel in the cosmetic dental field."

Dr. Sweeney will attend continuing education courses taught by some of the most respected names in cosmetic dentistry, as well as have the opportunity to learn how to join a small percentage of dentists worldwide boasting the prestigious accredited status within the AACD. Dr. Sweeney can look forward to approximately eight workshops per day with a wide range of topics

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Protective Bicycle Helmets Save Lives

If the summer of 2001 is anything like the past few summers, more than 400 Americans, nearly one-third under the age of 16, will die in bicycle-related accidents.

In recent years more than 750 people have lost their lives annually from injuries received while bicycling. The real tragedy is these numbers is that many of the deaths can be avoided if bicyclists wear protective helmets.

Statistics compiled by the John Hopkins Injury Prevention Center in Baltimore, Md., show head injuries account for 70-80 percent of fatal bicycle injuries. The National Safe Kids Campaign estimates that 75 percent of bicycle-related fatalities among children, and 85 percent of bicycle-related head injuries overall, could be avoided if the bicyclists wore protective headgear.

However, not just any helmet will do, particularly for a child. Catherine E. O'Connor, M.D., vice chair of the Committee on School Health and Sports Medicine at the Massachusetts Medical Society, said there are a number of factors to consider, not the least of which is the child's preference.

"Let the kid pick [the helmet] out," she said. "Even if it's a present, get a gift certificate and allow the child to make a selection. What you as an adult feel is cool is not necessarily what your child likes or will wear."

Dr. O'Connor suggests schools and pediatricians should counsel children on the importance of helmet use. She also believes parents should work together to make sure their children's friends wear helmets.

"If your child is the only kid in the neighborhood wearing a helmet he or she will feel 'out of it,' and getting them to put the helmet on and keep it on will be very difficult," she said.

Parents need to provide direction in the selection process as well, according to Dr. O'Connor. Some guidelines

QUINCY KIWANIS CLUB will host its annual Family Safety Day Saturday, May 9 on the Parkway in Quincy Center. Among those planning the event are President Bob Bunstein (left) and Vice President John McGillivray. Quincy school students are invited to participate in the bicycle safety day which will feature a miniature roadway designed to help teach youngsters bicycle safety. The safety day program starts at 9:30 a.m. Bicycle helmets will also be sold at a nominal fee.

- Be sure the helmet carries the endorsement of the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPS). An identifying sticker can usually be found inside the helmet.
- Make sure the helmet fits snugly. Children's models usually have foam inserts so the size can be adjusted.
- Wear the helmet correctly. It should sit on the top of the head in a level position and should not rock back and forth.
- Adjust the chinstraps to fit snugly under the chin with the V of the side straps meeting evenly, just below the ear on both sides. Keep the straps buckled at all times during use.
- The cost of the helmet is not necessarily indicative of its effectiveness. Some inexpensive helmets provide excellent protection.

So far 18 states have adopted mandatory protective headgear laws for riders under age 17. Massachusetts law requires children 12 and younger who are operating a bicycle or being carried as a passenger to wear a helmet. Legislation submitted this year would raise the age limit to 17 and include helmet use for bicycles and all non-motorized wheeled sports, such as in-line skating, skateboarding and scooter riding.

Another bill filed by the Massachusetts Medical Society mandates that shops renting bicycles, in-line skates or scooters also offer helmets and other protective gear for rent. Both bills are still pending before the legislature.

May Is Better Sleep Month

Forty-seven percent of adults would like to improve the quality of their sleep, and 37 percent feel they do not get enough sleep, according to a new survey conducted by the Better Sleep Council (BSC).

"Growing demands on our lives and endless 'to-do' lists can make it difficult to get enough sleep," says Andrea Herman, director of the BSC. "However, it's important to make sleep a priority and to strive to get the best quality sleep that we can."

"We all have too much to do, so make the most out of your time in bed. Sleep in a cool, quiet, dark room on a comfortable, supportive mattress to help ensure a great night's sleep. How well you sleep at night can make all the difference in how productive you'll be the next day."

Because your mattress plays such an important role in how well you sleep, the BSC recommends that you ask yourself the following questions:

- Do you wake up with pain, stiffness or soreness?
- Are you not sleeping as well as you were a year ago?
- Was your best night's sleep somewhere other than your own bed?
- Does your mattress shows visible signs of wear and tear?

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, your mattress could be affecting the quality of your sleep. An uncomfortable mattress can rob you of sleep, causing you to toss and turn and preventing you from deriving the full benefit of your time in bed. Sleeping on a mattress that meets your needs for comfort, support and space can help you sleep better.

"Your mattress is such an easy factor to control, yet so few people think about how comfortable they sleep on sleep on their mattress," Herman said.

Here are 10 tips to help you get the sleep you need and deserve:

- Give yourself "permission" to go to bed. As hard as it may be to put away your "to do" list, make sleep a "priority." You'll thank yourself in the morning.
- Unwind early in the evening. Try to deal with worries and distractions several hours before bedtime.
- Develop a sleep ritual. Doing the same things each night just before bed signals your body to settle down for the night.
- Keep regular hours. Keep your biological clock in check by going to bed around the same time each night and waking up close to the same time each morning — even on weekends.
- Create a restful place to sleep. Sleep in a cool, quiet, dark room.
- Sleep on a comfortable, supportive mattress and foundation. It's difficult to sleep on a bed that's too small, too soft, too hard or too old.
- Exercise regularly. Regular exercise can help relieve daily tension and stress — but don't exercise too close to bedtime or you may have trouble falling asleep.
- Cut down on stimulants. Consuming stimulants, such as caffeine, in the evening can make it more difficult to fall asleep.
- Don't smoke. Smokers take longer to fall asleep and wake up more often during the night.
- Reduce alcohol intake. Drinking alcohol shortly before bedtime interrupts and fragments sleep.

The Better Sleep Guide provides simple solutions to help improve the quality of sleep, as well as information on how the bedroom and mattress can affect the quality of sleep. It is free to consumers. Send request to: Guide, P.O. Box 19534, Alexandria, VA 22320.

SPORTS

Quincy Softball In Playoff Hunt

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School softball team can't include itself among the league's elite yet and it certainly isn't stuck to the bottom like it has been in recent years.

Eleven games into the season, the Presidents find themselves in the middle of the pack along with Falmouth, which is more than what head coach Mike Sedar expected at the beginning of the season.

Thanks to one bad inning, Quincy (5-7 overall, 5-5 OCL) suffered a 14-2 loss at Silver Lake (11-2, 8-2) Monday afternoon. After playing the Lakers well in the first meeting, a 5-3 loss, the Presidents were holding their own again before the Lakers scored five runs in the third to break open a 3-2 game.

Quincy defeated a team it should beat last Friday, whipping Barnstable, 18-10, at home, and last Wednesday it suffered a 9-0 loss to powerhouse Taunton (14-1, 9-0) for the second time this season.

Despite one win in their last three games, the Presidents still have a shot at the state tournament if they can win three of their final five games. They played Falmouth yesterday (Wednesday), and today they travel to Braintree and tomorrow they host Plymouth South at 4 p.m.

Against Silver Lake, junior Michelle Pilalas went 3 for 4. Freshman Kaitlyn Markham entered the game in the third inning and shined defensively at third base and added a single. The offense couldn't pick up where it left off against Plymouth South.

In that game, Quincy pounded out a season-high 19 hits, led by sophomore Liz Campbell who went a perfect 5 for 5 with three RBIs. Sophomore Diane Gilbody went 2 for 5 with two RBIs. Catcher Stephanie Roach turned in a strong game behind the plate.

Freshman pitcher Rachel Sorenson returned from knee surgery and pitched four innings in relief of sophomore Stacey Andrew, allowing just four hits and one run.

Raiders Baseball Clinch Berth

The North Quincy baseball team celebrated its second straight berth in the state tournament last week, and the fifth in the past six years.

Monday evening, however, its mood changed as it was left wondering what it takes to win one-run games.

After knotting the game at 7-7 in the top of the seventh inning Monday afternoon, North Quincy witnessed Falmouth score the game-winner in the bottom half as the Clippers knocked off the Red Raiders for the second time this season.

North Quincy (10-5 overall, 6-4 OCL) pulled a similar stunt last Friday afternoon when it dropped another one-run game, 2-1, to Taunton at home. The Red Raiders topped Silver Lake, 3-1, at home last Wednesday in their tournament-clinching performance.

North Quincy traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday) and it will host first-place Barnstable (12-4, 8-2) Saturday at noon.

In the Falmouth game, senior Keith Doherty picked up the loss as he struck out six in a complete-game effort. Junior Wayne Moynihan went 2 for 4 with two runs scored. Seniors Chris Doherty and Mike Keddy each had two hits and two RBIs, while junior Mike Feetham drove in three runs.

Meet Washington Morisset: Presidents' Track Phenom

When Washington Morisset prepares for the high jump, the entire meet literally stops in its tracks and gathers around the slim, 6-foot-1, 145-pounder to watch him as he effortlessly floats toward another level of stardom.

That's the type of attention you attract after jumping 6 feet 9 inches — twice — when you're only a sophomore.

"The whole meet stops to watch this kid jump," says Scott King, his track coach at Quincy High School. "That's how phenomenal this kid is. He's so young. He's only 16 years old. When he goes to these meets, he is the man. People look at him and go, 'that's the kid, that's the kid,' because he is just so amazing."

The latest record-breaking hop came last Saturday at the 29th annual Boys' State Coaches Invitational in Danvers. Only a week removed from his first 6-9 performance, Morisset cleared 6-9 again, eclipsing the previous meet record set in 1983 by an inch and receiving the meet's outstanding field events award.

"He had the performance of the meet," King says. "He set a new meet record, one that had stood for 18 years. He tried to jump 6-11 but didn't make it. There's still five more meets and that gives him five more shots to do it."

If Morisset makes 6-11, he'll qualify for the nationals. Although there isn't a sense of urgency, it's something Morisset and King would like to see happen sooner rather than later. And once he reaches that magic number, it's only a matter of time before he is leaping seven-foot giants.

"I'm trying hard for the nationals," says a confident Morisset last Friday afternoon. "By the end of this year I'll probably get seven."

No doubt. He has five meets to add three more inches to his jump. Considering he recently added four inches in four days, he has a realistic shot at the seven-foot plateau. In the May 1 meet at Plymouth South, Morisset did 6-5 — in his basketball sneakers. That Saturday, May 5, he cleared 6-9 for the first time at the Freshman/Sophomore Invitational at Carver, shattering the meet record by five inches and breaking the school record set in 1991 by an inch.

"He forget his track shoes and he jumped 6-5," says King, astonishingly. "He came back that Saturday and jumped 6-9. In the years I've been coaching I've never seen a kid, a sophomore, jump 6-9. Never. Usually high jumpers mature when their juniors or seniors. You seldom see a sophomore wandered into King's office to sign up for sport he knew nothing about.

That first day, King saw Morisset jumping and asked him to try the high jump.

"Coach saw me and said, 'You'd probably be good at the high jump. Give it a try.' And I tried it and jumped 5' 8," Morisset recalls.

He ended up jumping six feet that indoor season. By the end of spring his name was well known across the state. He leaped 6-4, the best recorded high jump for a freshman in New England. He won the Old Colony League championship and the Freshman/Sophomore Invitational at Carver. He finished second at the Class B state meet and sixth at the State Coaches meet.

"I knew he was good. I just didn't know he was that good," King says. "Now, he's just above and beyond anyone else at his age. He amazes me at every single meet. He's so much bigger and stronger and more mature than he was last year, and you can really see it in his jumping."

"It didn't take me that long [to reach this level] because I have a good coach, and there's a lot of hard work and training involved," Morisset says.

"He's really going to put Quincy on the map as far as track because he's just so good," King says. "If he keeps going the way he's going, within the next two years, geez, I can't see him not being one of the top 5 in the nation. He's like a dream athlete for a coach."

YMCA Soccer Club Seeking Players

The South Shore YMCA Dash Soccer Club is looking for dedicated soccer players, under 15, to compete in the Maple (Club) Division II spring soccer season.

Practices are at Derby Academy in Hingham and at the South Shore YMCA Mill Pond branch in Hanover. Games are Sunday at 1, 2:45 and 4 p.m. Remaining games are at Derby Academy.

The club is coached by Kevin Orcutt, a nationally B licensed coach by the U.S. Soccer Federation. Orcutt has played professional soccer for many years and has recently been named the Quincy High School head soccer coach for the fall season.

Orcutt is also looking for high school varsity players, grades 9-12, to compete in a separate program that he designed and will run this summer.

The program is an outdoor summer league, including tournaments to prepare players for the fall high school soccer season.

For more information call Orcutt at 781-837-7764.

Golf Tournament to Benefit Affordable Housing Funds

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore and Father Bill's Place will host the second annual Mulligan Golf Tournament Friday, June 15, at the Pembroke Country Club.

The tournament provides a forum for the collection of affordable housing funds for working people in need of a home. Last year the tournament raised over $15,000.

The proceeds generated from the Mulligan Tournament help to fund affordable housing ventures.

NHS of the South Shore is a public, private partnership devoted to neighborhood revitalization by promoting, developing and maintaining affordable housing. Father Bill's Place is a service provider committed to moving homeless people from the dependency of shelter to independence within the community.

In addition to golf, there will be a dinner, silent auction and prizes. For more information regarding participation and sponsorship, call Robert Corley at 617-770-2227, ext. 21.

Brendan Bubencik Memorial Golf Tourney

The fourth annual Brendan Bubencik Memorial Golf Tournament to benefit the research of meningitis at Children's Hospital in Boston will be held Sunday, August 5 at the Easton Country Club.

In 1997, Brendan Bubencik died from bacterial meningitis, an inflammation of the tissues which cover the brain and spinal cord, at just four months and 25 days old.

Bubencik, who lived in Foxboro, has a large extended family, including his aunt and grandparents, who live in Quincy.

Cost for individual golf is $100, a foursome is $400 and a hole sponsor is $75.

All donations can be made to Brendan Bubencik Research Trust and sent to: The Bubencik's at Eagle Stables, 10 Discovery Way, Franklin, MA 02038. The tourney has raised over $40,000 in Brendan's name to date.

RELIGION

Rev. Msgr. Peter Hart To Celebrate 65th Ordination Anniversary

Rev. Msgr. Peter F. Hart will celebrate a mass at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck, Sunday, May 27, at 10:30 a.m. to commemorate the 65th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Monsignor Hart was ordained May 22, 1936, at the Holy Cross Cathedral by Cardinal William O'Connell. He graduated from Boston College in 1931 prior to entering the seminary.

Monsignor Hart's first assignment as an ordained priest was at Most Blessed Sacrament Church where he served from 1936 through 1945. While at Blessed Sacrament he set up a number of youth and sports programs. He also established a Boy Scout troop. Among those who participated in the church programs and served as altar boys included former Mayors Walter Hannon and Frank McCauley as well as former City Council President Leo Kelly and the late Police Chief Francis Finn.

After leaving Blessed Sacrament in the summer of 1945, Monsignor Hart served at St. Catherine's in Somerville, St.

REV. MSGR. PETER HART

James' in Boston's South End, and St. William's in Dorchester.

He then became pastor at St. Jude's in Norfolk, where he also served as Roman Catholic chaplain at the Norfolk Correctional Institute. He became pastor of St. Clement's in Somerville until his retirement in 1984. He was elevated to the rank of Monsignor in April, 1967.

Since his retirement, he served in the bishop's office in Lowell and for a number of years has assisted at St. Pius V in Lynn.

A reception will follow the anniversary mass at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Thomas Jefferson once said: "When angry, count ten before you speak, if very angry, a hundred."

Anger can be a helpful endowment if it is kept under control. Without it, injustices in life would be allowed to pass by without either protest or understanding.

But anger can be tricky. It can easily get out of hand... When it becomes a burning rage, it becomes a distinct liability and can become troublesome and dangerous.

One cannot imagine life on this planet without fire. Yet fire, when it gets out of hand, is ravaging beyond description. Anger, like fire, can get out of hand and be ravaging too.

A person who lets anger get out of control needs to call upon as many "fire departments" he can to help him get the burning rage under control.

Anger properly controlled can be good, but anger, like fire, can destroy. Anger may be a necessary factor of life, but it performs only under strict control. Remember, anger is often more harmful than the injury that caused it!

Children's Mental, Emotional Health

By LAURA ORTH
Program Director, Child And Family Services
Bayview Associates

When we think of children's health we often think of an ear infection, immunizations, or little scrapes, bumps, and bruises. Seldom do the mental and emotional aspects of children's development come to mind. But mental health is a critical component of children's overall well being.

However, children don't just sit down and say they are feeling depressed or think they might be suffering from an anxiety disorder. Rather, they tell us these things with their behavior. So it is important for parents and caregivers, who are usually the first to notice that a child is behaving differently, to know what behaviors might be signaling a problem.

Signals Of A Problem
Since family members and caregivers are usually the first to notice if a child is having emotional or behavioral problems, it is important to recognize the signs that may indicate the child's need for help. New, persistent behaviors to look for include:

- Marked change in usual behavior
- Sudden decline in school performance
- Loss of interest in usual childhood activities
- Constant worry (e.g., talking about things over and over again) or anxiety (e.g., separation problems)
- Persistent nightmares
- Frequent temper tantrums, disobedience, or aggression
- Change in toileting habits (e.g., the sudden occurrence of bedwetting)
- Sadness or irritability

LAURA ORTH

What You Can Do

• If your child has suddenly begun any of these behaviors, it may be a warning sign that he or she is having an emotional difficulty. The best thing you can do to help your child is to take some extra time to talk to them. Try to find out what might be bothering them. If you find that talking isn't helping, it may indicate the need for professional evaluation and assistance.

Where To Go For Help

If you have tried talking to your child, but still haven't discovered what is bothering your child, talk to your pediatrician about seeking help from a licensed therapist who is trained to assess whether or not your child has a mental health problem.

Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health, has licensed psychologists, social workers, and psychiatrists that can help. Call (617) 847-1950 for more information.

South Shore Mental Health is a community resource providing mental health and substance abuse services throughout the South Shore, Southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep that Arian temper tamed despite someone's efforts to provoke you into an emotional reaction. You'll be able to gloat later when you're seen as the hero, and the goader a zero.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Music is fавored at this time. Go to a concert or, better yet, have some folks over to your (typically Tauran) beautifully decorated home, and get everyone to entertain.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Great news! Someone who caused you some anxious moments in recent weeks is moving out of your life. This is a good time to take or plan a special vacation.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A hitherto unknown person might make a claim that could jeopardize your property rights. Consider having all pertinent documents checked by an expert in real estate law.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You love to be flattered—and, no doubt, you do deserve all the flattery you get. But be careful that all that praise isn't meant to distract you from the flatterer's true agenda.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An old flame wants to rekindle the spark of love. But while the thought of reconciliation warms your heart, be careful that you don't get singled during Cupid's re-entry.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You're at a point where one of your shakier ventures is starting to settle down and could soon be showing solid results. Another venture remains on the "iffy" list.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A situation that troubled your kinfolk for so long is winding down and will soon be just a footnote in your family history. A co-worker has an idea worth considering.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Career moves are favored for the Sagittarian Archer looking for a change. Check out fields that are both interesting and have a high potential for growth.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Shifting workplace conditions could force you to change your long-time method of operation to one that is more in tune with the times. Keep an open mind, and go with the flow.

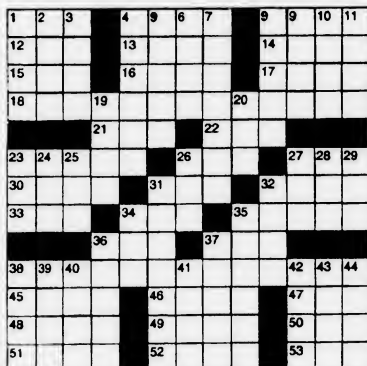

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The aspects of love are strong for Aquarians, both paired and single. Someone also loves a work project that you've just completed. Expect to hear more about that soon.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You need more than trust when you're ready to take the plunge into the deep waters of a major business deal. You need facts to back up what you're being told.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to sing, and you have those fine Tauran pipes (Streisand is your sign-mate) to prove it. You excel in both business and the arts.

A Message From Impact Quincy

Community Guidelines, Alternatives For Alcohol Abuse

By WILLIAM SPINKS

As a community, we begin the spring and summer of 2001 faced with concerns about alcohol use and abuse among Quincy's youth.

While concerns arise during the prom season, schools raise questions throughout the year about an appropriate way to address drinking in/on school premises, drinking at school-sponsored dances or sports events; parents question their legal responsibility as hosts of a teen party in their own home; teenage passengers question their options when their "ride" has been drinking; police question the effectiveness of arresting underage drinkers when they see the same youth repeatedly involved and parents wonder what can be done to improve availability of treatment resources.

Bay State Community Services has prepared the following community guidelines and alternatives for parents, schools and teenagers based on recent studies regarding the use, non-use and abuse of alcohol by teens.

Parents

Parents are a child's first and best protection against alcohol and other drug use. A recent study found that when parents monitor their teenager's behavior such as television watching and music listening, they are less likely to smoke, drink or use illicit drugs (AP2/21/01). Joseph Califano, chairman of the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, reported that parents who wish to reduce their teen's drug use might consider the following:

- Turn off TV during dinner.
- Assign teens regular chores.
- Ban CD's with offensive lyrics.
- Impose curfews.
- Know where their children are after school.
- Eat dinner with their teens at least six nights a week.

Theresa Walters, execu-

tive director of Emporians for Drug Awareness, suggests that parents should never feel its too early to talk to one's child about these issues. Some samples of non-threatening questions include: "Have you heard about kids using drugs," "Why do you think they do it," "How do kids at school deal with peer pressure to use drugs," and "What do you think works best."

Schools

Last spring, several Norfolk County school systems reported incidents of drinking and drunkenness by students, some who were involved in school-sponsored sports programs. Some suggestions for schools to consider include:

- Establish a policy on the use of alcohol at all school-sponsored events and implement the policy on a consistent basis.

- Train all school personnel on the warning signs of alcohol use and abuse.

- Establish a core team of school personnel as a screening team for any student whose behavior indicates alcohol use/abuse. If alcohol use is observed in/on school premises, refer the student for an alcohol evaluation.

- Disciplinary actions should involve education and treatment as well as other punitive actions such as community services or after school maintenance duties. If a student is suspended for a violation of school policy on alcohol use, the school should always require a minimum of six hours of a community-based alcohol education program and if necessary, ongoing counseling.

- A school counselor or administrator should monitor all students' progress.

Community

Substance abuse hurts more than just the abuser. It resonates throughout our community and demands our involvement on the local level. Unsafe streets, crime, destruction of property, drinking and driving incidents, and vandalism are preventable.

The economic cost was $246 billion in 1992 (NIH 1998); $1,000 for each man, woman and child in the U.S. There are 22 million people with alcohol and drug problems and only one million enrolled in treatment facilities. There is a devastating shortage of substance treatment facilities nationally and locally, especially for women and teenagers. For every dollar spent on prevention, we save $4 to $5 in substance abuse treatment. With the support and recognition by many parents, teens and community leaders, Mayor Sheets identified alcohol as the No. 1 health problem in the city. Impact Quincy's success is best measured by the effective participation of its local citizens in helping to resolve this community problems.

Teens

We know alcohol is the No. 1 drug problem among young people despite the fact it is illegal for persons under 21 to purchase or drink alcohol. Several alcohol laws are in place which address teenage drinking, including illegal transportation of alcohol, fake ID's, procuring alcohol for underage persons, procurement by intimidation, parental liability and social-host liability.

Teenagers often report riding with someone who has been drinking, usually another teenager. A driver who reports consuming "one or two beers" is not alcohol/drug-free. Massachusetts has a Zero Tolerance Law for drivers under 21. Peer pressure contributes to his bad decision at times. Teens who are reluctant to notify parents that they need a ride or have never made a plan with parents if this situation occurred are placing themselves at risk. Some guidelines for teens include:

- Don't get into the car. Only ride with a driver who is alcohol/drug-free.

- Have a back-up plan beforehand if someone has been drinking.

- Parents and teens should come up with an arrangement for their teen to call home if their teen or someone who is driving them has been drinking.

- Teens have a right to expect that a parent will agree to pick them up when requested.

We would like to hear from our readers about these guidelines and other suggestions which the community, teens, parents and schools have found helpful in addressing these complex issues. You can contact Impact Quincy by calling our Prevention Department at 617-472-6027, ext. 127 for Alejandro Rivera or ext. 172 for Lilly Michnik.

William Spinks is the Director of Prevention and Intervention Services for Bay State Community Services, Inc. Through his participation in the creation and development of Impact Quincy, he has been instrumental in engaging the community to address alcohol abuse as a public health issue and especially now to focus on underage drinking by youth.

We need you.

Parking Issue Holds Up Restaurant Opening

the number has been reduced to approximately 147 seats. He said he thought that would change the required amount of spaces needed.

Chairman Joseph Shea said he agreed with Newton and said he wished Tuesday's meeting would "bring this to a head." He asked White if the bar in the restaurant was a "stand alone bar?" and designated men's and ladies' rooms?

White seemed to stand on his zoning violation answer.

Shea said the "notoriety at this address has made this a lengthy case."

Finally what seemed frustration, Shea adjourned the meeting and said he would ask Steve McGrath, city solicitor to meet with the zoning board based on ordinances and past practices.

Sea Scout Open House Aboard USS Salem May 21

The South Shore's newest Sea Scout group, SSS Seawitch 139, will hold an open house Monday, May 21, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. onboard the USS Salem, 739 Washington St., Quincy.

The Sea Scouts are affiliated with the Boy Scouts, though they are a co-ed group catering to young people ages 14-20. The youth members run Sea Scout groups and they decide what activities and direction their groups will go. Seawitch activities include sailing and motor boating, as well as other outdoor activities such as rock climbing and water rafting.

The SSS Seawitch 139 is sponsored by the USS Salem and meets twice a month. For more information call 617-479-7900.

point for designs, said Morrissey.

Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon said that an off-ramp could definitely be constructed and that it could relieve traffic problems in the neighborhood of Montclair and North Quincy in general, which is affected by traffic using back streets en route to the State Street Office Complex.

Gillon used West Squantum, Harvard, and Beale Sts as examples of streets positively impacted by a ramp.

According to Gillon, the exit ramp would run parallel to the right of the Southeast Expressway, then turn left and head underneath the expressway through a tunnel which is currently the opening to Dorchester's new Pope John Paul II Park. It would then connect directly to Gallivan Blvd. and Neponset Circle.

The ramp, Gillon said, had the potential of easing traffic on both sides of the Neponset River Bridge but Boston officials had not wanted to consider the project until their new park, at the site of the former Neponset Drive-In, was completed.

With Dorchester residents now enjoying the benefits of their long awaited park, Gillon said, Boston might re-evaluate the proposed off-ramp.

Another benefit to the ramp, said Gillon, was that peak highway use and peak use of the park were at different times.

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton said that, although he was not ward councillor when Dickinson Development and MBTA officials sought permitting for the project years ago, he wanted to revisit the proposal and make sure there was compliance with what he called "extensive" mitigation.

One promised improvement, Newton said, was the addition of back doors to the North Quincy Fire Station.

Scrutinizing the proposed ramp's effect on traffic, Newton said, would be his top concern, noting the present congestion as well as the construction of new businesses in the area, including Applebee's Restaurant and Panera Bread.

In January of 1998, the City Council unanimously voted to grant air rights over the North Quincy MBTA Parking lot for the construction of a then $39 million, six-story office building and a five-story parking garage. The development plan was originally proposed by Transit Realty Associates, the real estate arm of the MBTA, and North Quincy Transit Associates, a company formed by Quincy developer Mark Dickinson and Boston contractor Robert Walsh.

Attempts to reach Dickinson Development for comment were unsuccessful.

New Budget Could Add Bldg. Inspector, Asst. Solicitor

ered would, with the permission of Library Director Ann McLaughlin, transfer oversight of the library's custodial maintenance position to the DPW's Lester Gerry, although the job would still be a library position for the purposes of labor agreements.

The budget would also create a new crossing guard at Adams St. and Burgin Parkway for the students of Central Middle School as well as give permanent status to two crossing guards who have been working as spares.

The proposed Fiscal Year 2002 budget of 193,002,296 represents a 5.2 percent increase from the current budget of $183,381,916.

Councillor Frank McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, scheduled five budget sessions to review the budget.

Remaining dates are May 16, May 23, and June 7.

The City Council has the ability to cut appropriations from the budget but does not have the power to add to it.

The state must approve the budget by July 1.

Quincy Man Pleads Innocent To Rape

A hearing in the case of a Quincy man facing statutory rape and other charges will be held Friday in Quincy District Court.

William Morrill, 49, of Beebe Road pleaded innocent Friday to charges of statutory rape, indecent assault and battery on a child under 14, indecent assault and battery on a child over 14, posing and exhibiting a child in nudity, posing and exhibiting a child in a sexual act.

Judge James McGovern ordered him held without bail for a dangerous hearing yesterday (Wednesday), but the hearing was continued to Friday, court officials said.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Audrey Cosgrove said the offenses occurred over a period of years involving a girl starting when she was 9 and ending when she was 18 and left to go to college.

Attention Quincy Residents

As of April 16th, 2001 the Quincy DPW will take over the curbside yardwaste collection program from BFI.

Yardwaste may be placed curbside April 16 through December 14, 2001 on your regular trash pickup day.

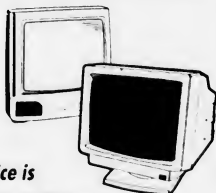

The drop-off facility at the DPW Backyard, 55 rear Sea Street, will still be open to Quincy residents Monday through Saturday from mid-April through mid-December and has been relocated so that residents do not have to drive far into the yard.

$ An incentive program is ongoing for residents who make the effort to drop off their materials and includes FREE YARD WASTE BAGS AND CASH PRIZES! $

It is mandatory that you use brown leaf bags, open barrels or cardboard boxes. No plastic bags will be accepted.

Please bundle/tie (with rope) branches and brush (in 3 foot lengths) separate from grass and leaves. Large tree limbs and heavy brush can be disposed of, unbundled, at the DPW yard.

Computer monitors & TVs, due to lead content, are now being accepted at the DPW drop off-site at 55 Sea Street every Saturday morning 9:00am-noon (except during snowstorms). Residents may drive up to the loading area of the building to place their materials on pallets. As this service is available weekly, year round, there will be no waiting.

Recycling Works! In the past ten years, the national recycling rate has increased from 11% to 27%!

Favors Faxon Field For New Quincy High School McCauley First Councillor To Oppose DPW Site

City Councillor Francis McCauley says he opposes locating the new Quincy High School at the Department of Public Works site.

McCauley said Tuesday that of the two final locations being considered by the Special Siting Commission, he favors Faxon Field.

The former mayor and school committee member, is the first councillor to take a public stand on the two sites.

He noted that while the School Committee will ultimately choose a site for the new high school, it is the City Council that will, in effect, have the final say.

FRANCIS McCAULEY

"Six of the nine councillors must vote in favor of the bond issue that will pay for the school construction project," he said.

McCauley said he has closely followed the deliberations of the Special Siting Commission and had met recently with DPW Commissioner David Colton.

"It makes absolutely no sense to me to demolish a perfectly good DPW complex that is centrally located and move it to another location," McCauley said.

According to Colton's figures, McCauley said, the cost to relocate the DPW would be an estimated $10 million. This plan, he said, would add millions to the cost of the new high school, none of which is reimbursable. McCauley also pointed out that questions remain to be answered about the degree of contamination at the DPW site.

The location of the DPW site, at the intersection of Sea Street and Southern Artery, is one of the most heavily traveled and dangerous intersections in the city. Adding the hundreds of students a high school would generate, McCauley said, is a recipe for a potential tragedy.

"If this plan were to be adopted, the only location that would accommodate the relocated DPW would be at the Fore River shipyard," McCauley said. "The land to be used at the shipyard would then in effect be unavailable for economic development with a resultant loss in tax revenue."

McCauley said that Faxon Field, a site free of contamination and with considerably less traffic than the DPW site, would be the best location for the new high school.

Phelan Backs Faxon Field

By CRAIG SALTERS

School Committee member William Phelan said he clearly favors the Coddington St./Faxon Field site over the current DPW site at 55 Sea St. for the new Quincy High School.

"I'm ready to vote and I'll be voting for the Coddington St./Faxon Field site," Phelan told The Sun earlier this week. "I believe that it is the best site for the new Quincy High School."

Phelan, one of three siting commission members who voted in favor of the Faxon Field site during an April 26 meeting which saw 18 of a possible 22 votes cast for the DPW site, said

WILLIAM PHELAN

Coddington St./Faxon Field was his choice for reasons of, among others, location and cost.

Phelan said costs of building at 55 Sea St., including the non-reimbursable cost of relocating the DPW, were estimated at $10 to $15 million higher than constructing a new high school at Faxon Field.

Said Phelan:

"The burden of the taxpayer will be too much and funds will be spent towards a new DPW rather than a state-of-the-art new high school, where they should be."

Phelan added that he would still favor the Coddington St. site over 55 Sea St. even if costs were equal.

"It's location, location, location," said Phelan, arguing that a high school at Faxon Field would have a centrally located, "campus style" environment.

Responding to fears that the Faxon Field location would be tied up in litigation because of the protected wetlands on the site, Phelan said that both sites had issues relative to wetlands but that a worst case scenario for legal delays would be in months, not years, as DPW proponents have suggested.

"Ironically, I believe that another attribute of Faxon Field is that it's the most de-

Package Stores Closed On Memorial Day

Liquor stores will be closed Monday in observance of Memorial Day.

Calling it a "first class holiday" on the same level as Christmas, License Board Chairman Joseph Shea at Tuesday's meeting, issued the following:

Package stores, manufacturers, wholesalers and importers may not sell or deliver alcoholic beverages on Monday, Memorial Day.

Hotels, restaurants, taverns and clubs may open after 12 noon except in those cities and town which have adopted an 11 a.m. opening. (Chapter 138, Sec. 33B)

Shea said copies of the conditions have been sent to all businesses.

The annual Quincy Memorial Day Parade and exercises will be held Monday, May 28, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Keynote speaker at the service following the parade will be former Mayor and current Councillor at-large Frank McCauley.

McCauley, a graduate of Bentley College, served as the city's mayor from 1982 to 1990 and has been a councillor at-large since 1998.

McCauley's experience includes 12 years on the City Council, eight years as a member of the Quincy School Committee, and five years with the Quincy Housing Authority, including one year as chairman.

McCauley has also served on the Quincy Selective Service Board and as a member of the Republican State Committee.

McCauley is a former chairman of the MBTA Advisory Board and the Quincy College Board of Trustees and is a past president of the Quincy Lions Club.

He is a member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks and McKeon Post Amvets.

McCauley served in the Massachusetts National Guard from 1947 to September of 1948 and in the United States Navy from 1948 to 1949. He also served in the United States Naval Reserve from 1949 to 1955.

A retired president of Presidential Cooperative Bank, McCauley and wife Sandra have five children and 13 grandchildren.

The parade will step off at School St. and proceed on Hancock St. to Coddington St. to Sea St. to Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

The parade will rest at Quincy Square and wreaths will be placed on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Other Memorial Day Observances On Page 14

The parade marshal and honored guests will review the parade at Sea St. across from Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Memorial Day Services will be held from the World War II Podium, Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

More than 20 units will march in the parade including local veterans organizations, color guards, and high school bands. Gold Star Mothers, Boy Scouts, and Girl Scouts as well as national, state, county, and local officials will march.

Parade Marshal will be Joseph Brooker, commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council. He will be assisted by John Joyce, senior vice commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council, and Kenneth Menz, junior vice commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council.

Parade Chairman is Thomas Stansbury, Quincy Veterans' Services Department and past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council. Co-chairman is Henry Bradley, past commander of the Quincy Veterans' Council and past state commander of the American Legion and director of Quincy Veterans' Services.

Lawrence "Larry" Norton will serve as master of ceremonies.

Officer of the Day will be David Minkofsky, assisted by Kenneth Menz.

Memorial Day services will begin with an invocation by Robert LaFleur, chaplain of the Quincy Veterans' Council. There will be greetings and remarks by Commander Brooker as well as honored guests Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Paul Harold.

General Logan's Order will be given by Kenneth Menz, Jr. Vice Commander, QVC. The Gettysburg Address will be given by John Joyce, Sr. Vice Commander, QVC.

After McCauley's keynote address and greetings from Parade Chairman Stansbury, the roll of Quincy's deceased comrades will follow.

A Memorial Day prayer will be given by Edwin Boland, assistant chaplain, QVC. Commander Brooker and others will place wreaths for all wars and the Gold Star Mothers will place a basket of flowers at the World War II Monument.

There will be a volley by the 2nd Marine Division, the playing of "Taps," and the singing of the national anthem by Paul O'Neill, past commander, QVC, as the flag is raised to full-staff.

Chaplain LaFleur will then offer a benediction.

The Quincy Veterans Council, which represents all Quincy veterans organizations, is sponsoring the parade and ceremonies.

In case of inclement weather, exercises will be held at 11 a.m. in the Center for Technical Education Gymnasium, Coddington St.

Official instructions will be broadcast by WJDA 1300.

Subcommittee To Review DPW Site For New QHS Hailed As A Special Educator

Creedon Says The Time Is Right For Retirement

The Building Needs Subcommittee of the Quincy School Committee has tentatively scheduled a meeting Monday, June 4 at 10 a.m. to discuss the DPW site at 55 Sea St. as the possible location for the new Quincy High School.

The location of the public meeting has not yet been decided, said School Committee member Michael McFarland, chairman of the Building Needs Subcommittee.

The subcommittee, McFarland said, has the task of evaluating the DPW site, which was recently recommended to the School Committee by the Quincy High School Siting Commission, sometime before the next School Committee meeting June 6.

To do that, the subcommittee will hear from environmental and traffic consultants and other experts to review such factors as cost, environmental concerns, traffic, siting size, athletic fields, and parking.

"This is the next step in the process," McFarland said.

School Committee member Linda Stice and School Committee member Ronald Mariano are also members of the subcommittee.

Mayor James Sheets told The Sun Tuesday that he had not yet decided whether or not to attend the meeting but that his office would be ready with a financial analysis of the proposal sometime next week.

Although the mayor cautioned that any figures concerning a new high school at Sea St. and the relocation of the DPW "only make sense when you look at them as a whole," he did say that the cost of a possible DPW move to MWRA-owned property at the Fore River Shipyard was a concern.

"We don't know the long-term cost," said Sheets, citing such expenses as new buildings, utilities, and the cleanup of what he called "a highly contaminated area."

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg said she planned on attending the subcommittee meeting.

"The meeting will give us a firmer handle on costs and allow us to address the concerns of the public," Bragg said.

Bragg noted a recent public hearing on the new high school was split evenly between proponents of the DPW site and advocates of the Coddington St./Faxon Field site.

"There's no perfect site," she said.

Bragg did list many problems associated with the Coddington St./Faxon Field site, not the least of which was the fact that Quincy High School students were still using Quincy High School.

"I feel it is not educationally sound to renovate the existing high school with students still in it," said Bragg, "and I believe a majority of School Committee members would not support it."

Bragg also noted that the Center for Technical Education had approximately 400 students and that the city, by law, would be forced to pay between $8,000 to $12,000 for each student to attend a similar school should the CTE be torn down before a new "comprehensive" Quincy High School was constructed.

There was also the fear of potential litigation on the part of Faxon Field abutters and legal battles concerning the area's protected wetlands, Bragg said.

The intersection at the Quincy Police Station and Faxon Field, Bragg said, was as dangerous, if not more so, than the DPW site further along Sea St., adding that some traffic would be removed from Sea St. should the DPW be moved to a different location.

Regardless of which site is eventually chosen, Bragg said one drawback to the debate over the location of the new high school was that it was impossible to meet a June 30th deadline imposed by the state.

Missing the deadline would not jeopardize 90 percent state reimbursement for the project, Bragg said, but it would put the city lower on the state's list of which communities to reimburse first.

Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon called his recent decision to retire an "appropriate" one for both himself and the Quincy Public Schools, an institution he has served for 36 years.

"There comes a logical time when it's proper to step down and let someone else handle the reins," said Creedon, who has served as superintendent since 1992.

As accomplished goals, Creedon pointed to the completion of ambitious school building projects such as the construction of the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Learning Center and the Clifford Marshall Elementary School as well as additions to the Bernazzani and Parker Schools and thorough renovations to Point Webster Middle School.

In addition, Creedon said, the major goals of a new Quincy High School and a renovated Central Middle School, although not completed, were enough of a reality to make retirement possible.

"The course is well set and I'm convinced that we're going to have a new Quincy High School," said Creedon, adding that groundbreaking was possible within the year. "Things are in place and we can successfully move on with those goals."

Creedon's letter of intent to retire as superintendent was accepted at the May 16 meeting of the School Committee, where he received a standing ovation from both School Committee members and audience members.

"Gene Creedon is a very special educator," Mayor James Sheets told The Sun Tuesday, noting that Creedon had been considering retirement for some time. "He always had the greatest generosity to the students as well as the faculty and staff and, at the same time, possessed a very real understanding of school policy that had to be developed to ensure that the quality of education was at its best."

Sheets noted the growth of the school system under Creedon's watch, both physically and in terms of personnel, and the numerous awards garnered by Quincy students, teachers, and schools.

"When you look back at the his tenure, it's going to be remembered as a very historic and eventful one.

Inspect, Repair Mailboxes This Week

The U. S. Postal Service is asking all Quincy homeowners to inspect and repair their mailboxes during Mailbox Improvement Week, May 21-26, says Kathy Lydon, manager of the North Quincy Post Office.

"Repairing suburban and rural mailboxes improves the appearance of our community and makes delivering and receiving mail safer for our carriers and customers," Lydon said.

The Postal Service makes this annual request because of the wear and tear that occurs to mailboxes every year. This is especially important after the effects of last winter.

Some of the typical activities that may need to be done include:

- Replacing loose hinges on a mailbox door.
- Repairing a mailbox that may have rusted or started peeling.
- Mounting a mailbox post

it loosened.

- Replacing or adding house numbers.

If a homeowner plans to install a new mailbox or replace a worn one, he or she must use only Postal Service-approved traditional or contemporary mailboxes, Lydon said.

Customers should be careful when purchasing curbside mail receptacles because the use of unapproved boxes is prohibited.

Customers may use a custom-built mailbox, but they must consult with their post office to ensure it conforms to guidelines applying to flag, size, strength, and quality of construction.

For more information on the use of names or numbers on mailboxes, or answers to any other questions, contact Quincy Post Office at 617-773-0568; Wollaston Post Office at 617-472-7193; or North Quincy Post Office at 617-328-5544.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On May 21, 1542, on the banks of the Mississippi River in present-day Arkansas, Spanish conquistador Hernando de Soto died, ending a three-year journey that took him nearly halfway across the North American continent.

• On May 26, 1637, in the first major battle of the Pequot War, an allied Puritan and Mohegan force under English captains John Mason and John Underhill attacked a Pequot village in Connecticut, completely destroying the village and massacring some 500 Indian women, men and children.

• On May 27, 1703, Czar Peter I founded the city of St. Petersburg as the new Russian capital. In 1721, Peter abandoned the traditional Russian title of czar in favor of the European-influenced title of emperor. Four years later, he died and was succeeded by his wife, Catherine.

• On May 24, 1883, after 14 years and 27 deaths, the Brooklyn Bridge over the East River was finally completed, connecting the great cities of New York and Brooklyn for the first time.

The connection it provided between the massive population centers of Manhattan and Brooklyn changed the course of New York City forever.

• On May 23, 1934, near Gibsland, La., notorious Depression-era outlaws Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker were shot to death by Texas and Louisiana state police officers as they attempted to escape apprehension in a stolen automobile.

• On May 22, 1972, President Richard Nixon arrived in Moscow for a summit with Soviet leaders, becoming the first U.S. president to ever visit the U.S.S.R.

• On May 25, 1979, American Airlines Flight 191, a Los Angeles-bound DC-10, took off from Chicago-O'Hare International airport. Moments later, the aircraft crashed into an open field about a half-mile from its takeoff point, killing all 271 people aboard and two others in a nearby trailer park. It was the worst domestic air crash in U.S. history.

Why Jimmy Is Running

Jimmy Liang will be making Quincy political history this year as the first candidate of Asian descent to run for the City Council.

But his won't be the first Asian male ever on a Quincy election ballot.

Edward Lee broke that historic ground in 1991 in an unsuccessful bid for a school committee seat.

Liang, American-Chinese and co-owner of the Fuji Restaurant in Wollaston, says the big jump in the city's Asian population is not the main reason he is running for city councilor at-large.

"I am running because I am a businessman and I want to be involved in the city and its future," he says.

"And I want to get the young people involved. Those who are living here now and those who are coming into our city. Not just Asian -- but all nationalities."

Liang, a 24-year-old bachelor, now lives on Quarry St. but has roots in North Quincy. He grew up on French St. where his parents Meng and Xin Liang still live and graduated from North Quincy High School in 1996. He attend Quincy College and UMass-Boston.

He is well aware of the dramatic growth of the city's Asian population in the past 10 years. It now represents about 15 percent of the city's overall population, according to U.S. 2000 Census figures.

The city's official population is now 88,025, a moderate gain of 3,040 since 1990. The Asian population is now 13,546--up 7,769 from 5,777 10 years ago.

Liang doesn't see that Asian population as an automatic voter block for a candidate with an Asian name. "Unfortunately," he notes, "many Asians do not turn out to vote. But I hope to change that."

Lee, who also was a restaurateur, ran in an 11-candidate field for the school committee in the 1991 city preliminary election. He placed ninth with 1,456 votes.

Not bad though for a political novice and considering he was up against some pretty good names: Dan Raymondi, Linda Stice, Steve Durkin, Peggy King, Jo-Ann Bragg, Mary Jane Powers, Sean Barry and Frank Anselmo. He trailed the veteran Anselmo by only 174 votes.

Raymondi, Durkin and Stice went on to win the seats in the final election.

Liang will be up against some well-known names himself in his debut bid for one of the three council-at-large seats: incumbents Tim Cahill and Frank McCauley, Joseph Finn, John Keenan and Brian McNamee.

There's no doubt the Asian population will one day be a political force in the city.

But someone has to be the organizer and leader.

Liang wants to appeal to voters of all nationalities--not just Asians.

But could he be the one to steer them into community involvement, and register and vote on election day?

Bellotti To Donate $28,000 For County Fire Safety

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti will donate $1,000 to each of the 28 fire departments in the county for community fire education, prevention and safety.

The formal announcement will be made at the Norfolk County Fire Chief's monthly meeting Thursday, May 31, at 11:30 a.m. at Albert's Restaurant, 217

Washington St. (Route 138), Stoughton.

"Norfolk County firefighters do outstanding work and I'm honored to be associated with them in this effort," Bellotti said.

A total of $28,000 will be donated, plus $1,000 to $2,000 for the state Department of Fire Services training programs.

He could be.

IT'S CAMPAIGN KICK-OFF time tonight (Thursday) for two council candidates.

Ward 6 incumbent Joseph Newton will launch his bid for a second term at a 7 to 9 p.m. reception at the Adams Inn Gazebo, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Three political heavy hitters are co-hosting the event: Sheriff Michael Bellotti, City Council President-County Register of Deeds Paul Harold and County Commissioner and former City Clerk John Gillis.

Suggested donation is $20.

JIM MULLANEY is launching his campaign for the Ward 5 city council seat at a 6 to 10 p.m. kick-off party tonight in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry St.

Tickets are $25 per person or $30 per couple. For more information contact the committee at 617-328-9790.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg has papers out for a third term and says she will make an official announcement in June. Michael McFarland has already declared his candidacy for a second term on the school committee.

A PRELIMINARY election appears to be shaping up in Ward 6. William Kiley, 42, of Dundee Rd., a Boston Water Department manager, has taken out nomination papers.

He will make the third candidate if he files them, joining incumbent Joseph Newton and Maryann Mahony to set the stage for a preliminary run-off.

AND THE WARD 3 field is getting a little crowded. John Rodophele, Jr., 31, of Newport Ave., a store owner, has taken out papers. He would make the fourth candidate.

John Cain and Alan Cousin are already off and running and incumbent Patrick McDermott soon will be. He and Tracy Wilson were married Sunday and politics is on the back burner until after a wedding cruise to the Caribbean.

THERE ARE MANY Proud Moms in this world but none could have been any prouder than Mrs. Teresa "Terry" Phelan on Sunday.

She had a special good reason: she was there at the Suffolk Law School commencement to watch her son, Christopher, receive his Juris Doctor degree.

Christopher is the third of her eight children to graduate from Suffolk Law School. He follows Atty. William Phelan, a member of the Quincy school committee, and Atty. Joseph Phelan of Quincy and Norwell.

Quite a family.

Son Ged is head basketball coach at Abp. Williams High School; John, vice principal Pierce Middle School, Milton; Jim, special education teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School; Patti, heads the anti-smoking campaign for the South Shore Board of Health; and Trixie is a Day Care Center inspector in Florida.

This proud Mom sounds like a good nominee for "Mother of the Year" -- any year.

READERS FORUM

Clemency For Timothy McVeigh

Editor, The Quincy Sun: His Majesty "King" George H.W. Bush, the former President of the United States, has set a very high political goal, without parallel in world history. He set that goal not only for his descendants, but also for all Americans. That goal is to form a "gentler and kinder America."

I would like to give my suggestions how to achieve that goal.

Abroad: To outlaw all wars. And, to abolish all sanctions and embargoes. Also, to stop harassment of any country and any foreign leader.

At home: To abolish decapitation of all of the unborn, the most innocent, as well as of the most criminal, of those who have eaten an apple. Also, to establish a comprehensive health insurance, for everybody, from cradle to grave.

President George W. Bush is challenged to begin to achieve what his father set as a goal.

Dostoevsky used to say that we are all responsible for one another. When one member of the society fails, the whole society fails. Every individual is the product of the society in which he lives. The Oklahoma bombing and countless shootings in American schools could be the result of the prohibition of the Bible teaching in all American public schools.

Timothy McVeigh is a Gulf War decorated veteran. Every military activity throughout human history justifies much more numerous killings than McVeigh's with a motto:

"Doing evil in defense of evil is no evil."

Timothy McVeigh, acting on that philosophy, as a part of the American military, became a decorated veteran. A very honorable status. Has anybody ever asked how many innocent lives, how many children's lives were Churchill and Roosevelt responsible for bombing Germany, day and night, or how many lives and children's lives was Truman responsible for bombing Japan, or, for how many innocent lives and children's lives has Clinton been responsible for bombing Serbia? And when Timothy McVeigh said that killing of children was a "collateral damage," he quoted sarcastically the Americans, who excused themselves with that phrase for killing the Serbian children during 78 days of bombing of Serbia.

There is also a legal argument against Timothy McVeigh's execution. It appears that the psychiatrists have failed to study the effects of the Gulf War and Waco conflagration on Timothy's heart and mind. Who could ever disagree that that man is not normal any more? And if so, he is not legally responsible. He should be studied by physicians, psychologists and psychiatrists, and not executed.

Letter Carrier Food Drive Tremendous Success

Editor, The Quincy Sun: The annual Letter Carrier Food Drive held Saturday, May 12, was a tremendous success. Letter carriers across the United States ask people to leave non-perishable food out to be picked up by the carriers for distribution to local food pantries.

The Quincy Crisis Center says "thank you" to all those who made this special day possible. "Thank you" letter carriers for picking up the food and delivering it to the post offices for distribution. "Thank you" post office employees for helping the pantries in loading the food into their vehicles. We appreciate all the extra work that each postal employee does on this day, and that you do it joyfully, with smiling faces and positive attitudes.

"Thank you" Quincy residents for responding so generously with food donations. Your giving makes it possible for many families to have meals on their tables and food in their cupboards. "Thank you" volunteers for picking the food up at the post offices, and then unloading, sorting and boxing it up at the Crisis Center. We appreciate so much the giving of your time in helping others.

Everyone who participated in the Letter Carrier Food Drive has fulfilled the Quincy Crisis Center's mission of "advancing a culture of compassion," by helping those in need, neighbor to neighbor. The Quincy Crisis Center, and those we distribute to, say "thank you."

Ross Appoints Members To First Recreation Board

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Charles Ross appointed seven members to the newly created Recreation Board, with school committee member Alexander Smith as its first chairman.

Members included Katherine McCoy, John Morley, Gilbert Crofts and three members of the Park Board: Ernest Collins, William Mitchell and Kenneth Fallon, Jr.

Collins, chairman of the Park Board, originally opposed the creation of the Recreation Board until the city council mandated that three members of the Park Board were included as members.

800 MARCH IN TALEB GROTTO PARADE

Some 800 marched down Hancock St. to the Masonic Temple in the Taleb Grotto's annual spring ceremonial night led by the lodge's 50 piece band.

The 7:30 p.m. parade ended with a catered dinner at the temple for 400 where 40 new members were inducted into the lodge.

X-RAY CLINIC AT SOUTH JR. HIGH SCHOOL

The familiar large white van from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health moved to South Junior High School to x-ray residents of Ward 3. To date, more than 13,000 from the city were x-rayed as part of a prevention program against tuberculosis.

The van had x-rayed 1,297 at clinics at St. John's and the Adams schools earlier this week and was scheduled to finish up at the Squantum School.

QUINCY-ISMS

Judge Gertrude Halloran fined seven men $25 for gambling on the Lord's Day. They were arrested at a Mill St. home as part of a stake-out by Quincy police. The raid was led by Captain William McIntyre, with assistance from Sgt. James Kemp, Sgt. Philip Grady and Patrolmen Dante Pettinelli and Fred Gentile. Some $3,500 in cash was confiscated along with four pairs of dice, playing cards and a raking paddle.

The "ultra new" Stop and Shop on the Southern Artery opened, billed as the most modern on the South Shore. Morris Golub, district manager, and Morris, Levin, store manager, cut the ribbon. . . 'FOR SENTIMENTAL REASONS,' who follow in the footsteps of the 1940s trio, the Andrews Sisters, will kick off the summer concert series on the USS Salem. They are (left to right) Lisa Feltner of Watertown, Ricci Stearns of Boston and Jenna Wims Hashaway of Pawtucket, R. I.

1940s Concert On USS Salem Sunday

A Memorial Day weekend concert aboard the USS Salem Sunday will bring back the memories of the Andrews Sisters, war bonds and Rosie the Riveter.

The 2 p.m. USO-like concert by the musical group For Sentimental Reasons will feature music of the 1940s.

The group, consisting of six singers and three musicians, was a hit in an appearance on the USS Salem last Labor Day weekend.

Tickets for Sunday's concert are $6 for adults and $4 for children and senior citizens. The ticket prices include the show and a tour of the ship. Refreshments will be available.

The concert is part of a weekend celebration marking the opening of the Salem for the summer season.

A memorial service for members of the USS Macon will be held tomorrow (Friday) at 10 a.m.

On Sunday, before the concert, a statue of a "Lone Sailor" will be presented to the USS Salem museum by Robert Nasar for display in the Cruiser Sailor exhibit.

A special presentation will also be made to State Rep. Ronald Mariano recognizing the help he has given to the USS Salem.

The 17,000-ton, 717-foot heavy cruiser, which was the flagship of the U. S. Navy's Sixth Fleet, is now located at the Fore River shipyard off Route 3A, next to the Fore River Bridge.

Those planning to attend the concert or visit the ship should use the main entrance off the bridge rotary near the Harbor Express.

The museum's regular hours are Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. During June, the museum will be open Monday through Friday from 12 noon to 4 p.m. and beginning in July, seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. until Labor Day.

For more information, call 617-479-7900.

Mayor's Commission Honors Five Women

Lecture June 6 On Jewish Life In Ukraine

Carol Neitlich, an outreach worker to interfaith families for the Jewish Community Centers of Greater Boston, will speak on "A Spiritual Journey to the Ukraine" Wednesday, June 6, at 7 p.m. in the community room at Roche Brothers.

Neitlich is connected with a variety of Jewish organizations in the Ukraine and continues a cultural exchange with "Ganilana," which is similar to programs for Jewish children in the United States.

She was regional director of the Striar Jewish Community Center for 33 years, an instructor of Early Childhood Education at Quincy College for 30 years.

For more information, call 617-984-0502.

'Birthday Bash Celebration' For ENC's Centennial

In observance of its 100th year, Eastern Nazarene College will host a Birthday Bash Celebration Saturday, May 26.

The event is free and open to the public and will be held at Pageant Field, Merrymount. An adult must accompany children under age 12.

Activities for the entire family will begin at 3 p.m. There will be a craft show and special music throughout the afternoon.

College academic departments will host special demonstrations for children and youth until 5 p.m.

Tickets may be purchased for the barbecue picnic at 5 p.m. by calling 1-800-RING-ENC. The grand finale of the celebration will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a 100-voice children's choir singing "Happy Birthday ENC" and free birthday cake to all in attendance.

A free youth oriented concert featuring local band, "Jordan's Wake," will start at 7 p.m. in the Ruth Gordon amphitheater. The celebration will conclude with fireworks at 9 p.m. at Pageant Field sponsored by Eastern Bank, Colonial Federal Savings and Loan, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Liberty Mutual Insurance and Nazarene Credit Union.

Sumner Hirshberg Memorial Jazz Concert June 1

Music from the Big Band Era will be featured at the Memorial Jazz Concert held in memory of Dr. Sumner Hirshberg Sunday, June 10, from 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the Lantana in Randolph.

The concert is sponsored by the Hirshberg family and the Dental Associates of Quincy. Proceeds will go to the Mollie Hirshberg Fund. Tickets are $15 each with a limit of 275 on a first come, first serve basis.

The concert also will memorialize Tony Ferrente, Tony Rose, Mike Segal and Gordon Crosier, all former members of the Olde Kids on the Block, a 20-piece dance band that plays Big Band arrangements.

The Olde Kids on the Block as well as the Sumner Hirshberg Pro-Dixie Jazz Band will provide the music for the concert and dancing. Complimentary desserts and coffee will be served. The doors will open at 3 p.m.

For further information, call Lois at 508-428-3402.

Irish Music Night To Aid Step Dancers

The Forbes School of Irish Step Dance in Quincy will host a night of Irish music and dance Saturday, June 9, from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight at the IBEW Local 103 Hall, 256 Freeport St., Dorchester.

Proceeds will go to help 30 Irish Step Dancers from the Forbes School to compete in the Nationals in Canada in July.

Music will be provided by the Silver Spears Irish Show Band. Tickets at $12 each are available by calling Barbara Healy at 617-770-3116 or Terry Free at 617-479-9925.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

REVERSE THINKING

If you're like most people, you begin brushing your teeth on the outer surfaces of the top front teeth. Most likely, the last surfaces to be brushed (if at all) are those on the inside of the lower front teeth. As a result of this relative inattention, the inside surfaces of the lower front teeth accumulate the most plaque and tartar. Thus, the gums in these areas are more susceptible to gum disease. To counter this problem it is suggested that the insides of the lower front teeth be brushed first. Reversing the usual brushing order may go a long way in helping to stanch bleeding gums and the buildup of plaque that contribute to the condition.

Like most people, you know that having a clean mouth is important. It makes you feel good about yourself. It gives you fresh breath and a nicer-looking smile. Since childhood, you've probably heard that brushing the flossing your teeth daily are necessary for good dental health. At our office, located at 44 Greenleaf Street, we stress preventive dentistry and welcome the opportunity to provide you with gently, professional dental care in a warm and caring environment. We're currently accepting new patients and invite you call at 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesia and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Start by brushing your teeth with a dry toothbrush until they feel clean. Then, go ahead as usual and use a wet brush and toothpaste.

Developer: Talk Of New NQ Office Building 'Premature'

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy developer Mark Dickinson said efforts were under way to revive a stalled office building development next to the North Quincy MBTA station but cautioned that any talk of construction timetables was "premature."

"Until the MBTA approves it (the lease for the development site), there's nothing to talk about," said Dickinson, president of Dickinson Development, 1266 Furnace Brook Parkway. "There are discussions but it's fairly premature to make any announcement."

What's more, Dickinson voiced frustration over perceptions that the Dickinson Development, which was approved by the city several years ago and calls for the construction of an office building with 265,000 square feet of office space and additional parking, was somehow linked to a proposed northerly off-ramp linking the southeast expressway to Neponset Circle and, therefore, the Neponset River Bridge and North Quincy.

"I would love to see it happen," Dickinson said of the proposed ramp project. "It would be a nice thing to have but it is not necessary for the (Dickinson) project."

Earlier studies funded by Dickinson Development, he said, indicated that a new ramp, however useful, was not necessary for the addition of a new office development and that the multi-story building project worked within the existing North Quincy infrastructure.

An argument could also be made, Dickinson said, that, even with a new off-ramp, commuters traveling northerly would still take the East Milton exit and travel the back roads to North Quincy because they wouldn't want to endure the extra minutes stuck in traffic.

However, he added, a ramp might lessen congestion after commuters became used to the new system.

Dickinson also stated that, since the off-ramp would actually be located in Boston, Quincy was not alone in deciding whether a ramp is or is not constructed.

"Is it a good thing to have? Absolutely," said Dickinson. "Is it essential to the economic development of North Quincy? No."

Dickinson, who explained delays on developments of such scale as this were relatively common, said that, should the project go forward, previous commitments to neighborhood mitigation would be honored.

In January of 1998, the Quincy City Council unanimously voted to grant air rights over the North Quincy MBTA parking lot for the new development. At that time, plans called for Dickinson Development to build a $39 million, six-story, 265,000 square foot office building on one side of the 7.4 acre parking lot at the MBTA station. It was to have been built on stilts and have 798 parking spaces underneath the building.

The plan also called for the MBTA to build a five-story parking garage next to the office building, increasing MBTA parking capacity from 802 to 1,302.

Also discussed in 1998 were improvements such as the widening of Hancock St., the synchronization of traffic lights at the intersection of Hancock St. and East/West Squantum Sts., and a rear entrance built onto the North Quincy Fire Station.

Card Special Guest At June 1 Kickoff

Delahunt To Chair Historical Society's Capital Campaign

Congressman William Delahunt will serve as chairman of Quincy Historical Society's Capital Campaign Committee.

Committee members include Atty. George Burke, Jay Cashman, Arthur Connelly, Peter O'Connell and Society president Joyce Baker.

Andrew Card, Chief of Staff to President George W. Bush, will be the special guest at the Capital Campaign Kickoff, Friday, June 1, at noon, at State Street South's John Adams Building, in North Quincy. The Colonel John Quincy Tankard, through the courtesy of its owner, George Burke, and through the cooperation of Mayor James Sheets, will be on display at this event.

Tickets for this event are $100 and may be obtained from the Society, 617-773-1144, or from Joyce Baker, 617-471-5439.

The capital campaign seeks to raise $250,000, or to be used for a comprehensive Quincy history exhibit, enhanced records of historical collections, and preservation and restoration of the Society's home, the Adams Academy Building.

"The Academy is one of the jewels of the city," Baker commented. "The Historical Society is responsible for care and upkeep of the Academy and we take that responsibility very seriously."

A Registered National Historic Landmark, the Academy building was endowed by John Adams and stands on the site of the birthplace of John Hancock. "We are very grateful to Congressman Delahunt and all the members who have agreed to serve on the committee," Mrs. Baker Added. "As the first Quincy Congressman since John Quincy Adams, Congressman Delahunt particularly understands the significance of Quincy to the story of American democracy and the importance of the Society's mission in preserving and telling Quincy's history."

Parker School Fair June 2

The Parker School, 148 Billings Rd., North Quincy, will hold its annual School Fair Saturday, June 2 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

There will be games, rides, food and crafts. There

Durkin Resolve Addresses DPW Spraying At Ponds

Procedural questions concerning the Department of Public Works' spraying of herbicides at Sailors' Home Pond and Butler's Pond will be on the agenda of the June 11 meeting of the Public Works Committee of the City Council.

The issue was raised in the form of a resolve by Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, whose resolution noted that "questions of a procedural nature in terms of notifying abutters have been raised" by the DPW spraying.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico is chairman of the Public Works Committee.

Finn Committee Protests Being Stopped From Collecting Voter Signatures

The Joe Finn Committee is protesting to the city solicitor's office that members were stopped from collecting nomination signatures at the Department of Public Works site.

Finn, a candidate for city councillor at-large, said the incident happened May 19 during the morning Household Hazardous Waste Drop-off collection.

He said the committee had sought and received approval from the DPW office to collect the signatures and that he and volunteers remained in an area designated.

He said a supporter of another candidate approached them and raised questions about them collecting signatures on municipal property.

Less than 15 minutes later, he said, he was approached by a Quincy police officer and told that the city solicitor's office had called and ordered the volunteers to the sidewalk.

"This effectively ended any ability to collect signatures," Finn said. "I was both amazed and disappointed."

He said he thought it was well known that the Secretary of State and the Attorney General had said signatures may be collected on municipal property regularly open to the general public.

"Many candidates collect signatures at sites like this all the time and here I was at 8:45 a.m. on a Saturday morning being told I was not allowed to," he said.

Finn said Mike Berry, one of his campaign volunteers asked: "How did they get a ruling at 8:45 in the morning on a Saturday? Has the solicitor started a 24-hour hotline for alleged inappropriate campaign practices?"

Finn said his committee has sent a letter of inquiry and protest to the city solicitor's office seeking information and assurance that their campaign will not be subject to unfair treatment and practices.

"I want the city to define their understanding of public forums and be certain that they apply that standard equally to all the candidates."

Asked about the letter by The Sun Tuesday, City Solicitor Steve McGrath said he had not yet received the letter and that it was the first he had heard of the incident.

"When I get the letter I will be happy to look into it," he said. "I will be happy to review the matter and respond."

McGrath later said he was informed Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines was at the DPW site that morning but was not there in any official capacity.

"The staff here is wonderful. They make me feel right at home."

THE ISSUES DO MATTER

My name is Joe Finn. I am a candidate for Quincy Councillor at Large. I have been out since November 2000 surveying the voters of Quincy regarding their issues and concerns. We have dropped a survey card at nearly every door in Quincy and the response has been overwhelming. If you missed the opportunity to respond, here is one more chance to weigh in with your concerns.

What are the issues that concern you? What areas are the most important to the life and well being of the communities that make up this wonderful city? Please take a moment to fill out the card below and return it to me or call me at 617-770-1917. Thank you for your consideration.

I am most concerned about the following issues in our community:

John Gillis Grand Marshal For 50th Flag Day Parade

Former City Clerk John M. Gillis will be the Grand Marshal for the 50th annual Quincy Flag Day Parade and Celebration to be held Saturday, June 16.

Gillis served as City Clerk in Quincy for 37 years before retiring in 1992. He currently serves as a Norfolk County Commissioner.

Gillis is a veteran of World War II, having served in the United States Marine Corps. He is a member of the Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post #294 in Quincy. He is a member of the Quincy Order of Elks. He has been inducted into the Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame. He has also served a great number of benevolent organizations and charities.

"John Gillis is the type of person who represents what the Flag Day Committee hopes to capture with its Grand Marshal designation. He is a Quincy native who has proudly served his country and honorably served his community for decades. He is a true gentleman who we are honored to have as our Grand Marshal," said Thomas Koch, chairman of the Quincy Flag Day Committee.

A Quincy Point native, Gillis and his wife Vi have two children and four grandchildren.

Gillis will lead a contingent that will feature Grand Marshals from the past years of the Quincy Flag Day Parade. Confirmed participants thus far include former City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Olympian Karen Cashman, Koch Club Girls' Founder Simone Koch, United States Air Force General Ronald Rand, Political Strategist Ron Kaufman, and former American Legion National Commander John "Jake" Comer. All are Quincy natives.

The 50th annual Quincy Flag Day Parade will feature the largest number of participating units in the parade's history. Bands, drum corps, floats, color guards, specialty units, and flag-waving youngsters will highlight this year's parade. Following the parade, there will be a flag-raising ceremony at Pageant Field. The night will be capped off with a dazzling fireworks display over Black's Creek.

For more information on the parade, call 617-376-1254.

Cousin Urges Swift To Reconsider Mansion

Alan Cousin, candidate for Ward 3 City Councillor, has asked Acting Governor Jane Swift to reconsider her decision not to use the Quincy Homestead as a governor's mansion.

In a letter to Swift, Cousin said that a governor's mansion in Quincy would "benefit the office of the governor as well as the entire state. It would provide a convenient residence near Boston for future governors from western Massachusetts, as well as a great location for state functions."

In making the announcement, Cousin added that using the Quincy Homestead as a governor's mansion would also benefit the city of Quincy. "It would bring more tourists here," Cousin said. "We've been trying to do that for years and a governor's mansion here would give a great boost to our efforts."

SHOCKS TO THE SYSTEM

When shocks or struts wear out, your vehicle will bounce when driven over bumps. It will also sway when steered into turns, and the tires may show uneven wear patterns. Because bad shocks and/or struts lead to serious handling problems, they should be replaced at the first signs of failure. Sometimes, a bad shock leaks hydraulic fluid, which collects road dust. A visual inspection will reveal the need for replacement. Another problem involves loose nuts or bolts on the shock absorber mounting studs or brackets, which creates a thumping or banging noise when the vehicle is driven over bumps. Any of these symptoms should be brought to the attention of a technician, who can then diagnose the problem. Getting a rough ride? It may be time to replace your shocks or struts. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be well informed about every system in your car. Our friendly, professional, ASE Certified service staff, here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), will gladly answer all your questions. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Give us a try. We'll earn your trust!

HINT: Shock absorbers should be replaced in pairs and, if possible, on all four wheels at once.

and that's to his credit. Sheets said.

School Committee Vice Chairman Jo-Ann Bragg called Creedon "the finest superintendent that I have ever had the honor to work with" and said her work with Creedon goes back two decades when they were both members of the City-wide Parents Council.

School Committee woman Linda Stice agreed. "In his long career as an educator, Superintendent Creedon has been the most decent of men, with tremendous integrity, thoughtfulness, and an absolute commitment to children," said Stice. "His door is always open to families of kids in the Quincy Public Schools."

School Committee member and Auditor Michael McFarland wished Creedon a happy retirement but added, "We're happy for him and sad for the City of Quincy. He was an outstanding superintendent who always put Quincy students first."

Said School Committee member William Phelan: "Gene Creedon's dedication and caring to students as well as to all employees of the Quincy Public Schools will not soon be matched.

"His love of education and his respect for teachers will be sorely missed."

Personally, Creedon said that although "bricks and mortar" accomplishments were important, his goal was always to be a coach or facilitator to the parents, teachers, and students, emphasizing a vision of constantly striving for excellence.

"My primary responsibility was to constantly encourage that we do better than our very best, if that's possible," said Creedon.

Creedon thanked Mayor James Sheets and the School Committee for a productive working relationship and said he was "tremendously blessed" to have worked with so many dedicated professionals in what he called "the whole family" of the Quincy Public Schools.

Creedon reserved special praise for Quincy's corps of principals, noting how proud he was to have been among their ranks. "They're second to none," Creedon said.

Creedon's career with the Quincy Public Schools began with his appointment as a teacher at the then Quincy Point Junior High School. In addition to his teaching experience, Creedon served as principal of the Parker Elementary School and the Broad Meadows Middle School.

Creedon also served two years as principal at the St. Ann's School in Wollaston, the first lay principal in the Archdiocese of Boston.

Born and raised in Quincy, Creedon and wife Kathleen have three children -- Aaron, Susan, and Patrick -- who are all graduates of the Quincy Public Schools.

Creedon's retirement officially begins October 30 but he will make use of accumulated vacation time and end his duties by the end of June or early July.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Richard DeCristofaro will serve as acting superintendent. As a later date, the School Committee will decide what the process and procedure will be for choosing the next Superintendent.

Creedon's immediate retirement plans include a vacation with his wife to Hawaii.

Memorial Day Observances

In addition to the parade and ceremony, other Memorial Day observances will be held at various times over the course of the long weekend.

On Friday, the Lincoln Hancock fifth grade class of teacher Stephen Cantelli will decorate the graves of veterans at Hall Cemetery.

On Sunday, Quincy American Legion Post will assemble at the United First Parish Church at 9:30 a.m. to conduct the traditional exercises of the Grand Army of the Republic (GAR).

They will escort the Sunday School children to the Hancock Cemetery to decorate the graves of veterans. They will also decorate Civil War Monument and Frederick Jones Square.

At 11 a.m., all veterans' organizations, their auxiliaries, and the public are invited to attend services in the United First Parish Church.

On Sunday, 7 p.m., the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post and the Quincy Cavanagh Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans will decorate the graves of John A. Boyd, Cyril P. Morrisette, and Charles J. Cavanagh in St. Mary's Cemetery. At the conclusion of these ceremonies, the Morrisette Post will decorate the War Memorial at Liberty Square, South Quincy, Morrisette Square, Unknown GAR Soldier in Hall Cemetery, Water Fabian, and the War Memorial at the West Quincy Fire Station.

Cavanagh Post will decorate the Cavanagh Boulder at Cavanagh Field in North Quincy, the Doughboy Statue at Adams Academy, and Walter Fuller Square.

Adams Shore Memorial, Houghs Neck Memorial, Frederick C. Murphy Memorial, Houghs Neck Veterans' Memorial Park, The Sailors' Cemetery, Germantown, Palmer St., Morton Square, Grenham Playground, Dalton Square.

On Memorial Day, veterans of all wars will assemble at the St. Mary's Church parking lot at 9 a.m. and proceed to Hall Cemetery and conduct GAR Memorial and a detachment will place a wreath at the Morrisette Memorial at Pine Hill Cemetery.

On Memorial Day morning, Robert I. Nickerson American Legion Post will decorate Nickerson Beach, Gilbert Memorial, Bayfield Memorial, Men of Squantum, World War I, and Sgt. Michael Barry Memorial.

On Memorial Day morning, Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces will decorate the Clock Tower at Marina Bay, the Vietnam Memorials at Mt. Wollaston and Pine Hill Cemetery, the Korean Memorial at Mt. Wollaston, Snug Harbor School, the George Underwood Memorial at Merrymount School, and the Korean War Memorial at Hancock St. and Merrymount Parkway.

On Memorial Day, 10 a.m., a short memorial service will be held at Christ Church Burial Grounds.

On Memorial Day morning, the 2nd Marine Division will place a wreath on the USS Salem in memory of Martin Flaherty.

On May 20, the Jewish War Veterans Post decorated graves and the Sgt. Greenberg Memorial Bridge.

$12.4 Million Budget For Quincy College

The Board of Governors Tuesday night approved a $12.4 million budget for Quincy College.

Last year's budget was $11.7 million.

The budget, it was noted, represents a modest tuition increase — averaging approximately 3 percent — to meet strategic goals, increasing energy costs, maintenance plans and payroll increases.

"This budget represents careful planning and absolute attention to the areas that distinguish Quincy College from other institutions," said College President Sean Barry. "We will continue to enhance our technology, we're committed to developing the cleanest and most appropriate facilities, and we will maintain our promises to our employees."

Board members said the budget is a key indicator that Quincy College's financial house is in order, adding that previous years of budget cuts positioned the institution for long-term success.

"With Christopher Harrington as our CFO, and the management team led by President Barry, the college administration has worked closely with the finance and facilities subcommittee of the board in setting goals and reaching them," said board member Daniel Ray-

Raymondi indicated such achievements as a reduction in the default rate for student loans from a high 18.1 percent in 1997 to a better-than-the-national-average score of 8.1 percent last year, an updated general ledger, and more timely audits as proof of success.

"Improvements in management systems make a significant difference in the strategic position of the college," he said.

Quincy College employs approximately 100 contract instructors and staff, as well as hundreds of adjunct instructors at campuses in Quincy and Plymouth and in satellite locations in the state.

Barry said adjunct instructors would receive an increase in their compensation, from $1,300 to $1,330, the second increase in as many years.

"Our adjuncts went several years without an increase in their stipend," Barry said. "The first commitment of my new administration last year was to raise the rate over a period of years. Thankfully, our board supports the initiative."

Included in the FY 2002 budget is an investment in new telephone system, secondary Internet service provider, new rental space, on-line library resources, computer labs, as well as the salary increases negotiated by the union.

Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairperson of the Board of Governors, said although she would like to have not increased tuition this year, students will benefit from the "value added" to their experience at Quincy College.

"What our students will witness first hand is exceptional technology, clean and bright learning spaces like our new classrooms at Temple and Washington streets, new academic programs like Medical Assistant or Fine Arts, and exceptional faculty who are drawn to teach with us because of our difference."

Lord-Piatelli noted that some institutions are freezing tuition, but increasing fees, or cutting back on investments in technology or facilities or program development. "Those strategies are good short term and questionable for long term...we've made a much different choice."

"As the college contemplates the development of a strategic plan, the senior management is confident that the message is clear and our mission remains intact. We endeavor to provide the most affordable, highest quality educational experience to motivated adults, at times and locations convenient to them," Barry said.

Declining Mortgage Rates Help Keep Home Sales Healthy

Despite poor weather and a slowing economy, home sales remained healthy in Massachusetts in the first quarter of the year as declining mortgage rates, a greater availability of homes for sale and continued low unemployment kept housing demand strong in much of the state, according to a recent Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) report.

Meanwhile, home prices continued to rise but at more modest levels than in recent quarters, an indication the housing market is slowly shifting from a seller's market to one that is more balanced, MAR officials said.

Across the state, sales of detached single-family homes declined just 2.1 percent in the first quarter of 2001 compared to the same period a year ago, dipping from 7,510 units sold in the first three months of 2000 to 7,353 in the opening quarter this year. In addition, condominium sales improved 9.5 percent in the first quarter over the comparable period in 2000, rising from 2,111 units sold in the first three months last year to 2,311 between January-March 2001.

In fact, 9,664 detached single-family homes and condos sold in the first three months of 2001 is the fourth highest first quarter residential sales total on record in the Bay State, surpassed only by first quarter sales in 1998-2000.

Despite a slower statewide sales pace, detached single-family home sales improved in most regions of the Bay State during the first quarter, with the South Shore (+6.8 percent), Central/Worcester (+6.7 percent) and West regions (+4.0 percent) showing the greatest increases over year-ago levels. Sales also rose slightly in southeastern Massachusetts and remained relatively stable in the Northeast region, dipping just 1.3 percent from the first quarter of 2000, but sales fell 18.1 percent in greater Boston.

In the condominium market, strong first quarter sales occurred in nearly all regions, with double-digit sales growth of 12-18 percent observed in the Northeast, Central and South Shore regions and healthy 8 percent gains in greater Boston and southeastern Massachusetts.

Notably, in the first quarter, the inventory of all single-family homes for sale was up 0.9 percent from the same three month period last year, with condo listings alone up 9.3 percent from year-ago levels. It's the first time in 10 quarters the supply of homes has risen from one year earlier, meaning more opportunities for homebuyers now entering the market.

With inventory levels rebounding and supply and demand becoming more balanced, the MAR report found home prices in most areas of Massachusetts are still rising, but the rate of appreciation is slowing. The statewide average selling price for detached single-family homes rose to $285,610 in the first quarter of 2001, a 9.8 percent increase over the first quarter 2000 price of $260,138, but the smallest annual quarter-to-quarter gain in selling price since the first quarter of 1999 when the average price rose 7.8 percent.

Regionally, selling prices increased in all areas of the state in the first quarter, with the most modest gains reported on the South Shore (+9.1 percent) and southeastern Massachusetts (+4.8 percent) and the largest increases in average selling price observed in greater Boston (+16 percent) and western Massachusetts (+16.7 percent).

In the condominium market, the statewide average selling price increased 16.5 percent in the first quarter, from an average price of $166,790 in the first three months last year to $194,361 in the comparable period of 2001. Average selling prices also rose steadily in the first quarter in Worcester County, greater Boston and the Northeast and South Shore regions.

WHAT'S YOUR OFFER?

When buyers make offers to sellers, their options are still open in that the seller may reject the offer, make a counteroffer, or simply not respond. At that point, buyers may accept the counteroffer, make an offer of their own, or direct their interests elsewhere. Once sellers notify buyers of their acceptance of the offer, the signed offer becomes a legally binding contract. Thus, buyers should make sure that they have made all their intentions clear and addressed all their concerns when tendering offers. This means taking a careful look at the proposed selling price, any concessions desired of the seller, any home inspection contingencies, a precise definition of what is included in the sale, and the amount of earnest money. FRA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE is a leader in the field because it meets the needs of clients. Our goal is to bring buyers and sell together to the mutual satisfaction of both. From helping to negotiate the selling price to preparing the purchase and sale agreement, we provide clients with helpful guidance. Call us at 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway for exceptional residential and commercial real estate service.

HINT: When making an offer to purchase a home, have a clear idea if the appliances, window treatments, carpets, and lighting fixtures are part of the deal.

NeighborWorks Working For First-Time Homebuyers

Acceptance into the NeighborWorks Campaign for Home Ownership means that Neighborhood Housing Services (NHS) of the South Shore can help more people buy their first home in spite of the escalating housing prices.

The largest national initiative of its kind, this campaign involves banks, insurance companies, secondary markets and real estate agencies working together with local, community-based nonprofits like NHS.

Membership in the campaign means NHS has access to special mortgage products, additional funding for homebuyer education and the opportunity to share knowledge and skills with more than 130 nonprofits across the country working to help lower-income Americans buy their first homes.

Recently, more than 80 local bankers, Realtors and government officials came together at a special luncheon to hear Doug Dylla, the national coordinator for the NeighborWorks Campaign for Home Ownership, welcome NHS to the campaign. "I am very impressed by how much your organization has accomplished since beginning its home ownership program last May," Dylla said. "Our threshold criteria for new members is 30 homebuyers per year. In less than nine months you have already assisted more than 80 families and individuals in purchasing their first homes—an impressive track record. We are excited to welcome you as a new member of our national campaign and know that you will continue to have an outstanding program for first-time homebuyers."

JACK SPATARO, shown here with Mayor James Sheets at a recent luncheon welcoming Neighborhood Housing Services as a member to the NeighborWorks Campaign, received help from NHS in purchasing the home he had lived in all his life with his mother after she died last year.

Debbie Kidd, housing coordinator for NHS, shared some of the details of the program with those present and told the story of Jack Spataro. Born with multiple disabilities, Spataro had lived at home all his life with his mother until she died last year. There was no way Spataro could afford to stay alone in his home and was devastated at the idea of going into a nursing home. NHS put together a complex package that helped him purchase the home and then worked with local social service agencies to get him help to live without his mother.

"Jack is not our average first-time buyer," Kidd said. "But he is a good example of how flexible we can be in providing assistance to people looking to purchase a home."

Massachusetts residents who have disaster-related damage should be extremely careful when hiring contractors to clean up and repair their homes and businesses, advise state and federal disaster recovery officials.

The warning was issued by the MEMA/FEMA Joint Information Center, 1200 Crown Colony Dr., Quincy.

"In disaster situations, scam artists are often ready to take advantage of the misfortunes of others," said Stephen McGrail, state coordinating officer for disaster recovery and the director of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA).

The Massachusetts Attorney General's Office and Better Business Bureau offer the following "Consumer Beware" suggestions:

- Use reliable licensed contractors and hire local contractors if possible. Check with the Massachusetts Better Business Bureau, (508) 652-4800, and local business organizations for complaints against contractors. Check references and call the Massachusetts Board of Building Regulations and Standards at (617) 727-8598 to see if a contractor is properly registered.

- Get a written estimate. Read the fine print and compare several competing services and prices before settling on one contractor.

- Ask for a written contract. Identify all tasks to be performed, all associated costs, payment schedule, and who applies for necessary permits and licenses. Have a lawyer review the contract if substantial cost is involved. Keep a copy of the signed contract. Never sign a blank contract.

- Ask for a written guarantee. This should state what is guaranteed, who is responsible, and how long the guarantee is valid.

- Get proof of insurance. Make sure your contractor carries general liability and workers' compensation insurance.

- Pay by check. Avoid on the spot cash payments. It is best to write a check to the company. Thirty percent of the total cost is a reasonable down payment. If a contractor insists on an advance payment for materials, make the check out to the supplier, or to both the supplier and the contractor.

- Have work inspected. This is especially true for sewers or basement walls before they are hidden from view. Call your town's building inspector.

- Don't make final payment until the work is done to your satisfaction. Be sure to obtain lien waivers to ensure that no one who supplied materials can put a lien on your home because the contractor did not pay them.

- If necessary, cancel a contract. In Massachusetts, the consumer has three business days to cancel a contract if it was made away from the contractor's primary place of business and it was for more than $25. Send notification of cancellation by registered mail.

For more information, call the Attorney General's Office Consumer Hotline at (617) 727-8400, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Dan Flynn Auctions Off Tiger Woods' Pin Flags

Daniel J. Flynn III, CEO of Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., was the master auctioneer at the recent Eamonn Coghlan-Neal Cusack Marathon Golf Classic at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

The golf tournament and auction benefited the Children's Medical & Research Foundation at Our Lady's Hospital for Sick Children in Dublin, Ireland. Our Lady's is the main hospital for seriously ill children in Ireland.

The most unique item being auctioned at the fundraiser was a set of four pin flags from the four consecutive major tournaments Tiger Woods won, all signed by Woods himself. Flynn attained a winning bid of $15,000 from John Murray of Braintree, which helped set a record at the auction with more than $25,000 raised.

"Obviously, the more unique the item, the higher the bid at the auction," Flynn said. "Tiger Woods' accomplishments have been held in such high regard by the American public, and it goes to show that such a rare accomplishment as winning four majors at such a young age increases the desirability to own a piece of history."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. is a full service real estate marketing firm specializing in auctions, commercial brokerage, residential brokerage, property management and construction. Flynn also conducts auctions for charities throughout New England.

STATE SENATE PRESIDENT Thomas Birmingham paid a visit to Sterling Middle School Friday, joining a roundtable discussion on the school's recent MCAS successes with students, teachers, administrators, and city officials. Birmingham still found time to tape a "Spotlight's On You" segment for the school's STARS cable television program with student hosts, from left, Nicole O'Sullivan, Trevor Vallone, and Matt McLaughlin.

After Two-Hour Visit Birmingham Sees Why Sterling Is An 'Exemplar School'

By CRAIG SALTERS
State Senate President Thomas Birmingham paid a visit Friday to the Sterling Middle School and witnessed first-hand why the school was recently selected as one of only 12 "Exemplar Schools" by the state Department of Education.

"In order to have a good school, you need great people," Birmingham said after the two-hour visit which included a roundtable discussion with Sterling students, teachers, and parents as well as Mayor James Sheets, Superintendent Eugene Creedon, and Sterling Principal Earl Metzler.

"There's a tendency with education to accentuate the shortcomings and lose sight of the good that happens in schools every day," said Birmingham, referring to the state's ongoing education reform with the MCAS tests at its center. "We're turning around an ocean liner, not a sportscar."

School Committee Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg, Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley, and state Rep. Bruce Ayers were also on hand for the visit by Birmingham, who praised Sterling for its MCAS successes such as meeting state-set improvement goals and earning the "Exemplar School" distinction, which brings with it a $10,000 grant to allow Sterling educators to share what they've learned with other schools across the state.

"The MCAS test has given us a tremendous opportunity," said Metzler. "It's given us a focus. It's clearly defined what we have to work on in terms of academic achievement."

During the roundtable, Metzler cited three factors to the school's recent success: its commitment to an "inclusionary" model of education, where students with special needs are given instruction in-class and not pulled out to resource rooms; the use of block scheduling, where classes meet every other day for 90 minutes rather than the traditional 45 minutes a day; and greater school empowerment.

Metzler also noted the dramatic drop in enrollment since the re-opening of Point Webster Middle School, an factor echoed by student council leaders and eighth graders Colleen Dillon, Matthew Breslin, Joe Salvucci, and Lisa Fernandez.

"It's much less crowded now," said Breslin, who serves as co-president with Dillon. "There's a much better relationship between students and teachers."

Sterling teachers noted the significant amount of "teaming" which has occurred among disciplines and among grade levels over the last few years, while Sterling parents lauded the commitment of Sterling teachers and administrators.

After the roundtable, Birmingham was treated to a brief performance by Sterling drama students led by drama teacher Debbie Ali.

The students, members of an audition-based extended day program, displayed their acting and signing talents for Birmingham.

Perhaps even more impressive, when asked by Birmingham to discuss some of the work they'd done with the works of William Shakespeare, several of the students provided impromptu snippets of Shakespeare's work in clear, confident voices.

Before finishing his visit to Sterling, Birmingham was interviewed by students for the "Spotlight's On You" segment of the school's STARS television program, which will air at 7 p.m. every night from June 18th to July 2 on Channel 22.

Birmingham fielded several questions from the three-student panel, including a challenging question on the amount of required school days.

Birmingham responded by saying that Japanese students, who attend school 240 days a year, accumulate three more years of schooling than their United States counterparts over, but admitted additional schooling was "an expensive proposition" and that there was no need to simply copy the Japanese model.

Attention Quincy Residents

The Quincy DPW has taken over the curbside yardwaste collection program from BFI.

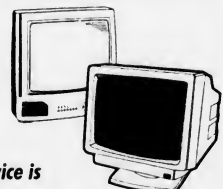

Yardwaste may be placed curbside now through December 14, 2001 on your regular trash pickup day.

The drop-off facility at the DPW Backyard, 55 rear Sea Street, will still be open to Quincy residents Monday through Saturday from mid-April through mid-December and has been relocated so that residents do not have to drive far into the yard.

$ An incentive program is ongoing for residents who make the effort to drop off their materials and includes FREE YARD WASTE BAGS AND CASH PRIZES! $

It is mandatory that you use brown leaf bags, open barrels or cardboard boxes. No plastic bags will be accepted. Please bundle/tie (with rope) branches and brush (in 3 foot lengths) separate from grass and leaves. Large tree limbs and heavy brush can be disposed of, unbundled, at the DPW yard.

Computer monitors & TVs, due to lead content, are now being accepted at the DPW drop off-site at 55 Sea Street every Saturday morning 9:00am-noon (except during snowstorms). Residents may drive up to the loading area of the building to place their materials on pallets. As this service is available weekly, year round, there will be no waiting.

Balanced Diet Essential To A Healthy Lifestyle

By DR. MARTIN RIGBY

Eating a balanced diet is a major factor in a healthy lifestyle. Your body requires over 40 nutrients for energy, growth, and tissue maintenance. As the most plentiful component in the body, water is also crucial to survival. It is the medium for such body fluids as blood and lymph, and it transports nutrients to cells and carries waste products and toxins out.

Carbohydrates, proteins, and fats -- a group known as macronutrients or "energy nutrients" -- provide fuel in the form of calories. Carbohydrates, the body's main energy source, are divided into two types: simple carbohydrates are sugars; complex carbohydrates include starches, such as those found in potatoes and bread.

Protein support tissue growth and repair, and help produce antibodies, hormones, and enzymes -- which are essential for all chemical reactions in the body. Dietary protein sources include: meat, fish, eggs, dairy products, poultry, dried beans and nuts.

Dietary fat protects internal organs, provides energy, insulates against cold, and helps the body absorb certain vitamins. There are three kinds of fats: saturated, found in meat, dairy food and coconut oil; monounsaturated, in olive, peanut, and canola oils; and polyunsaturated, in corn, cottonseed, safflower, soy, and sunflower oils.

Diet also supplies the important micronutrients we call vitamins and minerals. They are needed only in trace amounts, but the absence or deficiency of just one vitamin or mineral can cause major illness. Your body also needs a supply of dietary fiber, the indigestible portion of plant foods. A high-fiber diet reduces the risks of various gastrointestinal problems and promotes cardiovascular health.

Science is continually making discoveries about nutrients and their effects on health. As a result, the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council, National Academy of Sciences, routinely revises its recommended dietary allowances (RDA) -- also known as the recommended daily allowances -- for essential nutrients. In general, most Americans eat far more fat, protein, cholesterol, sugar, and salt than they need. The official dietary guidelines, established jointly by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Health and Human Services, include seven basic recommendations:

- Eat a variety of foods. This will help ensure you get enough calories, protein and fiber, as well as the vitamins, minerals, and other nutrients you need.

- Control your weight. Keep within recommended weight limits for your age, sex, and build. Obesity is defined as being 20 percent above normal weight.

- Eat a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. Ideally no more than 30 percent of your daily calories should come from fat, and no more than 10 percent should come from saturated fat. Choose polyunsaturated fats over saturated fats whenever possible.

- Eat plenty of vegetables, fruits, and grains. They are rich in nutrients, fiber, and complex carbohydrates, but low in fat. More than half of your daily calories should come from carbohydrates, and 80 percent of those calories should come from complex carbohydrates.

- Eat sugar in moderation. Sugar is high in calories and promotes tooth decay.

- Use salt in moderation. Too much salt increases the risk of developing high blood pressure. Prepared foods are notoriously high in salt or other forms of sodium, so read labels carefully.

- If you drink alcohol, do so in moderation. Alcohol provides calories, but no nutrients, and too much is harmful. "Moderation" generally means one drink for women or two-three drinks for men daily.

If you consistently eat a well-balanced diet of fresh fruits, vegetables, grains, and some form of animal protein, you probably don't require a nutritional supplement. Multinutrient supplements offer insurance for those times when eating well is a challenge -- and can be indispensable during pregnancy and times of disease, injury, and extreme stress or physical exertion. Always take supplements in moderation; they are generally safe at dosages at or below RDA's, but higher doses may be harmful and should only be taken under a physician's or registered dietician's guidance.

Dr. Martin Rigby is a New York Chiropractic College graduate who completed his undergraduate education at the University of Massachusetts, earning his bachelor's degree in biology. Prior to beginning his academic career, he served in the 82nd Airborne Division of the U.S. Army. Currently he is teaching biology and nutrition at Quincy College and is in private practice at 22 Billings Rd., North Quincy. He can be reached at (617) 770-3399.

First Win Special For NQ Softball

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy softball team and head coach Bob Doyle finally had something to celebrate Monday afternoon at McCoy Field.

And it could not have happened on a better day.

On Doyle's 36th birthday, the Red Raiders gave their coach the perfect present as they picked up their first win of the season with a 5-2 victory over Plymouth South.

"It was a huge win," Doyle said. "It helps us out going into the Quincy-North game [Wednesday]. It was a nice birthday celebration. They always seem to come up with a win on this day."

Too bad his birthday wasn't every game. It has been a long spring for North Quincy (1-16 overall, 1-12 OCL), but it has improved its play in recent weeks.

Last Saturday, it jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first inning against Barnstable but ended up losing, 16-13. Last Thursday, it suffered a 2-1 loss to Randolph after walking in the winning run with the bases loaded in the seventh. In the season opener, it lost to that same Randolph team, 27-1.

"We've made strides since the beginning of the year," Doyle said. "I kept telling the girls to 'keep the faith.' It's been a tough spring. I'm pleased with the girls that they never quit."

"The future looks good," he added. "We have a young team just like Quincy. The bottom line will be our pitching. But I'm optimistic about the future. It's going to take hard work and off-season dedication."

One person who has taken a giant step this season is junior pitcher Alyssa Hawksley, who paced the Red Raiders to the win with a complete-game gem.

Hawksley allowed only one earned run on seven hits. And, more importantly, she walked only two as she found the accuracy that had been lacking earlier in the season.

"I tip my hat to Alyssa Hawksley," Doyle said. "She did a tremendous job based on results in prior games. She's come along way. I've seen real improvement and that bodes well for next year."

"She hadn't pitched in a while and I told her it was her game," he added. "After that first inning she settled down. I kept an eye on her walks. She was averaging between eight to 10 and she only had two."

After giving up the two runs in the first inning, Hawksley found her rhythm for the rest of the game. She faced four batters in both the second and third innings, retired the side in order in the fourth and fifth innings, and finished out the game by facing four batters each in the sixth and seventh frames.

North Quincy scored all of its runs the fifth. Freshman Beth Goodrich and senior Jen Conley led off with walks and sophomore Lisa Schifone followed with a bunt single to load the bases.

Junior Kathryn MacRitchie (2 for 4) knocked in Goodrich and Conley with an infield single and Schifone also came around to score on a throwing error to give North Quincy a 3-2 lead. Sophomore Casey Lorman (2 for 4) brought home MacRitchie with an RBI single and she later scored when Goodrich walked with the bases loaded.

The Red Raiders finished with eight hits. Sophomore Cristina Conley, junior Shannon Barrett and Jen Conley (double) added the other hits. "I was worried because our bats were silent until the fifth inning," Doyle said.

North Quincy Girls Basketball Team Honored

Quincy Royals Split Double-Header

The Quincy Royals adult baseball team split their double-header Sunday against Fire Pub at Garvey Park in Dorchester.

Members of the Massachusetts Independent Baseball League, the Royals rode the arm of Quincy's Rob Celata with a 6-4 win in the first game, but suffered a 10-2 loss in the second game.

Quincy (3-1) is off Memorial Day weekend. It will begin an eight-game home stand Sunday, June 3, against the Brockton Cubs in a single, nine-inning game at O'Rourke Park at 10 a.m.

A 2000 North Quincy

High School graduate, Celata pitched his second straight complete game, striking out 16 and allowing four runs on six hits. He also accounted for all of Quincy's runs, going 2 for 3 with an opposite field grand slam, an RBI single and a run scored on Brian Deputula's triple.

"It's fun coming to the game and watching Rob pitch, but it's awesome to see him do what he enjoys and that's dominate," said Matt Robinson, the Royals' DH and Quincy High School graduate. "I'd say he's the Pedro of this league."

In the second game, the Pub jumped all over Deputula, another 2000 NQHS graduate. Deputula pitched three innings and allowed all 10 runs, seven earned.

"You'll have your good days and your bad," said manager Eric Ricupero. "Nobody is discouraged with Brian's outing. He's a good athlete who gives his best every time out there and that's all we can ask for."

Adam Byrnes looked sharp in relief of Deputula, tossing three innings of shut-out ball with eight strikeouts.

In the season opener, Quincy swept the Holbrook Cardinals, winning game one, 12-1, and game two, 16-1.

In the first game, Celata fired a one-hitter with 13 strikeouts, two walks and an unearned run. He also did his job at the plate, going 3 for 3 with a two-run home run.

Last year with the Royals, Celata went 4-1 with a 2.64 ERA and struck out 61 in 30 2/3 innings pitched.

In the second game, Deputula had some pretty big shoes to fill after Celata's performance, but they seemed to fit quite comfortably. The right-hander also one-hit the Cardinals with 14 punchouts.

Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run For ALS June 9

The fourth annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS will be held Saturday, June 9, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Also known as the "Squirrel Run," the event is in honor of Jimmy "Squirrel" Kennedy, a Quincy native, husband and father who died in 1997 at age 31 of Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS) or Lou Gehrig's disease.

His father, Christopher,

Quincy school committee member and former Dean of Students at Northeastern University, also died of ALS.

Richard Kennedy, his brother, and Marty Levenson, a childhood friend, established the Squirrel Run to raise awareness of ALS. All proceeds go directly to the Cecil B. Day Center for Neuromuscular Research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. More than 400 people participated in last year's event, which raised approximately $40,000.

Race day registration will start at 8 a.m. The 2.5-mile fitness walk will begin at 9:30 a.m. and the five-mile run at 10 a.m.

The event also includes special children's events and

Quincy-North Sailing Team Finishes Season Undefeated

The Quincy-North Quincy cooperative sailing team completed an undefeated season last Thursday with a 2-0 victory over Newton Country day school to win the Red Division of the Mass. Bay League.

The team will now compete in the today's (Thursday's) state championships.

Quincy-North Quincy (4-0) dominated the Red Division as it also picked up 2-0 wins over Newman Prep, Winnacunnet and Framingham.

"For most of these races the competition was between our boats to see who finished higher," said assistant coach Bob Uhlar.

First-year head coach Ray Whitehouse (North Quincy) and Uhlar (Quincy) could not have been more pleased with the program. Both Whitehouse and Uhlar struggled to start programs in the schools: Whitehouse with volleyball and Uhlar with basketball.

"We sensed we had something special at the start but were still nervous about not knowing the competition," Uhlar said.

At Quincy High, sailors race out of the Town River Yacht Club and nearby Wessagusset Yacht Club in Weymouth, while North Quincy reaps the benefit of Squantum Yacht Club and its strong racing program.

"From the beginning we weren't teaching basic skills, we concentrated on racing tactics," Whitehouse said.

"The other necessary ingredient for success is depth," he added. "We were able to race as many as seven boats where other teams struggled to race the required three boats. We didn't really worry about fielding a team, it was more of who was sailing really fast at that time. Competing builds winners and much of the time our kids were competing for a spot on the varsity. We had some real wars out there."

The team showed the balance that makes coaches sleep well at night. The fastest boat was sailed by senior Marshall Doughty and crewed by sophomore Kristen Eng.

"Marshall is a brilliant sailor and tactician," Whitehouse said. "He is a veteran of national competition and provided leadership to the 'Brat Pack.' Marshall was pretty much an automatic first in any race and that really puts pressure on the other team."

In race two, the other team would attempt to cover or slow Doughty down, but that proved to be a big mistake. Close behind Doughty in skill but lacking in experience were senior Matt Petit and freshmen Elyse Dolbec, Matt Schow and Mary Curran.

Their crews were Mike

Griffith, Liz Favorito, Joe Jenkins, Megan Lahar. Future stars include Liz Gribaudo, Alison Ahearn and Lauren Ready.

"We also have kids with skills who couldn't commit this year but will be impact sailors next year, including Marshall's sister, Caitlin," Uhlar said. "Ray and I plan on a little time off from house painting this summer to visit some of the regattas."

Quincy-North Quincy also fielded a team in the White Division that finished with a 2-3 record. The team beat Cambridge and Concord Academy and lost close matches to Dover Sherbourne, Boston Latin and Winchester.

North Quincy Physicals For Athletes May 31

Physicals for North Quincy High School athletes will be held Thursday, May 31, from 8:30 to 9:15 a.m. at the school's nurse's office.

They will also be held Thursday, June 7, from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Appointments must be made with the nurse, Mrs. Callahan.

Workforce Training Fund Applications Due July 16

The Massachusetts Workforce Training Fund is a state fund financed entirely by Massachusetts' employers, and enacted into law in July, 1998.

Its purpose is to provide resources to Massachusetts business and workers to train current and newly hired employees.

The goal of the fund is to ensure that Massachusetts businesses remain in the commonwealth and maintain their competitiveness in the global economy.

Some $14 million is available for competitive bidding during this fiscal year. Principle focus of this funding is to make sure small-to-medium sized businesses unable to make this investment on their own remain competitive.

Grants are competitive and range between $2,000 to $250,000. Total amount of the grant must be matched on dollar for dollar basis, either in cash or in-kind.

The South Coastal Workforce Investment Board (SCWIB), 1431 Hancock St., Quincy, is the key local agency which promotes the Workforce Training Fund and helps companies prepare their applications.

Deadline for the next round of funding is July 16.

For an application or more information, call 617-745-4010.

The SCWIB is one of 16 workforce investment boards in Massachusetts addressing the workforce development needs of local communities.

Rev. Msgr. Peter Hart To Celebrate 65th Ordination Anniversary

Rev. Msgr. Peter F. Hart will celebrate a mass at Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck, Sunday, May 27, at 10:30 a.m. to commemorate the 65th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Monsignor Hart was ordained May 22, 1936, at the Holy Cross Cathedral by Cardinal William O'Connell. He graduated from Boston College in 1931 prior to entering the seminary.

Monsignor Hart's first assignment as an ordained priest was at Most Blessed Sacrament Church where he served from 1936 through 1945. While at Blessed Sacrament he set up a number of youth and sports programs. He also established a Boy Scout troop.

Among those who participated in the church programs and served as altar boys included former Mayors Walter Hannon and Frank McCauley as well as former City Council President Leo Kelly and the late Police Chief Francis Finn.

After leaving Blessed Sacrament in the summer of 1945, Monsignor Hart served at St. Catherine's in Somerville, St.

REV. MSGR. PETER HART

James' in Boston's South End, and St. William's in Dorchester.

He then became pastor at St. Jude's in Norfolk, where he also served as Roman Catholic chaplain at the Norfolk Correctional Institute. He became pastor of St. Clement's in Somerville until his retirement in 1984. He was elevated to the rank of Monsignor in April, 1967.

Since his retirement, he served in the bishop's office in Lowell and for a number of years has assisted at St. Pius V in Lynn.

A reception will follow the anniversary mass at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

Evangelical Church

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Memorial Day began ... as a national observance ... during the Civil War, first in Mississippi (Columbus and Vicksburg), Virginia (Winchester) and other states.

In 1865, it was observed nationally. That year the U.S. Army suggested graves be decorated throughout the country.

Christians, idealists and moral principles and philosophies notwithstanding ... Unless a free nation contains those willing to fight and die, if necessary, for freedom, liberty can't survive.

To those who responded to the call of duty and gave their lives, the nation is indebted.

Let us all, as Americans, join together this Memorial Day and honor those who have fallen in military service. The most appropriate way to commemorate them and their deeds is also the simplest ... Remember ...

Your Social Security

Student Beneficiary Payment Process Change

By LAURIE ZASTROW

If you are a high school student receiving Social Security benefits, a change in the law will affect you.

You will receive a form from Social Security about three months before you turn 18, instead of five months as under previous law, requesting information on your school plans. Completion of the form will determine whether your benefits will continue after age 18. More than 200,000 students annually are expected to receive the notices.

Social Security pays benefits to the dependents of retired and disabled workers and to the survivors of deceased workers. Ordinarily, benefits stop when the child turns age 18; benefits may continue until age 19 for students still in high school.

To receive benefits after age 18, students should take the following steps:

- Complete form SSA-1372 with information about their school plans.
- Take the form to the school for certification.
- Return the form to the local Social Security office by mail or in person.
- Leave a reporting form with the school.

Students may call the nearest Social Security office and get help in completing the form by phone. The form will then be mailed for a signature. Failure to sign and return the form could result in benefits being stopped.

The new payment process is expected to require less work for the schools, resulting in fewer contacts regarding student beneficiaries and providing more current information to Social Security. It provides for certification of the student's status up front, and additional contacts will be required only if the information provided changes.

Social Security Lifetime Protection For Asian American/Pacific Islander Elderly

Demographers anticipate that all segments of the older American population will increase, with the greatest increase -- 358 percent -- in the older Asian American and Pacific Islander group.

Social Security has made a difference in the lives of Asian Americans. Without Social Security, the poverty rate for the elderly Asian Americans would increase from eight percent to 34 percent.

Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders tend to have higher life expectancies than the majority of the population.

Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders have one of the highest life expectancies at age 65. Asian American men who were 65 in 2000 can expect to live to age 85, compared to age 81 for the majority of men. Asian American women can expect to live to age 88, compared to age 85 for the majority of women.

With longer life expectancies, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders will live more years in retirement and receive more of a return from Social Security's cost-of-living protection.

For more information on Social Security's retirement program, visit our website at www.ssa.gov, call toll free at 1-800-772-1213 or visit your local Social Security office.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

JUNE 6, 7, 13, 14, 20 & 21 CALL FOR RESERVATIONS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Love rules the amorous Aries. So do make those Sheep's eyes at someone you'd like to know better. (A loving Leo, perhaps?) And don't be surprised at what follows.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You might enjoy your time at home decorating and redecorating all you like. But friends' old and new won't accept "regrets" to their invitations. So go out and have a great time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 22) You need someone who appreciates you. If this person is already in your life, congratulations. If not, don't settle for anyone who doesn't value you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A previous problem is cleared up soon to your advantage. Meanwhile, give your self-confidence a much-needed boost by taking on a tough project that you know you can handle.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're often picked to lead in a group situation. But that can cost you time and energy that you might want to spend elsewhere. Feel free to decline. They'll still love the Big Cat.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're usually the staid-and-steady sort. But the adventurous side of you emerges, and you feel like doing something different and maybe a mite daring. Good for you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You need more preparation before tackling a poorly performing venture. Research possible solutions. The more you know when you start, the more likely all will end well.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your work is noticed with approval. A promotion could follow. At home, there's some unexpected fallout from a family matter you thought had been cleared up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A relationship you thought just needed time to ripen could be withering instead. It's not too late to save it with reassurances that it's still your priority.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your problem with accepting workplace-related changes will disappear once you accept the fact that — like it or not — change is part of progress.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't feel guilty about indulging in such luxuries as beauty treatments for yourself and beautiful things for your home. They bring joy to the soul — and you deserve them.

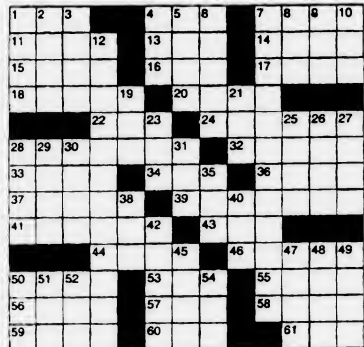

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Don't keep a low profile about your project until you're sure it can succeed. You'll achieve more if you allow others to know what you've done and to share in the work.

BORN THIS WEEK: You move with a natural grace and elegance found in those who were born to dance. Children take to you and want to be your friend.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper-left-hand corner and check each of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Deadline June 9 To Apply For Disaster Aid

Residents and business owners in the seven Massachusetts counties who suffered losses as a result of severe weather and flooding have until June 9 to apply for state and federal disaster relief.

“We’ve had more than 5,000 applicants requesting help,” said Louis H. Botta, federal coordinating officer for the Massachusetts disaster-recovery effort. “However, there may be people who have not applied who need help. We would like to reach persons who suffered damage following the March storms and encourage them to apply for assistance.”

Botta urged anyone who suffered damages or losses as a result of that flooding to being the process by calling the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) toll-free registration number, 1-800-462-9029. Speech- and hearing-impaired applicants can call 1-800-462-7585 (TTY).

As of May 22, federal and state officials report more than $7.2 million has been disbursed to residents of Bristol, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth, Suffolk and Worcester counties in the form of grants for housing assistance and other serious disaster-related needs, and as U.S. Small Business Administration low-interest loans for homeowners, renters and businesses.

Those who have already applied and need information may call the FEMA Helpline for information, 1-800-525-0321. The number for speech- and hearing-impaired applicants is 1-800-462-7585 (TTY).

One-Way Street Blamed For Drop In Sales At Gasoline Station

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO
Nick Pesirides has been at the Sunoco Gas Station on Quincy Shore Drive for 10 years, but told the License Board Tuesday, his lease is up May 31 and that he may have to close because of a one-way street.

Addressing the License Board at the meeting, Pesirides said he used to sell 140,000 gallons of gasoline a month. But he said neighbors had one of the streets in the area made a "one-way" which has reduced the volume to about 60,000 to 70,000 gallons a month.

Pesirides told the board in order to sustain the station as it is, he asked the board if they would allow him to open a small convenience store, or reopen the bays for repairs.

He said he has the support of Rep. Bruce Ayers and the Squantum Yacht Club.

He said he services the elderly who can't pump gas on their own and also provides rest rooms.

He noted that Quincy is the only town which does not allow convenience stores.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the board discourages convenience stores in gas stations and added the "concept of selling milk, bread and gasoline is not successful."

Shea said the one exception is a Getty gasoline station on Furnace Brook Pkwy. which is "grandfathered" and the only gas station in the city with a convenience store.

Shea said he "hates to see Nick sign a lease with the thought of having a store."

He said he and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman plan to visit the station Wednesday and discuss the lease with Pesirides.

Fenno Street To Be Rebuilt This Summer

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin announces the reconstruction of Fenno St. in Wollaston will be done this summer.

In announcing this scheduled work, Durkin stated that "re-surfacing Fenno Street and replacing the sidewalks and curbing has been a long-standing priority of mine. Fenno Street is a main thoroughfare traveled by residents living on many streets in the Wollaston/Beechwood Knoll neighborhood."

Durkin also stated that Fenno St. has been a source of frustration due to chronic problems with pot holes.

As part of the reconstruction project, it is expected that sidewalks will be widened on one side of the street and will extend from Hancock St. to the intersection at the Beechwood Knoll School. Durkin said the intersection at the school was reconstructed a few years ago following the reopening of Beechwood.

In a letter to residents, Durkin invited neighbors who encounter problems during the construction to call him at City Hall or at his home.

The cost of the project is estimated to be roughly $360,000.

able in terms of surviving any opposition that might present itself, including environmental appeals," Phelan said.

As for the DPW site, which was recommended by the siting commission and is before the Building Needs Subcommittee of the Quincy School Committee, Phelan said that cleanup costs, size, and DPW relocation were concerns but that the top concern was traffic.

"This is clearly a problem area," Phelan said of the beginning section of Sea St., site of numerous accidents over the years. "If it could have been made safe, it would have already been done for the police."

Phelan, who is serving his first term as a member of the School Committee, was one of the leading voices against constructing the new Quincy High School over a former industrial landfill off Quincy Avenue, a site which was removed from consideration last year.

The next meeting of the School Committee is scheduled for June 6.

Cahill Resolve Urges Soccer Fields Be Named For Michael Therrien

The City Council voted Monday night to support efforts to name the city's new soccer fields on Quarry St. after the late Michael Therrien.

Approving a resolve authored by Councillor at-large Timothy Cahill, the council will request the city's Park and Recreation Board to name the fields after Therrien, who died May 30, 1999, at the age of 40 after a six-month battle with cancer.

Therrien, husband to Marie (Duggan) Therrien of Wollaston and the father of four children, worked at Harvard Pilgrim Health Care in Quincy. He coached in-house and travel soccer for Quincy Youth Soccer and also served on its board of directors.

Cahill praised Therrien's community involvement, especially when it came to coaching youth sports. "He was a wonderful and caring individual, one who gave of his time willingly and inspired others to do the same," Cahill said, adding that the dedication of soccer fields in his memory would serve as a fitting tribute.

Also To Plant More Trees

Sheets Considering Bond Issue For Roads, Sidewalks

Mayor James Sheets said he is considering a "substantial" bond issue to address the city's road and sidewalk needs and also plant more trees in the city.

Although no final figures had been reached, Sheets said he would submit a bond issue to the City Council "very soon" of at least $500,000 and possibly as high as $1 million.

"These issues are very high priorities for the people of this city," said Sheets, who added he would like to see between $750,000 to $800,000 devoted to sidewalk and road repair.

As for new trees, Sheets said the city had not planted trees in more than two years and that it was "time to take a look at it."

In addition to the expected bond issue, Sheets said the city was scheduled to receive an additional $200,000 in Chapter 90 funds on July 1 which could be used for the roads and sidewalks.

Would Be Sheets's First Major Challenger

Phelan Seen As Mayoral Candidate

By HENRY BOSWORTH
School Committeeman William Phelan isn't saying "yes" or "no" but he seems to be seriously looking at a run for mayor this year.

And if he does, he would make the first major challenger veteran incumbent James Sheets has had since winning the mayor's office in 1989.

Asked to comment on the speculation buzz along the political front that he is going to run, Phelan told 'The Sun' Tuesday:

"A number of supporters have urged me to run. I will make my intentions known at the appropriate time."

The intentions would seem to be quite serious when he added:

"I sense a discontentment and dissatisfaction among a goodly number of hardworking citizens throughout the city who are looking for someone to step forward to provide the leadership and to voice their concerns."

Phelan, who is 41 and a practicing attorney, won a large following when he led the successful fight against the toxic waste dump on Quincy Avenue as the proposed leading site for the new Quincy High School.

He was the only elected official speaking out against the site at the time.

Phelan, who was a member of the Siting Commission, favors Faxon Field over the Department of Public Works site for the new high school. These are the last two sites of an original 20 possibilities.

For awhile it was thought that if Sheets had a major challenger as he seeks an historic seventh term this year, it would have been City Council President Paul Harold.

But Harold took himself out of the race when he was elected Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds last November.

And it looked like another ho-hum mayoral election year. Until now.

Sheets has run unopposed three times and has had to Ward 4's D'Amico, Connolly To Schedule Debates

By CRAIG SALTERS

Incumbent Michael D'Amico and challenger Bryan Connolly have agreed to debate one another in the race for the Ward 4 City Council seat.

D'Amico told The Sun Tuesday that he would accept Connolly's invitation to debate, a challenge made in the form of a May 25 letter to the councilor.

"I look forward to having as many debates as possible," said D'Amico, listing such possible debate sites as the Ward 4 Community Center, The Sterling Middle School, and the Lincoln-Hancock School. "It's a great opportunity to look at the past, present, and future of the ward."

Connolly's letter proposes "five to six debates" between now and the Nov. 6 election, calling the debates "an excellent forum for voters to learn about our positions on the many issues facing the city."

Specific details as to the time, location, and number of the debates will be discussed by the two candidates sometime this week.

"At the local level, the public is best served when candidates present themselves to voters in person," Connolly said in his May 25 letter to D'Amico.

D'Amico agreed but called the proposed debates "a mutual challenge," explaining that he had publicly issued the same debate challenge to Connolly at D'Amico's campaign kickoff May 11.

But Connolly said he was unaware of any such invitation to debate. "He didn't inform me of the challenge," Connolly said.

D'Amico said he took exception to a portion of Connolly's letter which read, "Voters deserve an opportunity to learn about the candidates' views, and backgrounds not just through campaign videos and mailings, but also on a personal level" and a later reference to "gimmickry."

"Campaign mailings and video make up an almost minute percentage of my campaign," said D'Amico, citing numerous neighborhood meetings and a 1995 campaign pledge of personal, "door to door" contact with Ward 4 residents.

But Connolly called D'Amico's recent production of a $3,000 campaign video a real issue.

"It highlights a difference between Michael and myself," Connolly said. "He invested thousands of dollars in a video but people can learn about me when I stand at their front door."

In turn, D'Amico pointed to what he termed Connolly's "absence" over the years at neighborhood meetings and public hearings on such topics as the proposed opening of a pawn shop in West Quincy, which was unsuccessful.

Connolly denied any lack of involvement on his part.

"I've always been active," Connolly said, "and certainly part of the reason I've been more active in the last six months is that I think we need a new perspective in Ward 4."

Avalon, Mound St. Beaches Committee Meets June 14

The Avalon and Mound St. Beaches Committee has scheduled a meeting Thursday, June 14 at 6:30 p.m. in the Richard J. Koch Family Complex at 100 Southern Artery across from Adams Field.

The purpose of the committee is to maintain a dialogue of neighborhood representatives with Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments, and the citywide Beaches and Coastal Commission in order to ensure input into the condition and maintenance of area beaches.

BIKING AND YOUR FEET

Biking, a popular activity for recreational and competitive reasons, is a great way to improve cardiovascular fitness and stay in shape. Besides a good bike, proper shoes are the most important piece of biking equipment you can buy. A shoe worn for cycling should support the arch, keep the forefoot balanced, lift the heel to maximize efficiency, and protect the foot. If a shoe allows the arch to collapse, the rider may experience arch pain, burning on the sole of the foot, or tendon problems. Other potential problems from improper or ill-fitting cycling shoes include toe numbness, sesamoiditis and shin splints. For the casual rider, cross-training shoes or cycling-hiking shoes work well. The more competitive rider will want cycling-specific shoes.

For those who participate in outdoor activities of all kinds, professional attention and guidance can help reduce the potential for discomfort and injury. Since any difficulties with our feet can adversely affect your comfort and lifestyle, we invite you to call for an appointment at 781-986-3668 to receive comprehensive foot care geared to your personal foot care needs. We're located at 999 North Main Street, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING. I am affiliated with the Brockton, Milton, Good Samaritan and Carney Hospitals, as well as the Quincy Medical Center.

P.S. Proper stretching and conditioning, the correct seat height and good pedaling technique will also help prevent cycling injuries.

'Their Sacrifices Justified And Meaningful'

McCauley Pays Tribute To Korean War Veterans

Councillor Frank McCauley, principal speaker at the Memorial Day Parade and Memorial exercises Monday said he felt the sacrifice made by United States servicemen in the Korean War as well as their comrades from the many countries of the United Nations was "justified and meaningful."

Speaking at the World War Podium, Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, McCauley noted that South Korea today remains a "free and independent nation" with a popularly elected president and national legislature.

The Quincy Veteran's Council dedicated the annual Memorial Day Parade and Memorial exercises this year in honor of the men and women of Quincy who served in the Korean War.

McCauley spoke about the early days of American intervention in the Korean War.

McCauley noted that during the early summer of 1950 the Americans and their South Korean allies fought a delaying action against the Communist invaders from North Korea until sufficient American reinforcements arrived. The war started on June 25, 1950 and concluded on July 27, 1953 when an armistice was signed.

McCauley noted that over 33,000 American servicemen were killed in action during the war with another 103,000 being wounded in action. McCauley also said that 131 Congressional Medals of Honor were awarded to United States servicemen.

McCauley concluded by noting that a beautiful memorial was constructed and dedicated to those men and women from Quincy who served during the Korean War. The names of the 37 men who gave their lives in battle in Korea are listed on the monument which is located outside Veteran's Memorial Stadium on Hancock St.

Council To Vote June 5 On Village At Quarry Hills

Acting as special permit granting authority, the City Council will meet Tuesday, June 5, at 7:30 p.m. in City Council Chambers to vote on the application of The Fingers Group to construct The Village At Quarry Hills, a proposed 324-unit apartment complex on Ricciuti Drive.

The Texas-based development company seeks a permit to construct the apartments by combining two parcels of land, one owned by the Joyce Family and the other owned by Quarry Hills Associates, the developers of the soon-to-open golf course.

The proposal has caused controversy because Quarry

Hills Associates used state funds to purchase the parcel, which was originally intended as part of the golf course complex.

Recent investigations were made by the state inspector general's office, which ruled that the sale of the 16.5 acre parcel from Quarry Hills Associates to The Fingers Group was legal.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said he supported the project but had scheduled a neighborhood meeting Wednesday night to discuss "the specifics of the permit," such as setbacks at Stoneridge Development, in order to reach consensus by the June 5 meeting.

ASSESSING SEVERITY

Many car experts say that regular oil changes are the best form of auto insurance in that they help to ensure the health and longevity of the engine. With this in mind, take a look at your owner's manual and review the recommendations for oil change intervals. The manufacturer is likely to make the distinction between "normal driving conditions" and "severe driving condition." The latter is usually defined as driving through dusty areas, towing a trailer or boat, frequent idling or idling for long periods, and driving for ten miles or less. Cars operated under these conditions should have an oil and oil filter change every three thousand miles or every three months, whichever comes first. A regular checkup, coupled with regularly scheduled maintenance such as oil changes, can greatly extend the life of your car. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be informed about everything in your car whether or not your car is leased. Our friendly, ASE Certified service staff, here at 258 Quincy Ave., E Braintree (781-843-1550), will gladly answer all your questions. BIKING AND YOUR FEET

Biking, a popular activity for recreational and competitive reasons, is a great way to improve cardiovascular fitness and stay in shape. Besides a good bike, proper shoes are the most important piece of biking equipment you can buy. A shoe worn for cycling should support the arch, keep the forefoot balanced, lift the heel to maximize efficiency, and protect the foot. If a shoe allows the arch to collapse, the rider may experience arch pain, burning on the sole of the foot, or tendon problems. Other potential problems from improper or ill-fitting cycling shoes include toe numbness, sesamoiditis and shin splints. For the casual rider, cross-training shoes or cycling-hiking shoes work well. The more competitive rider will want cycling-specific shoes.

For those who participate in outdoor activities of all kinds, professional attention and guidance can help reduce the potential for discomfort and injury. Since any difficulties with our feet can adversely affect your comfort and lifestyle, we invite you to call for an appointment at 781-986-3668 to receive comprehensive foot care geared to your personal foot care needs. We're located at 999 North Main Street, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING. I am affiliated with the Brockton, Milton, Good Samaritan and Carney Hospitals, as well as the Quincy Medical Center.

P.S. Proper stretching and conditioning, the correct seat height and good pedaling technique will also help prevent cycling injuries.

'Their Sacrifices Justified And Meaningful'

McCauley Pays Tribute To Korean War Veterans

Councillor Frank McCauley, principal speaker at the Memorial Day Parade and Memorial exercises Monday said he felt the sacrifice made by United States servicemen in the Korean War as well as their comrades from the many countries of the United Nations was "justified and meaningful."

Speaking at the World War Podium, Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, McCauley noted that South Korea today remains a "free and independent nation" with a popularly elected president and national legislature.

The Quincy Veteran's Council dedicated the annual Memorial Day Parade and Memorial exercises this year in honor of the men and women of Quincy who served in the Korean War.

McCauley spoke about the early days of American intervention in the Korean War.

McCauley noted that during the early summer of 1950 the Americans and their South Korean allies fought a delaying action against the Communist invaders from North Korea until sufficient American reinforcements arrived. The war started on June 25, 1950 and concluded on July 27, 1953 when an armistice was signed.

McCauley noted that over 33,000 American servicemen were killed in action during the war with another 103,000 being wounded in action. McCauley also said that 131 Congressional Medals of Honor were awarded to United States servicemen.

McCauley concluded by noting that a beautiful memorial was constructed and dedicated to those men and women from Quincy who served during the Korean War. The names of the 37 men who gave their lives in battle in Korea are listed on the monument which is located outside Veteran's Memorial Stadium on Hancock St.

Council To Vote June 5 On Village At Quarry Hills

Acting as special permit granting authority, the City Council will meet Tuesday, June 5, at 7:30 p.m. in City Council Chambers to vote on the application of The Fingers Group to construct The Village At Quarry Hills, a proposed 324-unit apartment complex on Ricciuti Drive.

The Texas-based development company seeks a permit to construct the apartments by combining two parcels of land, one owned by the Joyce Family and the other owned by Quarry Hills Associates, the developers of the soon-to-open golf course.

The proposal has caused controversy because Quarry Hills Associates used state funds to purchase the parcel, which was originally intended as part of the golf course complex.

Recent investigations were made by the state inspector general's office, which ruled that the sale of the 16.5 acre parcel from Quarry Hills Associates to The Fingers Group was legal.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said he supported the project but had scheduled a neighborhood meeting Wednesday night to discuss "the specifics of the permit," such as setbacks at Stoneridge Development, in order to reach consensus by the June 5 meeting.

ASSESSING SEVERITY

Many car experts say that regular oil changes are the best form of auto insurance in that they help to ensure the health and longevity of the engine. With this in mind, take a look at your owner's manual and review the recommendations for oil change intervals. The manufacturer is likely to make the distinction between "normal driving conditions" and "severe driving condition." The latter is usually defined as driving through dusty areas, towing a trailer or boat, frequent idling or idling for long periods, and driving for ten miles or less. Cars operated under these conditions should have an oil and oil filter change every three thousand miles or every three months, whichever comes first. A regular checkup, coupled with regularly scheduled maintenance such as oil changes, can greatly extend the life of your car. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be informed about everything in your car whether or not your car is leased. Our friendly ASE Certified service staff, here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), will gladly answer all your questions. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We are 'A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.'

Can Andy Do It?

One of Andy Card's personal goals as President George W. Bush's Chief of Staff is to have him visit Quincy.

So he confided to City Council President Paul Harold when the two long-time friends met recently at the White House.

They served together for 10 years in the state legislature, Harold as a senator and Card as a representative from his hometown of Holbrook, which was part of Harold's senatorial district.

During the White House visit Harold saw evidence of the close affinity Bush apparently has for John Quincy Adams, the first and only other son of a U.S. President.

Card showed Harold the Cabinet Room, the Oval office and a small reception room off the latter. And there, hung a portrait of John Quincy Adams, dominating the area.

Card said Bush especially asked that the Adams portrait be moved from elsewhere in the White House and hung near him off the Oval Office.

And, at that, Harold seized upon the opportunity to ask Card: "When is the President coming to the City of Presidents?"

Card told Harold he "wanted to make it happen" and pledged his efforts to try to make it a Presidential priority.

Card didn't say so but the best chance of Bush coming here would be someday when he is in the Boston area.

He could then swing out to Quincy and maybe visit the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams birthplaces. Or the First Parish Church where the two Presidents and their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine are entombed. Or the Adams Mansion which served as the Summer White House and where four generations

After weeks of collecting over 170 favorite and ethnic recipes, the fifth graders of Merry Mount School are now selling their spiral-bound cookbook Our Best Home Cooking.

The cookbook is dedicated to Merry Mount Principal Kathleen Kelly, who is retiring after 35 years as an educator in Quincy.

Cost of the book is $6 and profits will buy new number, letter, and decorative dies for the school's Ellison Letter Cutting Machine.

The book features ethnic recipes gathered as a result of the fifth graders' independent research into their cultural heritage. Sections include appetizers, soups, salads, main dishes, breads, desserts and cooking hints. Each recipe will also list the of the Adams family lived.

And while in Quincy Bush could take a quick spin over to Milton and visit his father's birthplace at 173 Adams St.

George H.W. and George W. Bush (nicknamed "Quincy" by his father) now share father and son Presidential honors with John and John Quincy Adams. And Barbara Bush now, like Abigail, is the wife and mother of two Presidents.

But Quincy still holds the distinct honor of being the only birthplace of father-and-son Presidents.

George H.W. Bush, as noted, was born in Milton and George W. in New Haven, Conn. The Bush family then dug new political roots in Texas.

The Adams's roots, however, remained deep and forever in Quincy.

Andy Card has the reputation of keeping a promise. You can bet he is really going to try to bring Bush here.

WELL, IT LOOKS like there'll be a preliminary election Sept. 11 for city councillor at-large.

Denis Tardo, who has nomination papers out, would make the seventh candidate necessitating a preliminary run-off to see which six will be on the final ballot Nov. 6.

He says he is definitely going to file them and is running "because of a few issues in the city."

One he says, is that the city council cut $10,000 out of the Election Department budget. Believing, he says, that there would be no city-wide preliminary election.

"I don't know how they could have predicted that, he says. "But they were wrong because now there will be a city-wide preliminary election."

Frank McCauley, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, says $20,000 was actually cut: $10,000 from the poll workers account and $10,000 from police election details.

"The rationale," he says, "was that there hasn't been a city-wide preliminary election in many years."

And if one developed, he says, the money would be restored to the Elections Department.

Looks like one has developed.

Tardo is a member of the Board of Voter Registrars but says that won't make him ineligible to run.

"I checked that out," he says. "I can run as long as I don't participate in vote certification or a recount. But I can read off the election results election night."

Wonder if he'll get challenged on that?

WELL, IT REALLY WASN'T any surprise.

Jim Sheets stopped by the Election Department last week to pick up nomination papers. For a seventh term as Quincy's mayor.

Field Day will run from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sand Machine will perform at 1 p.m. . . .

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1911 POSTCARD is a view of one of the many granite quarries that dominated the landscape and hills of West Quincy. For over 150 years millions of tons of Quincy granite were quarried and shipped around the United States. This particular scene doesn't show the typical deep hole created by the Quincy method of quarrying. Even though this view is almost 100 years ago the cliff on the right resembles the large outcropping of granite on Quarry Street across from the Sons of Italy Hall. The profile of that area is being changed once again as construction proceeds on the High Point apartment complex.

USS Salem Assn. Supports Move To Marina Bay

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The USS Salem Association supports the move of the USS Salem to Marina Bay to make it a more viable and accessible tourist and educational attraction.

This support should come as no surprise since we, as proud officers and crewmen, want the Salem to remain an integral segment of the USNSM to afford future generations the opportunity to visit the ship and receive an in-person, visual lesson in history.

Currently, school children are attending science classes on board, with tutoring from a former crewman, and the Boy and Girl Scout programs are flourishing. These children are getting a very graphic view of a Naval Warship that helped maintain the peace during the "Cold War." The Salem, like many other naval ships, helped to preserve our country and the liberties we all enjoy every day. Many take these liberties quite casually; however, veterans of all services do not because they know the price that has been paid, not only in war but also in peace time. Witness the recent events with the USS Cole and our Navy plane in China.

When the Salem initially returned to Quincy to be the "focal point" of the USNSM there was jubilation and only positive accolades and reaction in the press, as thousands of people lined the shores and vantage points to see her return. Recently, the Salem underwent overhaul and painting in South Boston, returning with great fanfare to Quincy amid positive press again. Where were the "Nay" sayers at these times? Probably among those celebrating these arrivals. No comments of "ugly, bucket of bolts" were heard then.

In her activity duty days the Salem was known as "The Pride Of The Fleet." Built by Quincy shipbuilders, who took pride in their shipbuilding prowess, the Salem stands as a "Memorial" not only to those who proudly built her, but also to those who proudly served aboard her for the 10 years of her active existence. We, as an association, wish to see the USS Salem continue to serve the USNSM and our country.

Those who forget the bright past are doomed to a very dim future.

Ray Creamer, Vice President
USS Salem Association
Leesburg, Fla.

An Open Letter To Asian Americans

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
A Letter to Asian-Americans:

To those who are involved in making their communities better, we are grateful for your efforts, and appreciate them.

To those who aren't, please get involved. If you want your neighborhood to be or continue to be safe; if you want your schools to be or continue to be good places to learn; if you want your streets to be clean, participate. If you want something done, you must raise your voice and let it be heard. Don't depend on others to do everything. Clean streets, good schools, safe neighborhoods are the result of people participation and hard work.

We Asian-Americans have been stereotyped as quiet and docile, saying "yes" and obeying whatever comes our way. And to a degree, it's true. If you want to change this image, make yourselves heard, seen... participate.

FUND SOUGHT FOR TOWN RIVER DREDGING

The campaign to secure funds for the long-awaited dredging of Town River was waged on two fronts this week. Boston and Washington.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee at the State House to win support for the state's share of the $700,000 project. Meanwhile, William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, and Fred Bergfors, chairman of the chamber's harbor improvement committee, were in Washington seeking federal funds for the project.

Bergfors pointed out the need for the dredging to enable the new, large tankers to deliver fuel oil and gasoline to the tank farms along the river, at cheaper cost than was possible with the smaller ships.

Tuna Fish Cakes

Last week, as I was preparing dinner, it needed something else. After going to a local market for fresh fish to make fish cakes, the market only had prepared stuffed fish.

And so with some cans of tuna on the shelf, I used just one can of white meat tuna, and the results were so tasty, that I probably went back to using the fresh fish. And it's much more economical.

Tuna Fish Cakes

1 can white meat tuna
2 cups mashed potatoes (I used instant)
1 egg about 2 tablespoons bread crumbs about 2 tablespoons flour (I sprinkled flour until it was the right consistency.
A teaspoon of fresh parsley (jarred is okay)

I have to start by saying when I improvise a recipe, I am not measuring, but I go by the feel and look of the food I am preparing. So some of the mixtures will need your own expertise.

First, prepare the mashed potatoes and cool for a bit. Add the rest of the ingredients except the cooking oil and blend until you can form a cake with your hand without getting sticky.

In hot oil, drop the cakes and cook until brown on each side and drain on a paper towel. Keep in a warming oven until ready to eat, or pop them in the microwave...but they won't be as crispy. They are so good and not salty which is my pet peeve...fish cakes that are purchased are usually laden with salt.

Cathleen MacDonald Honored By Work, Inc.

Quincy resident Cathleen MacDonald received the Daniel Hickey Award for Residential Support at Work, Inc.'s recent Annual Awards Ceremony at the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston.

Each year, Work, Inc., a Quincy-based non-profit providing a range of programs and services for individuals with mental retardation, chronic mental illness, and multiple disabilities, recognizes people and organizations who have made the effort to create as full and as normal a life as possible for those with disabilities.

MacDonald has been assisted by Work, Inc. for a number of years and has consistently held a job since 1987. She lives on her own with a roommate in Quincy and receives ongoing case management and skills training from the agency.

Other honorees this year included: Sheila Faren, received the Award for Outstanding Progress in Employment; Kwasi Hewitt, received the Employee of the Year Award; State Senator Therese Murray of Plymouth; received the Public Service Award; Best Buddies International, Inc., received the Probus Award; and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Massachusetts, received the Corporate Award.

"We are proud to honor individuals and businesses that have exemplified our mission," said Joanne Levine, CEO of Work, Inc. "These award winners are an inspiration to everyone in our community."

WBZ radio personality Anthony Silva served as master of ceremonies for the event.

Cherylann Smith On Fisher College Dean's List

Cherylann L. Smith of Quincy is on the dean's list for the fall semester at Fisher College in Boston.

She is the daughter of Donald and Janet Smith.

MILESTONE — Betty and Charles Sweeney recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary, a highlight of which was a surprise cruise of Boston Harbor aboard a yacht chartered by their children.

Mr., Mrs. Charles Sweeney Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Sweeney of Ames St., recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

A highlight was a surprise four-hour cruise of Boston Harbor aboard a yacht chartered by their children.

Twenty-seven family members including six children and nine grandchildren, joined them for the cruise.

Their daughter Joanne and son-in-law James Troup of Braintree drove them around Boston "to see the sights" allowing the other members of the family time to gather at the yacht and to greet and surprise them with a large banner proclaiming, "Happy 60th Anniversary."

As appropriate gear for the cruise, the family presented them with hooded sweatshirts personalized with their names, "Betty & Charlie" and the dates "5/10/41-5/10/01." They were married May 10, 1941 in Providence, R.I.

Five of the couple's sons, four of whom came on from out of state, took part in the celebration and cruise.

The sons are: Allan of Louisville, Ky.; Donald of Toms River, N.J.; Thomas of Jefferson, N.H.; Robert, an Air Force master sergeant stationed in California and John, of Townsend, MA. A sixth son, Charles H. Sweeney died several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney have 12 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mr. Sweeney, a former member of the Quincy school committee, is retired from the Veterans Administration with which he served as chief contact officer of the Veterans Services Division at the Boston Regional office.

He is a combat veteran of World War II, serving with the 26th Infantry Division (YD) and a Purple Heart recipient.

Mrs. Sweeney, the former Elizabeth Harriman, is the great granddaughter of New Hampshire Gov. Walter Harriman.

Seaside Gardeners Hosting 'Secret Gardens' Tour

Seaside Gardeners of Squantum is hosting a garden tour titled "The Secret Gardens of Squantum" Saturday, June 16 from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Laurie Kelliher, chairperson, notes: "This is the first such event of the club's 49-year history. The remarkable topography of the Squantum area, from marsh to rocky hillsides with pudding stone deposits from the glacial era, lends itself well to creative gardening."

"There will be 14 gardens to tour each reflective not only the gardener's personality, but also the uniqueness of the location. In addition, two garden clubs projects are included in the tour and two of the homes will be open for partial viewing. The Boutique will feature lovely gift items, and refreshments will be available at several of locations."

Advance sale tickets are $12 and can be purchased by sending a self addressed, stamped envelope to Betty Ellis, 16 Harborview St., Squantum, MA. 02171. Ticket requests received after June 11 will be reserved and can be picked up on the day of the tour at the Squantum Community Center, 136 Standish Rd., Squantum. Advance sale tickets can also be purchased at Stamos & Stamos Realtors, 747 East Squantum St., Squantum.

Tickets can also be purchased the day of the tour for $15 at the Squantum Community Center.

All proceeds from the Secret Gardens of Squantum garden tour benefit the Squantum Causeway Trust.

Presidents AARP Chapter Closing Meeting June 6

Quincy Historical Society Fundraiser Postponed So Card Can Attend Moakley Funeral

The Quincy Historical Society's Capital Campaign Kickoff scheduled for Friday has been postponed to allow its guest speaker, White House Chief of Staff Andrew Card, to attend funeral ceremonies for Congressman George Moakley.

Joyce Baker, president of the Quincy Historical Society, said that Card's appearance at the event will be rescheduled "within a week to 10 days."

"Obviously, he was a great draw for us," said Baker of Card, a Holbrook native who served under both President George Bush and President Ronald Reagan and was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives from 1975 to 1983.

Card had been scheduled to speak at Friday's kickoff fundraiser in the John Adams Building at State Street South but will now represent President George W. Bush at Moakley's funeral.

Moakley, a longtime Democratic Congressman from South Boston, died Monday after a battle with cancer.

WHAT DO YOU DO ABOUT AN INGROWN TOENAIL?

The treatment of ingrown toenails is probably among the most common conditions that a Podiatrist (Foot Specialist) treats. Patients seek care because the condition can be very painful and often is accompanied by an infection of the soft tissue around the nail border. In certain patients, like those with Diabetes or poor circulation, the infection can be serious enough to require intravenous antibiotics and/or hospitalization. Most individuals, however, will improve quickly with the proper treatment. In general, attempts to solve the problem without seeking professional help seem to fail, especially if the condition has been present for a long time and has resulted in numerous infections.

Patients relate several "home" approaches like cutting a "V" to allow the sides of the nail to grow out, placing cotton under the corners of the nail and softening the nail with over-the-counter products. Some individuals use needle-

Flagpole Dedication Ceremonies At Neighborhood Club

The Neighborhood Club of Quincy will hold dedication ceremonies today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. for a new flagpole outside the club's 27 Glendale Rd. location.

The first flag flown will be the burial flag of the late Bernard McNamara, an Army Air Corps Veteran of World War II and former prisoner of war, a longtime resident of Quincy and longtime member of The Neighborhood Club with his wife Ailina.

"I'm delighted," said Mrs. McNamara, who presented the idea of a new flagpole to club members and offered her husband's flag for the ceremonies. "It's a very appropriate tribute."

Mrs. McNamara, 85 years old and a lifelong resident of Quincy, was married at The Neighborhood Club in 1947 and both she and her husband became members in 1979, shortly after buying a home near the club.

An earlier flagpole, Mrs. McNamara said, had flown for years outside the club but was taken down in the early 1970's because it had fallen into a state of disrepair.

After her husband's flag has flown a suitable period of time, she said, the club intends to fly similar flags of other deceased veterans and club members.

Ed Flavin, chairman of the club's Long Range Planning Committee who spearheaded the efforts for a new flagpole along with committee member Anthony Losordo, praised Mrs. McNamara for her suggestion.

"We were in 100 percent agreement that that this should be done and done immediately," Flavin said. "It was long overdue and many thanks to Ailina McNamara for bringing it to our attention."

In addition to the new flagpole, there is also a new granite marker honoring all past and present members of The Neighborhood Club donated by the Canniff Monument Company, 34 Intervale St.

Neighborhood Club of Quincy officers joining Flavin at the dedication ceremonies include: President Paul Rooney; Vice-President Matthew McDonnell; Manager Roger Brousseau; Secretary Richard Roche; and Mary Sheffield, a member of the board of directors.

Bernard McNamara, who died in 1993, served as a navigator in the Army Air Corps during World War II and was shot down over Europe on his 25th mission. He spent two years in a POW camp in Frankfurt, Germany. He received the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal, the Purple Heart, and the POW Medal.

A school psychologist in the Boston Public Schools for 21 years, McNamara was a member of the Boston Teachers Union, the Boston Retired Teachers Association, and the Quincy Historical Society.

He was a former commander of American Ex-POW's, Massachusetts Chapter 1, and a member of the American Legion Post, the Disabled American Veterans, and the 8th Air Force Historical Society of Washington, D.C.

The McNamaras are the parents of Dr. Bernard McNamara of California and Gail Arpaio of Tennessee.

Marilyn Fernandez and Melissa Mahon, both of Quincy, were members of a volunteer force of 120 State Street Corporation employees who took part in Project Bread's Walk for Hunger.

They either walked the walk or staffed the company's checkpoint booth at the 18.5-mile mark on the 20-mile route that took the final walker 12 hours to complete.

The effort raised more than $3 million for hungry people across Massachusetts. The proceeds will provide funding for nearly 400 emergency food pantries, soup kitchens, food banks and food salvage programs.

The purpose of the committees is to maintain a dialogue of neighborhood representatives with Thomas

Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments in order to ensure community input into the condition of area parks and playgrounds.

Closer Ward Councillor Networking Proposed By Cain

Ward 3 City Councillor Candidate John Cain proposes, if elected, that city councillors "put on the line" each ward's plans, goals, and objectives.

"I believe the public should know about the interest and issues affecting Ward 3, as well as any ward that shares the same street," Cain said.

Ward 3 shares the same streets as Ward 1, 2, 4, 5, and 6. "As I walk the streets of the ward, it is apparent to me that the interest and issues affecting Ward 3 are and will be similar to some of the goals targeted or to be targeted by other ward councillors," he said.

Cain believes city councillors, as most of them already do, need to "focus on the interest of the ward and the city, put personal differences aside, and represent its residents and the interest of the business community."

Cain plans to make all information available to Ward 3 residents through various media on a regular basis. "The purpose of course, would be to allow the public to monitor the status or process of our efforts to benefit our community, and thereby allow public opinion and input."

Streets running in multiple wards include: Adams St., Wards 3, 4, and 5; Cedar St., Wards 3 and 5; Common St., Wards 3 and 4; Franklin St., Wards 2, 3, and 4; Furnace Brook Parkway, Wards 1, 3, 4, and 5; Granite St., Wards 3, 4, and 5; Hancock St., Wards 3, 5, and 6; Jackson St., Wards 3 and 4.

Other streets include Miles Drive, Newport Ave., Oakland Ave., Pleasant St., Puritan Drive, Quarry St., Quincy St., Warren St., Whitwell St., and Willow Ave.

The License Board took the following action at their May 22 meeting.

•Hear complaints concerning unregistered vehicles stored at 178-186 E. Howard St. on property owned by the Bellofatto Family Realty Trust, Hingham.

Owners were told by South Boston Realty Tow Co., that they had permits necessary, and assured the board all cars will be removed.

•Board heard complaints from Wal-Mart, Falls Blvd regarding outside storage. Newly appointed manager Keith Ferris was unaware of restrictions for outside storage of materials, and promised to remove items until a new ruling is issued.

•Board continued hearing regarding outside storage conditions of Home Depot, Granite St. Manager Diane Cormiergen did not attend the meeting.

•Chairman Joseph Shea welcomed acting Police Chief William Falco to the board.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE CASE FOR DENTAL IMPLANTS

When teeth are lost, the ridge of alveolar bone that once held them in place begins to shrink (resorb), providing less support for the overlying denture. As a result, the denture becomes looser and looser until it eventually has to be refitted or refabricated. For this reason alone, many patients turn to dental implants for the replacement of lost teeth. This form of prosthetic device so closely approximates the look and function of natural teeth that it minimizes resorption. Once the titanium anchor is placed in the bone to function like a natural tooth root, it becomes integrated with the bone. Once the replacement tooth is attached to the implant, patients experience the look and feel of natural teeth.

Dental implants have improved the quality of life for millions. When was the last time you had a professional dental checkup? We are currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 617-479-6220 to schedule and appointment. We believe in preventive dentistry for the whole family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where you will be pleased with our "personal touch" philosophy and our dedication to your complete dental health. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. P.S. A denture fastened to implants does not require a base, or artificial gum, to hold it in the mouth.

PROJECT PROM SENSE: Norfolk District Attorney William Keating (right) and Assistant District Attorney Thomas Finigan (left) joined North Quincy High School Principal Louis Ioanilli recently for a pre-prom presentation to NQHS seniors regarding responsible decision-making. Keating provided $250 in grant assistance to support this year's "Senior Stay Out." for NQHS, later making a similar donation to Quincy High School.

Keating Presents Prom Safety Grants To QHS, NQHS

As part of "Project Prom Sense," Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating has provided $250 to the Quincy High School "Senior Night Out" to support the community's safe, post-prom activities scheduled for June 1.

Keating recently awarded a similar grant to the North Quincy High School "Senior Stay Out," which was held on May 4.

The object of the donations is to keep students safe during prom and graduation season by helping to sponsor safe, responsible, and alcohol-free post-prom and post-graduation activities and events administered by local school systems, parent groups, and community organizations.

"The Quincy community, particularly high-school parents, should be commended for taking such a proactive and practical approach to prom safety," said Keating. "I'm proud to be able to support their efforts in this small way."

Grant funds will be used to supplement revenues raised from private and other sources.

Re-Max Study Shows Property Shortage In New England

Favorable Interest Rates, High Cost Of Renting Factors For First-Time Home Buyers

Very favorable interest rates and the high cost of rental property are chief factors cited as causing more first-time buyers to look for homes in New England, but an overall shortage of properties in their price range await them, according to recently released RE/MAX of New England First-Time Buyers Report.

The report is a compilation of 51 RE/MAX offices surveyed regarding first-time buyer activity in Connecticut, Southern Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

"New England has a varied real estate market, but some themes hold true throughout," said RE/MAX of New England Executive Vice President and Regional Director William Soteroff.

First-time buyers, Soteroff said, comprise on average just under 30 percent of the regional real estate market, low inventory of available homes permeates the region and that "location, location, location" does not hold true for first-time buyers.

"Particularly, we see a great deal of first-time buyers in the market, but they often have little to choose from," Soteroff said. "That's why it is important for first-time buyers to be pre-approved for a mortgage and ready to act if they find the home that meets their needs."

While an average of all the markets reports that first-time buyers represent nearly one-third of all real estate activity, this number is skewed downward by some resort areas and markets with prices high enough to prohibit much activity from younger buyers.

Low inventory of available property was a consistent theme in the report. Over half (27) of the 51 markets stated that lack of availability of entry level homes is a problem facing first-time buyers in their location.

Additionally, the old saying that the three most important factors in real estate are "location, location, location" does not hold true for first-time buyers. With high prices and low inventory seen throughout the region, obtaining a property for the right price is of highest priority. This, coupled with condition of the home, is often cited higher as a priority than location for first-time buyers.

First-time buyers, often younger, are likely to be Internet savvy, doing a great deal of research on their own before calling a Realtor. Also aiding first-time buyers are financing programs that require little or no money for a downpayment.

In Massachusetts the report finds Western Massachusetts offering relatively lower starting prices for first-time buyer homes. The average starting price in Longmeadow is between $60-90,000, between $90-110,000 in Northampton, and between $80-90,000 in Pittsfield. In comparison, South Shore and North Shore homes often begin in excess of $200,000, and Greater Boston homes routinely begin at $180,000 and up.

The report found many obstacles faced by regional first-time buyers, but does offer 10 tips for first-time buyers. Among them are: keep your credit clean, watch interest rates, consider the features of a home that can hurt resale value, and be decisive — noting that many first-time buyers "lose" a home to another buyer before gaining needed decisiveness.

"Home ownership offers a great deal of benefits such as tax advantages," Soteroff said. "First-time buyers in the market understand this and are generally eager to buy, but they usually need to exercise patience in the real estate market in order to find the best home for their money."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. has negotiated the lease of 23,000 square feet at 100 Quincy Ave., the former Shaw's Supermarket location.

Flynn & Co. President Paul Talkowski procured the tenant, T & D Fitness, while CEO Dan Flynn negotiated the lease. The property is owned by Quincy Municipal Credit Union, which has identified a separate portion of the building as the future site of their new headquarters.

"We are extremely excited to close this transaction," Flynn said. "It is tremendously positive for the area to see activity at this site again. This is a prominent, easily accessible parcel of real estate that will enable businesses there to flourish."

Homes That Were Flooded May Harbor Mold Problems

Flooding frequently creates mold problems in homes. Mold is a microscopic organism that grows everywhere, indoors and outdoors. When mold is present in large quantities it can result in allergic symptoms similar to those caused by plant pollen.

Be aware that exposure to mold can occur during cleanup. To minimize exposure, use a mask or respirator, wear rubber gloves and take breaks in a well-ventilated area.

"You should be concerned about mold if the amount is extensive," said Stephen J. McGrath, director of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency and state

'Be Careful When Cleaning'

consider mold a health hazard. When mold is found in large quantities, it can cause respiratory problems and other health problems. People who are at higher risk from the effects of mold include infants and children; the elderly; people with compromised immune systems; people with HIV infection; liver disease or in chemotherapy; pregnant women; and people with existing respiratory conditions such as allergies, multiple chemical sensitivity and asthma. People with these conditions should consult a physician if they are experiencing health problems.

Here are some tips for cleaning mold:

- Identify and correct the moisture source. Then clean, disinfect and dry the moldy area. Keep the area well-ventilated and dispose of anything that has moldy residue, such as rags, paper, leaves or debris.
- Porous materials can trap molds. Items such as paper, rags, wallboard and rotten wood should be thrown out. Harder materials such as glass, plastic and metal can be kept after they are cleaned and disinfected.

- Wear protective gloves. Use a rubber dish washing sponge when working with moldy materials. Remove and discard porous materials such as ceiling tiles, sheetrock, carpeting, wood products.

- Carpeting can be a difficult problem. Drying does not remove the dead mold spores. If there is heavy mold on the carpet, the best course of action may be to discard it. If the area was flooded, remove sheetrock to at least 12 inches above the high water mark. Allow the area to dry two or three days before replacing damaged materials.

- Wear protective gloves when cleaning mold. Use non-ammonia soap or detergent, or a commercial cleaner in hot water. Scrub the entire infected area thoroughly using a stiff brush or cleaning pad. Then rinse with clean water.

- Wear protective gloves when using disinfectants. After thorough cleaning and rinsing, disinfect the area with a solution of 10 percent household bleach (1 1/2 cups bleach per gallon of water). Never mix bleach with ammonia. The fumes are toxic. Allow disinfecting areas to dry naturally overnight to kill all mold.

One Answer To High Heating/Cooling Costs

Near record-high natural gas and heating oil prices have blanketed the country this winter. California's energy regulators estimate a spread northward and eastward, and both President Bush and Secretary of Energy Abraham have cautioned that, as a country, we are not generating enough electricity to meet demand.

In this heightened state of energy consciousness, many — in both government and the private sector — are exploring ways to reduce energy consumption. One advanced technology with real promise for helping to alleviate commercial and residential energy concerns is geoechange, which can cut energy consumption by as much as one half.

Of all the alternative energy technologies, including wind, solar, biomass and fuel cells, geoechange is the only one in current widespread use. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, geoechange represents a practical, proven technology — one that is gathering a reputation for saving school districts, commercial building owners and homeowners a substantial amount in energy costs each year.

Geoechange systems, which use the renewable energy available from the earth to provide heat in the winter and air conditioning in the summer, use 25 to 50 percent less energy than conventional heating and cooling systems do, and they consume no fossil fuels. Instead, they transfer heat to and from the ground, which, a few feet below the surface, remains at a relatively constant, moderate temperature year-round.

In winter, geoechange systems absorb heat from the ground, and transfer it to a home's or commercial building's interior. In the summer, the systems reverse the process, collecting excess heat from the interior air and transferring it to the ground.

While natural gas and heating oil prices have risen sharply over the last 18 months, and experts hold little hope of relief this summer, the high efficiency and low operating costs of geoechange systems are making the technology a common sense choice for consumers.

Moreover, in California and other areas experiencing electrical supply shortages, widespread adoption of super-efficient geoechange systems could help cut peak electrical demand and reduce the need for rolling blackouts.

Building owners who install geoechange systems also make a contribution to the environment. Since geoechange systems burn no fossil fuels, they generate virtually no carbon dioxide emissions. In fact, they slash emissions of this greenhouse gas — compared to natural gas, propane or oil furnaces — by about one pound of CO2 for every hour of operation, in a typical residential performance.

This high overall performance has led the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to name geoechange as one of the most energy-efficient, environmentally responsible heating and cooling technologies currently available. More information is available from the Geothermal Heat Pump Consortium Inc., a non-profit organization, by calling 1-888-255-4436.

Tax Relief Available For Flood Victims

President Bush recently signed a disaster declaration for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts resulting from the floods and other extreme weather that occurred March 5-April 16. When the counties of Bristol, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth, Suffolk and Worcester were designated as federal disaster areas, this action allowed the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to offer some special tax relief.

"If you had property damaged or lost in an area the President declared eligible for federal disaster relief assistance, you may be able to get a tax refund, due to your unreimbursed loss, from our agency right now," said IRS

Spokesperson Peggy Riley. Taxpayers who have not yet filed a 2000 tax return can claim the unreimbursed disaster loss on that return. Form 4684, Casualties and Thefts, must be attached to show how the loss was figured. Those who have already filed can amend their return by filing a Form 1040X, Amended U.S. Individual Tax Return. Taxpayers may also wait until they file their 2001 tax return to claim the disaster loss. The IRS advises taxpayers to print "MARCH 2001 MA FLOOD FEMA 1364-DR" on the top of the tax return.

If financial records and other important tax documents were lost or destroyed, taxpayers may get a copy of a prior year Form 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ, free of charge by sending a completed Form 4506, Request for Copy or Transcript of Tax Form, to the IRS Center, Andover, MA 05501. The IRS advises taxpayers to print "MARCH 2001 MA FLOOD FEMA 1364-DR" on the top of Form 4506.

"It is important for persons who suffer personal property damage to document the extent of the damage after the disaster. Photographs and detailed inventories are very helpful," Riley said.

For assistance in filing a claim, local taxpayers can visit the Quincy IRS office, 1250 Hancock St., Suite 503S on Monday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. (closed 1-2 p.m. lunch).

Bloomer Sisters Address D.C. Forum On Child Labor

Quincy sisters Laura and Elizabeth Bloomer recently traveled to Washington, D.C. to make remarks before a Capitol Hill Forum on Child Labor in the Hart Senate Office Building.

The two represented the award-winning "Kids' Campaign Against Child Labor" as part of a day-long educational conference on ending child labor.

Other speakers included representatives of the U.S. State Department, U.S. Labor Department, farmworker families, USAID, the World Bank, activists, professors, celebrities, youth activists from four states, congressional members, and spokespeople representing 100 international and national human rights organizations.

Keynote addresses were given by Kailash Satyarthi of India, recipient of the RFK Human Rights Award, and Linda Chavez-Thompson, executive vice-president of the AFL-CIO.

Also speaking were activist actors Mike Farrell (M.A.S.H. and Providence) and Melissa Gilbert (Little House on the Prairie).

U.S. Senator Tom Harkin of Iowa, who convened the forum, invited the Bloomer sisters to share with the Capitol Hill Forum details about actions they have helped to initiate to help end child labor.

Laura is a Grade 6 student at Broad Meadows Middle School. Older sister Elizabeth, a Broad Meadows alum, is a 10th grader at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree. In the past six months, Laura has spoken on the same panel on volunteerism as U.N. Secretary General Kofi Annan and Elizabeth has addressed child labor issues before 900 youth delegates in the U.N.'s General Assembly.

The Bloomer sisters represented all the Broad Meadows activists who, under the guidance of Language Arts teacher Ron Adams, have met since 1994 after school on Fridays to campaign against child labor and for education for all children.

Author/activist Danny Siegel of Maryland paid the airfare for the girls.

A CAPITOL HILL forum on child labor brought Quincy sisters Elizabeth Bloomer, age 15, and Laura Bloomer, age 12, down to Washington D.C. to make remarks on behalf of the award winning "Kids Campaign Against Child Labor" undertaken by the Broad Meadows Middle School. Among the many other speakers at the event, which was convened by Senator Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), were Paul Peterson, formerly of the Donna Reed Show and now an activist for child actors' rights; and Melissa Gilbert, formerly "Laura" on Little House on the Prairie and now an activist for children's rights.

Squantum Native Wins Award At Fontbonne

Sister Katherine Shea, a Squantum native who has been a sister of the Medical Missionaries of Mary for the past three decades, was selected for the 2001 Mother St. John Fontbonne Award at Fontbonne Academy in Milton.

Sr. Katherine, a 1969 graduate of Fontbonne, was the featured speaker and accepted the award at Fontbonne's 44th commencement ceremonies.

"In the proud tradition of Mother St. John Fontbonne, Kathie has with love and care led with integrity and served others," said Sister Marilyn McGoldrick, CSI, president of Fontbonne.

The award, named for the patron mother of Fontbonne Academy, is given each year to an alumna whose life has been characterized by an active social commitment to sacrificial service to others.

Following her graduation from Fontbonne, Katherine Shea entered the Medical Missionaries of Mary, a community of women religious.

After her novitiate, she graduated from Iona College in New Rochelle, N.Y. with a degree in sociology and was assigned by MMM as hospital administrator in Nigeria.

She earned a master's degree in business administration from Notre Dame and served as regional business administrator for the Medical Missionaries in New York for 10 years.

She was reassigned to Ireland in 1989, traveled three times to Africa to computerize the missions and finally took a two-year sabbatical in Boston.

Sr. Katherine has plans for another overseas assignment, this time in Kenya starting in January 2002, addressing the financial concerns at the missions in East Africa.

Kathryn Hayhurst Receives Bryant College Degree

Kathryn A. Hayhurst of Quincy received a master's degree in computer information from Bryant College Graduate School, Smithfield, R.I.

Sports Prevention Tips To Help Keep You Safe

An estimated 17 million Americans will sustain a sports-related injury this year. According to the American College of Sports Medicine, up to one-half of all injuries sustained in sports are preventable.

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts' (BCBSMA) Prevention and Wellness Program offers sports prevention tips to help keep you safe.

Tips For Preventing Sports Injuries

- Before playing any sport, be sure to get proper instructions.
- Wear the right protective gear: helmets, knee and arm pads, goggles, etc.
- Do warm-up and cool-down exercises such as those that stretch the muscles used in the activity or doing the actual activity at a slower pace.
- Wear proper fitting shoes that provide shock absorption and stability.
- Avoid exercising on hard surfaces like asphalt and concrete.
- Be careful not to do full knee bends; instead, only bend knees to 90 degrees.
- When pumping, land with knees bent.

Sports injuries are more difficult to treat the longer they are ignored. Call your physician immediately if you're experiencing severe pain, swelling or bruising; have a fever or other signs of infection; or have decreased mobility in your limbs or joints. However, not all sports injuries require emergency or medical attention. Applying R.I.C.E. (rest, ice, compression and elevation) is the best treatment for minor injuries.

The R.I.C.E. treatment plan follows:

- R — Rest the injured area for 24 hours to 48 hours.
- I — Ice the area for five to 20 minutes every hour for the first 48 to 72 hours.
- C — Compress the area by wrapping it tightly with an elastic bandage for 30 minutes, and then unwrap it for 15 minutes. Begin wrapping from the point farthest from the heart, and then wrap toward the center of the body. Repeat several times.
- E — Elevate the area to reduce swelling.

Once you've applied R.I.C.E. and the injured area begins to heal, do exercises that will help stretch the muscles and not strain the injured area. Such treatment will help improve your muscle flexibility and ease your back into the sport. There are many treatment options, so talk with your doctor to choose the treatment that works best for you.

Health care providers recommend taking aspirin, ibuprofen or naproxen sodium to reduce inflammation and pain. These over-the-counter medications should be taken with food or milk to prevent stomach irritation. If you have a history of ulcer disease, abnormal bleeding or are pregnant, check with your health care provider about what you should take.

(Note: Do not give aspirin or any medication containing salicylates to anyone 19 years of age or younger, unless directed by a physician, due to its association with Reye's Syndrome, a potentially fatal condition.)

These suggestions were taken from the "DecisionCare Guide," a self-care booklet developed by BCBSMA in conjunction with the American Institute for Preventive Medicine in Framington Hills, Mich.

BCBSMA's Prevention and Wellness Program started in January 1995 with a series of initiatives designed to promote preventive health care to nearly 2 million members. For more information about this program call 1-800-262-BLUE.

Ad Campaign Addresses Toxic Ingredients Found In Tobacco Smoke

To educate the public of the dangers of secondhand smoke, the Massachusetts Tobacco Control Program has launched a new ad campaign addressing the toxic ingredients found in tobacco smoke as well as the resulting health risks.

Nationally acclaimed director Michael Moore served as both director and interviewer of the TV spots. Best known for the landmark film "Roger and Me," Moore has a way of exposing the social impact of big industry practices on the general population.

The TV ads include on-camera interviews with various professionals who come in daily contact with many of the toxic chemicals found in secondhand smoke, and in turn, wear protective masks and gear to avoid contact.

Although the professionals interviewed work with and handle many of the chemicals found in secondhand smoke, the TV spots capture their true reactions of surprise, concern and alarm when told these highly toxic chemicals are, in fact, in secondhand smoke.

The professionals interviewed in the documentary style are presently employed at Toxicon, Fleet Environmental and other Massachusetts-based environmental companies, and spoke candidly on the dangers of using and treating these chemicals.

"We continually educate our communities about the dangers of secondhand smoke, especially in light of scientific research that says secondhand smoke kills an estimated 40,000 non-smoking adults annually in the United States," said Robert Helfrich, Quincy Health Department's Tobacco Control Program.

And given that there are more than 4,000 chemical compounds identified in tobacco smoke, 40 of which are extremely toxic, it's our obligation to use and protect as many people as possible."

"Based on research we can conclude there is no safe level of exposure to these cancer-causing substances, which is why we chose to raise public awareness through TV, print and radio advertisements," said Dr. Howard Koh, commissioner, Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

Secondhand smoke still remains a serious public health risk. Many toxins found in secondhand smoke are poisonous and cancer-causing agents, including lead, arsenic, cadmium, chromium, acetone, benzene and formaldehyde. Prolonged exposure to these chemicals poses a serious health risk. The tobacco industry has yet to fully acknowledge the health risk associated with secondhand smoke.

According to the Center for Disease Control, there is a causal link between exposure to secondhand smoke and the following medical conditions: coronary heart disease, lung cancer, eye and nasal irritation, respiratory ailments and sudden infant death syndrome.

"Throughout the state, more than 75 percent of Massachusetts residents live in communities with smoking restrictions," Helfrich said. "We've made great strides and are proud to be doing the work that will help lead us to a smoke-free way of life."

Research Study On Bulimia

Female volunteers who are currently bulimic, or have recovered from past symptoms of bulimia, age 18-45, in good medical health and not taking medications, are sought for a study of behavioral ratings and blood hormone levels.

Eligible participants will receive $150 for a total of three outpatient visits and an additional $175 for each of two overnight stays at the Clinical Research Unit at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. For more information call Jillian Yee, Psychiatry Research Unit, Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, 617-667-4013.

Mike Keddy's Grand Slam The Difference

Big First Inning Powers North Over Quincy, 4-3

By CHRIS POISSON

All parts of the city converge at Adams Field in late May when Quincy and North Quincy reunite for the second time during the season.

Although there wasn't much at stake last Wednesday night — no league championship to be decided, no tournament bid on the line, no records to be broken — the two teams, on opposite ends of the 'standings, rekindled their longtime rivalry when it seemed to be burning out in recent years.

For North Quincy (14-6), this was its biggest game until the tournament. For Quincy (3-17), this was its tournament.

A game seniors are supposed to treasure, two stood out above the rest by the end of this chapter. North Quincy senior Mike Keddy had a game he'll remember the rest of his life. In the first inning, Keddy drilled a grand slam into the trees in left field, providing all the scoring the Red Raiders would need as they held on for a 4-3 win.

"Michael Keddy, a senior, hits a grand slam in a Quincy-North game — unbelievable," said North Quincy coach Larry Taglieri. "I wasn't banking on a home run. I was looking for a ball driven into the outfield to get us a run and get us on the board. But he got all of it to give us a four-run lead."

The other senior turned out to be Quincy pitcher John Lupo. After serving up Keddy's blast, he showed his fortitude by retiring 17 of the next 19 batters and allowing just one hit the rest of the way. Go back to the first game between the two teams when Lupo recorded just one out, and his ability to bounced back was truly impressive.

"He struggled a little bit at the beginning but he kept his poise after that," said Quincy coach Michael Draicchio. "You have to give him credit for that. He did a tremendous job coming back. They didn't hit him."

"He gives up the grand slam to Mike, and, boy, he buckled down," Taglieri said.

Jack Conway Charity Golf Tournament June 7

The Jack Conway 17th annual charity golf tournament will be held Thursday, June 7 at the Easton Country Club.

Proceeds will benefit Brockton's MainSpring House homeless shelter.

Contributors may sponsor a hole for $250, a tee or a green for $125, a cart for $50 or can donate raffle prizes, said Denis Lilla, Conway's vice president of sales. To participate, golfers donate

Red Raiders Play Catholic Memorial In First Round Saturday

The North Quincy baseball team will travel to Catholic Memorial Saturday at 1 p.m. for the first round of the Division 1 South sectional tournament as the pairings were announced Tuesday.

"They're a tough club," said coach Larry Taglieri. "They play in a tough league. I think we match up pretty well."

North Quincy (14-6) enters the playoffs on a bit of a roll, winning three straight and four of its last five. Senior left-hander Keith Doherty will get the start against CM (17-3). Doherty pitched last Friday, tossing six scoreless innings with 10 strikeouts in a 10-0 win over Hull.

The Red Raiders have made the postseason for the fifth time in the last six years. Last year, they defeated Braintree in the first round before being eliminated by Walpole in Round 2.

to take anything away from Quincy. Quincy played a flawless game. We had the big first inning and that ended up being the difference."

While some consider the second Quincy-North game the final game of the regular season, both teams still had games left on the schedule. Quincy finished the season with an 8-3 loss to Hanover last Saturday, but not before it picked up its third win the day before with a 2-1 upset over Scituate, a 17-3 team heading to the tournament.

Right-hander Dave Germain gave up one unearned run in the third inning and allowed just four hits in the complete-game effort. The Presidents scored both runs with two outs in the second inning. Sophomore Jamie Chiochio reached on an infield single, stole second and scored on Lupo's double. Lupo later scored on an error.

Meanwhile, North Quincy routed Hull, 10-0, last Friday night to close out the season. In a final tune-up for the playoffs, senior Keith Doherty yielded just two hits and fanned 10 to picked up the win. Doherty also sparked the offense, going 2 for 4 with a triple and four RBIs. Sophomore Dennis Thomson went 2 for 2 with a home run and two RBIs and Keddy added two hits and an RBI.

$100, which includes the cost of the greens fee, golf cart, a luncheon buffet and tournament prizes.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m., and play opens at 8 a.m. with a shotgun start.

Central Middle School Sweeps City Track Meet

The Central Middle School boys' and girls' track teams captured City Meet titles, wrapping up undefeated seasons for both squads.

All five middle schools shared in the limelight, though, as every school had at least one city champ, and the fight for second place in both girls and boys was up for grabs until the final events.

Over 300 boys and girls participated to make it the biggest City Meet in years. Athletic directors Brian Buckley (North Quincy) and Ed Miller (Quincy) were on hand to congratulate the athletes. Coaches Scott King (Quincy) and Geoff Hennessy (North Quincy) were meet directors assisted by John Franceschini, Rich Hanlon, Jim Rendle, Maureen Duggan and Charles Dierf.

In the girls' division, Central topped out with 72 points. Point (24) edged Sterling (23) for second place, followed by Broad Meadows (18.5) and Atlantic (16.5).

Central took both relays and received victories from Jessica Johnson (mile), Eileen Price (800 meters), Shelly Donovan (400 meters) and Shawna Kennedy (200 meters). For Point, Ananda Saylor won the long jump and Terri Murphy the 100 meters. Nancy Byrnes of Sterling finished first in the shot-put.

On the boys' side, Central tallied 47 points to lead the pack. Broad Meadows (33.5) squeaked by Atlantic (32) for second place, followed by Sterling (27.5) and Point (20).

Central won the 4 x lap relay and got wins from Benson Luc (long jump), Steve Drago (800 meters) and Mark Spellman (400 meters). Atlantic's Chris Mercurio and Point's Mike Santonted in the high jump. Jose Ortiz of Sterling won the shot-put. Frank McKenna took the mile. Anson Yee the 200 meters and Derek Stroup the 100 meters. Broad Meadows won the 4 x 100 meter relay.

Hobart, Virginia Holly To Be Inducted Into Tennis Hall Of Fame

Hobart and Virginia Holly of Quincy will be inducted into the USA Tennis New England Hall of Fame Saturday, June 23, at the International Tennis Hall of Fame in Newport, R.I. at 6 p.m.

The Hollies, along with five other members of the local tennis community, will be honored for their service to the game. They co-chaired the Junior International Challenge Cup tournament for 16 years and both served on the Youth Tennis Foundation board.

Hobart, who passed away in 1995, and Virginia shared the William Freedman Award for outstanding contributions to junior development in 1962.

The induction ceremony is open to the public. Seating is limited. For those interested in attending, call Linda Cacciapuoti at the USA Tennis New England office at 508-366-3450, ext. 26.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Youth Tennis Foundation, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

Brendan Bubencik Memorial Golf Tournament At Easton Country Club

The fourth annual Brendan Bubencik Memorial Golf Tournament to benefit the research of meningitis at Children's Hospital in Boston will be held Sunday, Aug. 5 at the Easton Country Club.

In 1997, Brendan Bubencik died from bacterial meningitis, an inflammation of the tissues which cover the brain and spinal cord, at just four months and 25 days old.

Bubencik, a large lived in Foxboro, has a long extended family, including his aunt and grandparents, who live in Quincy.

Cost for individual golf is $100, a foursome is $400 and a hole sponsor is $75. All donations can be made to Brendan Bubencik Research Trust and sent to: The Bubencik's at Eagle Stables, 10 Discovery Way, Franklin, MA 02038. The tourney has raised over $40,000 in Brendan's name to date.

Bobby Harrington notched his third win, pitching four innings with nine strikeouts in the sweltering heat as Century 21-Richmond Associates defeated C&C Auto Body, 16-10, in recent Triple A action.

Harrington also added a single and an RBI double as Century 21 improved to 7-0. Tom Henry earned his first save and added a double and three runs scored. Kevin Croake reached base twice and scored a run and Sean Harrington had his first base hit of the year. John Benoit went the distance behind the plate.

For C&C Auto Body, Billy Connors pitched three strong innings in relief. Steve McDonough got the game ball for stepping forward to catch and Anthony Acito got a start and provided a solid performance.

Century 21 9

Bank of Canton 1

Nicholas Poli picked up the victory with three innings of no-hit ball and seven strikeouts. Gary Uvanitte notched the save with five strikeouts in three innings of relief. John Benoit got the offense going with a bases-clearing triple. Matt Bresnahan chipped in with a base hit and two runs scored.

For Bank of Canton, Corey Morgan turned in a solid complete-game effort with 10 punchouts. Sean Collins played a great game behind the plate, and Chris McDaniel and Alexander Bodkin shined defensively.

Flavin & Flavin 21

DARE 3

Scott Richards smashed a grand slam and added a stand-up triple to power Flavin & Flavin's offense. Dan Richards, Nick Joseph, Eric Jaukurri and Michael Forbes knocked in seven runs collectively. Matt O'Neil, Chris Yotts and Will Berberan cemented the win with outstanding fielding and hitting.

For DARE, Jonathan Cahill, Christopher Rooney and Hartell scored.

Yellow Cab 18

DARE 16

Andrew Gormley had a triple and a double and scored five runs, including a steal of home. Dan Jackson had two RBIs and Brennan Carey and Sean Gray each had an RBI. Brian O'Connell and Anthony Pepionovich played well.

For DARE, Eric Moreschi belted a home run. Jonathan Cahill had a double and scored two runs. Mark Demelin had a double, stole home and scored three runs. Christopher Rooney scored two runs.

Kenny's Lock 6

Dubin Club 3

Tony Salaris went the distance and fanned 10 to earn the win. Jeff Rackauskas, Lucas Reilly and catcher Jim Fulli played well.

For Dubin, Sean McDonald and Trevor Kelly played well.

Kenny's Lock 13

Bank of Canton 5

Bill Constantopoulos struck out 13 in five innings and Mike Pearson pitched a perfect sixth inning to finish the game. Tony Salaris had a double with the bases loaded and Jeff Rackauskas and Paul Mason also added to the offense.

For Bank of Canton, Peter Eleey, catcher Paige Bonanni and Corey Morgan played well.

C&C Automotive 13

Flavin & Flavin 12

Timely hitting and outstanding defense propelled C&C to the win. First-time catcher Gianna Desisto helped anchor the defense with spirited play behind the plate, throwing out a runner at third and blocking the plate at home. Connor Lohan made a tremendous catch in right field and Billy Ahern made a nice stop up the middle to throw a runner out from his knees.

For Flavin & Flavin, Nick Venuti pitched well and belted a pair of doubles.

HN's Steve Costigliula Fires No-Hitter

Steve Costigliula fired a no-hitter to lead Houghs Neck to an 11-1 win over Fire Department in recent Babe Ruth action.

Costigliula struck out 11 and walked only two. Nick Malvesti had three hits and two RBIs and Tim Watson also had three hits, including a double and triple. Dan Durocher had a strong defensive game to help preserve the no-hitter.

Bernazzani Bumps Beechwood For Dunn Basketball Title

Behind 27 points from Kevin Weeks, Bernazzani knocked off Beechwood, 58-50, to capture the recent George Dunn Basketball Tournament championship.

Sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department, the single elimination marks the conclusion of the 25 week winter program held at local gyms throughout the city.

Weeks scored 11 points in the first half as Bernazzani took a 27-23 lead into the locker room. Brian Breslin scored 10 of his 16 points to keep Beechwood within striking range.

Mike Petrucelli scored 12 points and Daryl Costa added eight for Bernazzani. Charlie Acton, Wayne Deschamp, Brian Donovan, Mike Ryan and Brian Weeks played solid defense.

For Beechwood, Eric Eley reached double digits with 12 points, while Dan Douglas (8), Chris Donovan (6), Sean Cote (4) and Jeff Bartoloni (2) also contributed.

In the semi-finals, Bernazzani defeated Montclair, 37-34, as Andy Mannix poured in 15 points and Weeks added 13.

For Montclair, Kevin Holleran scored 15 and Dan Hooker (8), Darryl Zoia (5), Steve Reardon (4) and Gary Dalton (2) also turned in strong efforts.

After topping Snug Harbor, Beechwood knocked out Atherton Hough in the semis behind 25 points from Douglas.

For Atherton Hough, Michael Quilty scored a team-high 10 points. Pat Mallone (7), Rob Giechel (5) and Brian Malone (3) also chipped offensively.

In its first game, Bernazzani downed Squantum, 41-27, as Petrucelli tallied a game-high 17 points. Mannix (10), Weeks (7), Costa (3), Acton (2) and Ryan (2) also added to the victory.

For Squantum, Kevin Dykens and Mike Feetham scored seven points apiece. Pat Feeney added five, Wayne Moynihan four and Dan Mahoney two.

Squantum bested Sterling in its first game. Rob Mooney netted nine points, Keith Dykens (7), Mahoney (4), Pat Brundage (2) and Cornelius Clavin (2). Chris Selter shined defensively.

For Sterling, Denis Hill scored nine points, while Calvin Downer had four, Jay Chase three and Mike Moody one.

The Park and Recreation Board voted four years ago to name the long-standing tournament after George Dunn, a 20-year leader in the department who contributed greatly to the youth of Quincy.

The tournament trophy was presented by Scott Dunn, the son of George, who is also a leader in the department. Recreation Director Barry Welch presented individual trophies to the Bernazzani and certificates to Beechwood.

Advance Testing Friday For Instructional Swimming

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces the Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an advance testing program in preparation for registration for its summer instructional swimming programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School pool.

The testing will be held tomorrow (Friday) from 6 to 8 p.m. The boating and sailing prerequisite swim test will also be held at this time.

The testing program is for Quincy residents unfamiliar with the swim program or for a child who may have had additional instruction during the winter. Children are registered for lessons according to their swimming ability.

Pool lessons are open to Quincy residents over age 6 who have a current pool participation card issued by the Recreation Department.

The normal recreation swimming schedule will be canceled during the testing hours.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1-FUN.

Graeber and Davis Win, 9-7

Graeber and Davis scored two runs in the top of the seventh inning to pull out a 9-7 win over Screened Image Multimedia in recent Babe Ruth International league action.

Jimmy Mullaney, Brendan Linnane, Justin Boyd (two hits) and Chris Mercier (two hits) produced the winning runs with consecutive hits.

In the bottom of the sixth, Graeber and Davis cut down the go-ahead run when second baseman Mike Saville took the relay throw from center fielder Dennis Rackauskas and fired a strike to catcher Mullaney to nail the runner trying to score.

Linnane and Joe Ceuryals provided some clutch pitching.

For S.I.M., Paul Farina and Taylor Breen shined defensively, while Chris Feeney (two hits), Tommy McKenna (two hits) and Tim Sommers supplied the offense.

Registration For Summer Sports Clinics, Workshops

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold registration for its summer sports clinics and workshops beginning Tuesday, June 5, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the department's main office, One Merrymount Parkway, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

In its 19th year, all programs are fee-based and on a self-supporting basis. Enrollment is limited.

"These low cost programs are designed to offer alternatives to the high cost private camps," Welch said. "The activities are supervised by highly qualified coaches and instructors who bring years of experience to the programs. The success rate of these programs speak volumes of the persons leading them."

Brochures with complete descriptions of all programs will be distributed to public and parochial schools in Quincy, or may be picked up at the Recreation Department. For more information call 617-376-1-FUN.

Injury Cancels Celebration For Rev. Msgr. Peter Hart

Rev. Msgr. Peter F. Hart, who was scheduled to celebrate a 10:30 a.m. Mass at Most Blessed Sacrament Church May 27 to commemorate the 65th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, was unable to attend after suffering a broken hip earlier in the week.

Monsignor Hart, 92, slipped and fell in the rectory of St. Pius V in Lynn where he lives.

"He came through it pretty well," said City Councillor Frank McCauley, who once served as an altar boy for Monsignor Hart during the priest's years at Most Blessed Sacrament.

McCauley added that a similar Mass might be held sometime in the fall.

Monsignor's Hart's first assignment as an ordained priest was at Most Blessed Sacrament Church where he served from 1936 to 1945. While at Blessed Sacrament he set up a number of youth and sports programs and also established a Boy Scout troop.

In addition to McCauley, among those who participated in the church programs and served as altar boys included another former mayor, Walter Hannon, as well as former City Council President Leo Kelly and the late Police Chief Francis Finn.

Get well cards may be sent to: St. Pius V Parish, 215 Maple St., Lynn, MA 01904.

Union Congregational

The Kid's Cocoa House, the children's ministry of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, will march in the Quincy Flag Day Parade Saturday, June 16.

The parade will mark the conclusion of Cocoa House for the school year. The program will resume Saturday, Sept. 9.

Cocoa House is a community children's ministry and is for ages three through sixth grade. Children learn Bible stories, crafts, songs and see a Christian video. They also make use of the gym facilities at the church. A highlight of the program is working on and riding in the Cocoa House boat, named the "Effie Louise."

Flag Day activities for Cocoa House will begin with a hot dog roast at the church at 5:30 p.m., followed by the parade at 6:30 p.m. For more information, call 617-479-6661.

Bethany Congregational

Pentecost Sunday will be observed during the 10 a.m. worship service this Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

The Rev. Gary Smothers, interim minister, will conduct the service which will include the Sacrament of Holy Communion. His sermon is "The Marks of a Spirit Led Church."

Greeters will be Russ and Olive Hodgkins. Scripture reader will be Corinne Mikami.

The Chancel Choir will sing an anthem directed by Thomas Boyer, organist and choir director.

Members of the Diaconate including Herman Mersereau, Carl Bohlken, Mike and Jane Brundige will assist the minister in serving Communion.

It will also be Pantry Shelf Sunday. All foods and paper goods received will be given to the Interfaith Social Services Agency's Pantry Shelf.

United Methodist

The Rev. Carol Stine will conduct the 10 a.m. Holy Communion worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Lector will be Yvonne Duncanson.

Greeting parishioners will be Shirley Poore, Jim Doyle and Jeff Brown will be ushers.

Food Fest, Auction To Benefit Father Bill's Place Aug. 1

The 7th annual Food Fest & Auction to benefit Father Bill's Place will be held Wednesday, Aug. 1 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Summer House, Marina Bay, Quincy.

Scott Wahle, WBZ Channel 4 Morning New anchor, will serve as honorary chairperson. Wahle and his family are residents of the South Shore.

Proceeds from this year's event will help support Father Bill's Place in its mission to assist people who are in need of a home. At Father Bill's Place, the need for emergency beds is at an all-time high, according to shelter director John Yazwinski.

"Most nights the shelter is at overflow capacity, with the largest group being that of young adults ranging in age from their teens to mid-twenties. Your support of this event will assist Father Bill's Place to help these young adults with shelter, substance abuse counseling, mental health services, housing search and housing supportive services. With your help," Yazwinski said, "we can end homelessness one person at a time."

The annual Food Fest & Auction will highlight the culinary creations of restaurants and chefs on the South Shore, and offer rare sports memorabilia and unique gift items for auction.

More than 1,000 people are expected to participate in this event.

Admission is $75. To order tickets or to donate an auction item, call Linda at 617-770-3314.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST PARISH will be holding registration for the 2001-2002 Religious Education Program after all Masses the weekend of June 9/10 and June 16/17. If you or someone you know needs to register, please pass along these dates. If your child(ren) were not baptized at St. John's, please request a copy of their baptismal certificate from the appropriate parish and bring a copy for our records. Registration is being taken for grades K to Confirmation. Please call with questions (617) 479-0125.

SCOTT DEWARI

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A type of person can be pretty well determined by his or her attitude. An attitude of hopelessness can be and usually is disastrous. An attitude that accepts reality, whatever it is, and faces a situation with a determination not to let it throw you can always be helpful.

Of course, this sort of thing is more easily said than done. Yet it can be done because people have done it. Actually, an attitude is a human resource. It can be drawn upon, revamped, replaced, revitalized. It is a human resource that provides mental grooming. A properly groomed attitude can change a feeling of failure to an expectation of success. An attitude of hopelessness can never induce an attitude of hope. No one ever gained happiness with an unhappy attitude. No one ever gained friendship with an unfriendly attitude.

When an attitude needs changing, change it. With faith and acceptance of God's help aided by your own determination and intelligence, it can be done.

Your Social Security

Check Your Earnings Record

By LAURIE ZASTROW

Be sure to check the annual Social Security Statement you get in the mail to see whether your earnings record is accurate. If you don't, you could be making a big mistake.

It's important to make sure your record is correct because the Social Security benefits you'll receive in the future will be based on the earnings your employer (or you, if you are self-employed) reported to Social Security. If your record isn't accurate or complete, you may not receive the benefits you are due.

Remember, you're the only person who will know whether your record is correct and complete. If you find a mistake, call us at 1-800-772-1213. However, some, or all of your earnings from 2000 may not be shown on your current Statement. If may be that we were still processing last year's earnings reports when your Statement was prepared. Your complete earnings for last year will be shown on next year's Statement.

And after you've checked your record, we hope you'll use your Social Security Statement to help you plan your financial future. In addition to showing you how much you've paid into Social Security, it provides estimates of the monthly Social Security retirement, disability and survivor benefits you and your family could be eligible to receive now and in the future.

To get more information about Social Security, visit www.ssa.gov/mystatement at any time. You can also call toll-free 1-800-772-1213, to speak to a service representative between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on business days. Our lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so, if your business can wait, it's best to call at other times.

The Many Faces Of Aging

May is Older Americans Month and Social Security joins the Administration on Aging and organizations around the nation in celebrating the contributions of older Americans to society.

The theme for this year is "The Many Faces of Aging." It acknowledges the promise and the challenge posed by the United States' rapidly increasing multicultural aging population.

Social Security pays monthly retirement benefits to more than 31 million retired workers and their family members. More than nine in 10 Americans who are age 65 or older get Social Security benefits.

By 2030, minorities will represent 25 percent of the elder population. By the middle of the 21st century, every third older person will be from a minority group.

Social Security contributes greatly to the financial security of minority communities as well as older Americans.

Social Security benefits generally represent a larger share of the income of minority communities. Social Security benefits are about 33 1/3 percent of the income of elderly Americans in the society at large; for African Americans, the figure is 40 percent and for Hispanics, 39 percent.

Thanks to Social Security, less than 10 percent of American senior citizens live in poverty; without it, nearly 50 percent would live in poverty. For minority communities, the figure ranges from 65 percent for African Americans, 59 percent for Hispanics and American Indians, and 34 percent for Asians/Pacific Islanders.

The fact that Social Security retirement benefits are for life and increase annually with the cost of living is particularly important to some minority communities whose life expectancies are generally longer at age 65 than the national average. These include American Indians, Hispanics and Asian/Pacific Islander Americans.

In addition to Social Security retirement benefits, Social Security administers the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. SSI pays monthly checks to people who are 65 or older who don't own much or have a limited monthly income.

For more information, visit www.ssa.gov, or call toll-free 1-800-772-1213.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A temporary setback could work in your favor. Use this time to take another long look at a situation you thought was absolutely foolproof. Better to find the flaws now instead of later.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You divine Bovines could soon be scoring some impressive bull's-eyes as you get closer to putting those carefully made plans into motion. Be patient. Time is on your side.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Balance that slightly overly romantic view of your current situation with a much-needed dollop of reality from your practical side. See it as it is, not as you would like it to be.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your self-confidence continues to grow, but be careful not to overextend yourself. A partner is ready to provide you with loving support.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) There's no time for on-the-job catnapping for ambitious Leos and Leonas. Changes are coming, and you won't want to miss out on any of the opportunities that go with them.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your adventurous side continues to play a dominant role in many of the decisions you'll be making over the next few weeks. Enjoy the ride, but don't get carried away.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Avoid distractions that intrude on the time you need to straighten out legal complications. Expect to do some work-related traveling over the next few months.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be on guard against attempts to take advantage of your kind, caring nature. A trusted friend can help you get the facts before you reach for your checkbook.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A recent unpleasant confrontation could soon flare up again unless all the areas of miscommunication are resolved. The sooner you start the process, the better.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A recent workplace incident could continue to cause problems. Prepare yourself with the facts you'll need if you're called upon to give your side of the story.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is a good time to speak up about a troubling situation. The sooner you do, the sooner others will realize what's been going on and will help you deal with it.

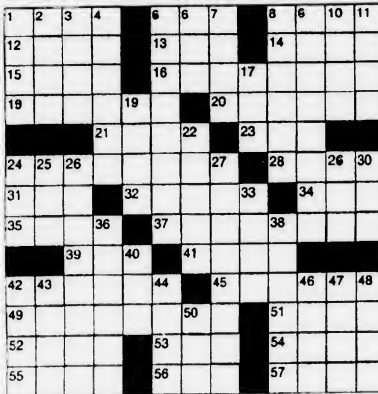

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A change in travel plans could be the first of many that will occur over the next several months. Meanwhile, deal with a problem involving someone close to you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a bright, shining personality that attracts people to you. You also have a way of seeing two sides of every issue. You would make a fine judge.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 2001-136

May 12 2001

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy that the Quincy Municipal Code is hereby amended by striking sections 2.76.010 to 2.76.080 inclusive and adding in its place the following:

2.76.010 Established.

Under the authority of M.G.L. Ch. 43, Sec. 5, there is established a department of Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems (hereinafter in this chapter called the "department"), which shall be within the branch of central service designated in this chapter.

2.76.020 Function.

It shall be the function of the department to provide Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems services as required, including, but not limited to, the planning, development and production of Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems and systems analysis for all departments of the City, including the school department. Such Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems services shall also include the provision of programs of systems for the collection, processing, storage and retrieval of information, and for the preparation of reports. As used in this chapter, the term "Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems" shall include without limitation word processing, management information systems, database management, and Information Technology, Networking and Telecommunications.

Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems services provided by the department of the Quincy College shall be for compensation to the department through interdepartmental billing in accordance with St. 1993 c. 53.

The department may, upon request and for compensation to the City in accordance with the rules and regulations provided for in Section 2.76.080 and subject to the approval of the Mayor, provide Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems services to the Quincy Housing Authority (hereinafter in this chapter called the "Authority") and to the City of Quincy -- South Coastal Career Development Administration and any successor thereto.

No department in the City may purchase Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems products or services from any source other than the department approved by the Chief Information Officer as hereinafter defined.

2.76.030 Personnel.

The department shall consist of a Chief Information Officer approved and funded.

2.76.040 Chief Information Officer.

The Chief Information Officer, (C.I.O.), shall be the head of the department. The Mayor shall annually on or before the first Monday in February appoint the director, who shall hold office for one year from the first Monday in February of the year of his appointment and until his successor is appointed and qualified. The Mayor may make the initial appointment of a Chief Information Officer, (C.I.O.), upon enactment of the ordinance.

2.76.050 Chief Information Officer - Duties.

The C.I.O. shall have the following duties and responsibilities:

- to organize and implement a centralized Information & Technology & Telecommunications Systems center for the City;
- to direct, organize and implement the planning, development and production of Information Systems, including the development of an integrated municipal information system;
- to direct and control the Information Technology & Telecommunication Systems operations and personnel of the department;
- to coordinate as may be required, through advice and counsel, the Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems Department of the City;
- to advise the Mayor and City Council on Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems matters, including the review of proposed information Technology & Telecommunications Systems applications or equipment acquisitions;
- to provide Information Technology & Telecommunications Systems to city departments, in accordance with the priorities of the City;
- to maintain and safeguard data, information, programs and equipment of the department;
- to perform such other duties as prescribed by law;
- to maintain city telephone and wireless service to all city departments;
- to provide, maintain and secure citywide network to all city buildings.

2.76.070 C.I.O. Control of Data.

The Chief Information Officer, (C.I.O.), shall establish rules and regulations controlling the access and release of data, not inconsistent with Mass. General Laws and Revised Ordinances of the City of Quincy. Neither the (C.I.O.) nor any other employee of the department may release any information or data collected or processed by the department except as authorized or required.

2.76.080 Use of Services - Rules and Regulations.

The Chief Information Officer shall establish rules and regulations as to the use of the department's services by other departments of the City.

ken opposition twice since taking office.

The last big mayor's race was the one he won in 1989 up against three well known opponents: former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, now an assessor, Steve McGrath, now city solicitor, and businessman Peter O'Connell.

Sheets and O'Connell won the two nominations in the preliminary election that year and Sheets went on to win the showdown in November.

Since then, names such as Tim Cahill, Dan Raymondi and Harold have been considered as likely candidates.

But none of the three seemed eager to step to the political plate against Sheets, one of the city's all-time popular mayors.

Phelan, seen by his supporters as a fresh face on the Quincy political scene, may be the one willing to swing the bat.

He presently is in the forefront of another issue: to provide additional specialists to assist classroom teachers in reaching out to children at risk at an early age so they won't get lost through the education system.

Phelan is the son-in-law of former Mayor Arthur Tobin, now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court, and brother-in-law of state Rep. Steve Tobin.

He and his wife, Tracey, have four children.

He comes from a large Quincy family of his own numbering eight children. He is a product of the Quincy public school system and was captain of the North Quincy High School basketball team.

He and two of his brothers are graduates of Suffolk Law School.

Phelan says location and cost were reasons, among others, that he favors Coddington Street/Faxon Field for the new high school.

He notes that costs at building at the DPW Sea Street location — including the non-reimbursable price of relocating the DPW — are estimated at $10 to $15 million higher than building a new high school at Faxon Field.

"The burden of the taxpayers," he says, "will be too much and funds will be spent towards a new DPW rather than a state-of-the-art new high school, where they should be."

A Sheets-Phelan duel would wake the town, politically.

Attention Quincy Residents

The Quincy DPW has taken over the curbside yardwaste collection program from BFI.

Yardwaste may be placed curbside now through December 14, 2001 on your regular trash pickup day.

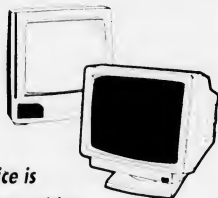

The drop-off facility at the DPW Backyard, 55 rear Sea Street, will still be open to Quincy residents Monday through Saturday from mid-April through mid-December and has been relocated so that residents do not have to drive far into the yard.

$ An incentive program is ongoing for residents who make the effort to drop off their materials and includes FREE YARD WASTE BAGS AND CASH PRIZES! $

It is mandatory that you use brown leaf bags, open barrels or cardboard boxes. No plastic bags will be accepted.

Please bundle/tie (with rope) branches and brush (in 3 foot lengths) separate from grass and leaves. Large tree limbs and heavy brush can be disposed of, unbundled, at the DPW yard.

Computer monitors & TVs, due to lead content, are now being accepted at the DPW drop off-site at 55 Sea Street every Saturday morning 9:00am-noon (except during snowstorms). Residents may drive up to the loading area of the building to place their materials on pallets. As this service is available weekly, year round, there will be no waiting.

Recycling Works! In the past ten years, the national recycling rate has increased from 11% to 27%!

Raising The First Flag

AILINA McNAMARA, widow of the late Bernard McNamara, holds her husband's flag, the first to be flown on the new flagpole at The Neighborhood Club, as Ed Flavin, chairman of the club's Long Range Planning Committee, prepares to raise the flag during recent dedication ceremonies. Both Ailina and her husband, an Army Air Corps veteran of World War II and former prisoner of war, were Neighborhood Club members, joining in 1979. Joining Mrs. McNamara and Flavin for the dedication were, from left: Roger Brousseau, manager of The Neighborhood Club; Richard Roche, secretary; Matthew McDonnell, vice president; Paul Rooney, president; Dorothea Giarrusso, sister of Mrs. McNamara; and Don McHugh, a member of the Board of Governors. After a suitable period of time, The Neighborhood Club intends to honor other club members and former veterans by flying their flags as well. The new flag pole replaces the one lost in the 1970s.

All Of Quincy Center Now In Ward 5

Less Than 10% Change In City Under New Redistricting

The City Council Monday night approved a redistricting plan for the city's wards and precincts which changes little from the present configuration.

"Almost all the changes are inter-ward changes," City Clerk Joseph Shea told councillors. "Less than 10 percent of the city has changed."

One important change, Shea said, was that all of Quincy Center would now be located in Ward 5, which also contains Wollaston Center.

"Ward 3 no longer splits the square," Shea explained.

Shea said he considered very seriously a state suggestion to reduce the number of city precincts from 30 to 24 but decided against it because it would reduce the number of city polling places, currently at 18.

More significant changes would take place by the next mandated redistricting 10 years from now, Shea said, noting his intention to revisit polling places in the coming year and the expected growth of Marina Bay and Highpoint over the next decade.

"The next 10 years are going to see some major changes in the city," Shea said, adding that he had intended to include more changes this time around but, given the complexity of the issue and the need to give residents adequate notification, major changes had "proven impossible at this time."

The current redistricting plan, which now goes to the state for approval, will not affect this year's municipal elections, becoming effective for state elections in 2002 and municipal elections in 2003.

Redistricting is based upon the most recent Federal Census, which listed Quincy as having a population of 88,025.

By law, Shea said, elected officials must represent the same number of residents, allowing a five percent margin for error.

The city has six wards comprised of 30 precincts, five precincts per ward.

Rent Hikes Letter Stuns City Council

By CRAIG SALTERS

A letter from the Elder Housing Corporation to the senior residents of Quantum Gardens Naval Terrace informing them of a $75 rental increase and making reference to termination of tenancy stunned city councillors Monday night.

On a resolve from Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton, the Oversight Committee will hold a meeting on the matter Tuesday, June 26 at 6 p.m.

The letter, dated May 31 and brought before the council by Newton, also elicited a response from Mayor James Sheets, primary architect of the January conveyance of Quantum Gardens from the U.S. Navy to the city-created Elder Housing Corporation for $1.

Sheets called for an apology by the now private, non-profit corporation.

Elder Housing Corporation officials insist there was no threat, veiled or otherwise, to scare Naval Terrace residents with the letter, adding that the first-ever rental increase from $750 to $825 was approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and a response to increased operating expenses such as soaring heating costs.

But the issue, Sheets said, was not the rental increases, which were between the corporation and HUD, but the manner in which the matter was handled.

"The issue is that this is (Cont'd On Page 12)

Sheets Confident Coddington St. New QHS Site

Having declared his preference for the new Quincy High School to be constructed on the Faxon Field/Coddington St. site next to the current QHS, Mayor James Sheets expressed confidence that the School Committee would vote in support of his decision.

"I'm confident that a positive decision will be made to go to the Coddington St. site," Sheets told The Sun Tuesday, one day before a scheduled 6 p.m. reconvening of the Quincy High School Siting Commission in the Parker Suite of Quincy High School to be followed by a 7:30 meeting of the School Committee at City Hall.

The basis of that confidence, Sheets said, was Monday's meeting of the Building Needs Subcommittee

Retail Developer Bullish On Downtown Quincy

By CRAIG SALTERS

Atlantic Management President Joseph Zink wants retailers to think "out of the box" and into Quincy Square, telling a recent general membership meeting of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (OCBPA) of the positive momentum being generated in the Quincy Center area.

"The demographics in Quincy are just so strong," Zink told OCBPA members, pointing out that roughly 200,000 potential customers are within a five-mile radius of the downtown. "I feel very confident of the future of downtown Quincy."

So confident, in fact, that Framingham-based Atlantic Management has put its money where its mouth is over the past four years, purchasing four buildings in the Parkway area with a combined 150,000 square feet of space. Three of those buildings are already occupied by national chains: The Outback Steakhouse, Petco, and the recently opened A.J. Wright outlet.

And Zink made no bones about what was driving both his company's interest and that of retailers: The Quincy Concourse, which will eventually connect Quincy Center directly to the major highways, Phase I of which is scheduled for completion by this fall.

"The concourse is what made these projects possible," Zink said. "That's what drawing the national retailers."

Zink also noted "the tremendous impact" the proposed ramps at Crown Colony will have as well as a little discussed, above-grade "flyover" ramp which will directly connect Burgin Parkway to the proposed Home Depot at the former Raytheon site in South Quincy.

Zink admitted parking was a concern, as it was in all cities, but said one of his biggest business challenges was not parking but rather convincing retailers that stores could have success without the "generic" mall atmosphere or the "cookie-cutter" rows of parking right outside a storefront.

"That's not the way cities work," he said. "The retailer has to learn to adapt to the city."

As one example, Zink cited the recent opening of Petco, which he said would not have happened had not a Petco executive, a former assistant manager of the former Child World in downtown Quincy, convinced company officials that the store would be a success.

"It's my job to educate the retailers to understand how strong Quincy really is," Zink said. "It's not conventional retail but the retailers who've gone there have done very well."

"If it's not round peg, round whole, they (national retailers) don't want to commit."

Of course, one would expect a major developer to tout business development and infrastructure improvements at a meeting of business professionals, but Zink surprised some when he said it was residential development which drove retail development and not vice versa.

"Residential and office development will lead the retail," said Zink, responding to a question on the proposed development of the Hancock Lot into apartment units. "When you take the residential component out of any city, it sucks the night life right out of it. It's unhealthy."

5,000 Copies Printed Popular Guide To Quincy Beaches Now Available

A Guide to the Quincy Beaches

The Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission has printed its second edition of A Guide to the Quincy Beaches, which is proving just as popular as last year's edition.

"I dropped 100 copies off at Tony's Clam Shop last week and they've already asked for 300 more," said Leo Kelly, chairman of the Beaches and Coastal Commission. "They're just flying off the shelves."

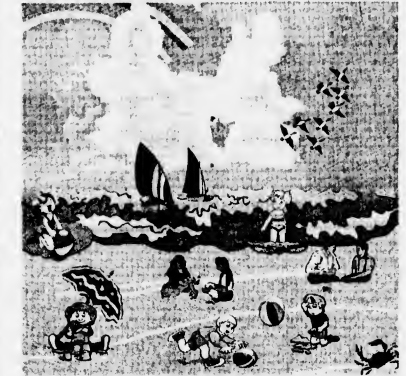

Like last year, 5,000 of the free 22 page booklets have been printed and are available at City Hall, library branches, and community centers as well as various restaurants, convenient stores, and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St.

The guide, which this year contains color photos front and back, provides a list of shoreline beaches and their locations, available forms of transportation, a tidal chart, and pertinent information such as websites and information hotlines.

The booklet also contains a map of area beaches and islands, a water sampling program, and a message from Mayor James Sheets outlining proposed beach improvements such as additional sand and recreational programs.

"We're very pleased with the booklet and we think people will be enjoying the beach tremendously this year with some of the improvements we're coming out with," Kelly said.

Kelly thanked the mayor as well as the city's Park, Health, Data Processing, and Community Planning Departments.

He also thanked the Beaches and Coastal Commission members, who include: Doug Gutro, vice chairman; Margaret Milne, secretary; Chickie Abdallah, Monique Flaherty, P.J. Foley, Jane Gallahue, Bob Galligan, Joseph Joy, Bob Lescinskas, Sr.; Anne McDonald, Michael Morad, Dave Murphy, Jack Nigro, and Bernie Reisberg.

Quincy beaches and islands detailed in the booklet are: Nickerson Beach, Orchard Beach, Wollaston Beach, Post Island Beach, Parkhurst Beach, Rhoda Beach, Edgewater Drive Beach, Baker/Broadway Beach, Avalon Beach, and Mound St. Beach.

The city's Beach Hotline is (617) 376-1288.

Attention Quincy Residents

The Quincy DPW has taken over the curbside yardwaste collection program from BFI.

Yardwaste may be placed curbside now through December 14, 2001 on your regular trash pickup day.

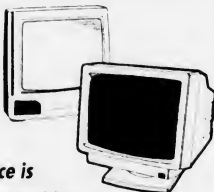

The drop-off facility at the DPW Backyard, 55 rear Sea Street, will still be open to Quincy residents Monday through Saturday from mid-April through mid-December and has been relocated so that residents do not have to drive far into the yard.

$ An incentive program is ongoing for residents who make the effort to drop off their materials and includes FREE YARD WASTE BAGS AND CASH PRIZES! $

It is mandatory that you use brown leaf bags, open barrels or cardboard boxes. No plastic bags will be accepted.

Please bundle/tie (with rope) branches and brush (in 3 foot lengths) separate from grass and leaves. Large tree limbs and heavy brush can be disposed of, unbundled, at the DPW yard.

Computer monitors & TVs, due to lead content, are now being accepted at the DPW drop off-site at 55 Sea Street every Saturday morning 9:00am-noon (except during snowstorms). Residents may drive up to the loading area of the building to place their materials on pallets. As this service is available weekly, year round, there will be no waiting.

Board Suspends Bar Licenses For Three Days

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board voted unanimously Tuesday to suspend all licenses for three days at Paddy Barry's, 1574 Hancock St., for overcrowding and overpouring and serving intoxicated patrons.

The motion was made by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who set the dates of suspension as June 15, 16 and 17.

Det. Lt. Robert M. Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent told the board of the many incidents of the establishment. Perchard said there were as many as 92 customers at one time. The number of patrons is supposed to be 73.

He called the business a "slipping slope falling down" and noted that the fire door did not open at the right side, and could cause "death" if persons tried to go down the cellar as there was no access out of the cellar.

Perchard said owner Gerard Hanley does not check ID's, serves intoxicated persons, and is "not a good owner or manager." He added that conversations with Hanley "go in one ear and out the other."

Backing Perchard's report were patrolmen Sean Duggan and Richard Praetisch who have both responded to calls and illimate arrests either for assault or disorderly conduct.

Atty. Robert Tombari, representing Hanley said Perchard is looking at Hanley "through a microscope" and called the police action "selected enforcement." He questioned the number of patrons in the bar's area and stated the area was larger than Perchard had stated. He said that Hanley has "always been cooperative" with the police.

He said many of the calls made to the police department were from Hanley who was told by Perchard to call them if any employees were going to work late.

However, Perchard said patrons were observed drinking at 3 and 4 a.m. one with a bottle of beer still in his hand.

Gorman defended Perchard saying that most club owners think of him as "tough but very fair and honest".

Gorman said "we want to keep Quincy Square as a safe place and we mean business. We don't want to people afraid when they walk through the center, that someone intoxicated would attack them."

Chairman Joseph Shea said when Paddy Barry's first opened, the number of patrons initially was 37, and when the building department reviewed the space, it jumped to 73 patrons.

Walter White, director of inspectional services asked Hanley why in four months time, he has not repaired the fire door for a safe egress?

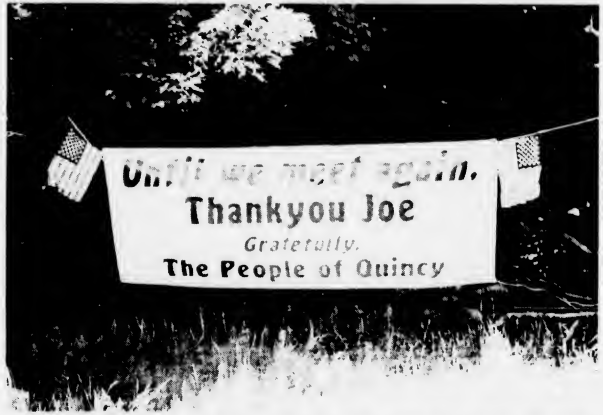

Hanley said when he spoke to his landlord, that they were under the impression that a written statement by the building department requesting the fire egress should have been mailed to the landlord.

Hanley said he always tried to be cooperative, and admitted that sometimes "we have been lax", but added "we have taken steps to rectify this."

Finally after hearing both sides, Police Chief William Falco said he found it "incredible" with the reports from the police department and building inspector that the owners and their attorney spoke as though "nothing has happened," and called the owners "irresponsible."

Owners were told they have to supply a safe egress in case of fire. Hanley said he would fix the door himself since the landlord doesn't seem to be taking any action.

Shea said he would re-examine and re-visit the establishments and said Hanley could appeal to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

Monthly Parking Gates Soon Back In Operation

A new motor for the broken gates which service monthly parkers at The Hancock Parking Lot is on its way and the gates should be repaired "any day now," reports Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon.

The old motor, Gillon said, was disabled in a recent accident but the city was not satisfied with a submitted quote of $2,300 to repair the entire gates and not just the motor itself.

Instead, Gillon said, the city purchased a brand new motor for $300 and hopes to install it by the end of the week.

With the gates broken, the monthly lot has been open to all cars, irritating customers who pay for the privilege of monthly parking.

Public Hearing June 26 On Inclusionary Zoning

The Ordinance Committee of the City Council will hold a public hearing on a proposed Inclusionary Zoning Ordinance Tuesday, June 26 at 7 p.m. in council chambers.

Through City Clerk Joseph Shea, the city's Planning Board will be informed of the date in the hopes that a special joint hearing can be held.

If approved, the ordinance would require developers seeking P.U.D. permits in the city to construct an affordable housing component or provide the cash equivalent for affordable housing elsewhere in the city.

Mosquito Control Project Underway

The Quincy Health Department has received notice from the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project that early morning application of the pesticide Resmethrin for the control of adult mosquitoes is under way.

Weather permitting, application will continue throughout the summer months until September 15. Applications will be made on Thursday mornings.

Not all areas of the city will be treated on a given date. Attempts will be made to treat as large an area as is deemed necessary and as weather permits.

Fogging operations will occur between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. only if mosquito populations warrant an application. If inclement weather occurs or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day.

Resmethrin is used due to its compatibility with the environment, very low toxicity to mammals, low irritation levels, and the fact it does not harm other wildlife.

For more information, contact the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project at (781) 762-3681 or through the Project's web site at: <http://www.ahtnet.com/~necmp>. Residents wishing to see a map of the areas to be treated should click on the following link: "current ULV Spray Schedule & Town Maps," then click on "Quincy."

Residents should note that ULV maps will be posted by 3:30 p.m. the day before the scheduled application.

Ford And A Quincy Footnote

There is a little Quincy angle footnote to the recent presentation of the John F. Kennedy Profile In Courage Award to former President Gerald Ford.

It wasn't mentioned in all the media coverage which focused on Ford's courage in pardoning disgraced former President Richard Nixon for his part in the Watergate scandal cover-up.

That did take courage. Political guts.

Ford granted the pardon just one month after succeeding Nixon who had resigned before he could be impeached and flew out of town.

Ford was like a breath of fresh air in the White House after taking his oath of office at age 61, Aug. 7, 1974.

"The long national nightmare is over," he declared. He looked like a straight shooter after we had suffered through Nixon on TV with that miniature American flag pinned to his lapel and sweating as he told us, "I am not a crook."

And then, for a healthy change of pace, there on TV was the new President scrambling eggs one morning for breakfast for himself and new First Lady, Betty. It was like opening the windows and clearing out the stench from the Nixon administration.

Ford's popularity soared.

But on Sept. 8, just one month and a day after taking office, we were stunned when Ford announced he was granting Nixon a full, absolute pardon. Nixon, he said, had "Paid the unprecedented penalty of relinquishing the highest elective office of the United States."

By granting the pardon he spared Nixon a post-Watergate criminal investigation and probable indictment and the public a long, agonizing trial. One that would also distract from Ford's presidency.

But the timing of the pardon -- just one month and one day after taking office, touched off howls of protests and accusations of "a deal" having been struck between Nixon and Ford. Which Ford denied.

There was no doubt Ford was risking his political reputation and future even if what he did was good for the country.

His "Mr. Clean" image was damaged and it lingered into 1976 and the Presidential election that year when a virtual unknown Jimmy Carter defeated him.

Ford has said he thinks the Nixon pardon probably did cost him the Presidency.

And what about that little footnote to him receiving the Profile In Courage Award from the Kennedy Library Foundation at the recent ceremony at the library?

John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, was a reporter for The Sun and its cable TV news anchor in 1984 when Ford appeared at a political rally in Boston. Noonan got a chance to interview Ford and asked, "Mr. President, do you think that former President Nixon should apologize to the people of the United States for his role in the Watergate scandal?"

Commission On Disability To Meet June 11

The Quincy Commission on Disability will meet Monday, June 11 at 6:15 p.m. in the conference room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Washington St.

The public is invited.

Those interested in becoming a member of the Commission on Disability should contact Jonathan Yip at (617) 376-1515 or Nancy Magee at (617) 770-4530.

States for his role in the Watergate scandal?"

Ford replied, "Yes, I think it would be appropriate for him to do so."

His response, Noonan recalls, was picked up by the Associated Press and TV networks around the country.

But Nixon never apologized.

Why should he? After all he wasn't a crook, as he told us. He was innocent -- in his own mind.

MIKE BELLOTTI left no doubt at the Democratic state convention in Springfield that he's serious about a run for Secretary of State.

He had "Bellotti 2002" signs all over the place at the Springfield Civic Center. And before that, hand held at the Mass. Turnpike turn-off in Chicopee.

Bellotti hopes to step up from the Norfolk County sheriff's office to Secretary of State. And he will run providing incumbent William Galvin goes for governor. And Galvin sounded very much like he was doing just that at the convention.

MARIANO

IF YOU'VE BEEN wondering if Ron Mariano is seeking re-election to the school committee this year, you can apparently stop. He has taken out nomination papers for a fourth term.

Mariano was the last of the three incumbents due up for re-election to take his papers. Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg and Michael McFarland were early birds.

AND, STEPPING INTO the school committee race is a familiar name: Ron Iacobucci. Now Associate Director of the South Coastal Work Force Investment Board, he took out nomination papers this week.

Iacobucci knows his way around the political scene. He topped the Quincy vote in the 1992 Democratic primary for Governor's Council, losing district-wide to Boston's Christopher Iannella, Jr.

Iacobucci also made a bid for city councillor at-large in 1987, finishing something like 200 votes behind third place winner Tim Cahill.

Iacobucci, 45, says he has three good reasons for running for school committee: daughter, Deanna, 14, who will be attending North Quincy High School this fall; and future students Christopher, 2, and Matthew, 8 months.

He sees the Quincy public school system at a critical crossroads facing many serious challenges in the next few years. He says there is a need for strong leadership and he feels he can help provide it.

YOU'RE A YOUNG old-timer if you can remember when in addition to the Wollaston Theatre, there were the Strand, Quincy, Art, Adams, Regent and Lincoln movie houses. And the closest thing to profanity on their screens was in "Gone With The Wind" when Clark Cable told Vivian Leigh, "Frankly, my dear, I don't give a damn."

My, how things change.

Quincy's Yesterdays Castor Estate To Be Seized

By PAUL HAROLD

The "mystery" house overlooking Town River in Germantown would be seized for military purposes if the recommendation of the Quincy police was accepted by federal authorities.

Quincy Police Captain George Fallon said the abandoned mansion had been vandalized since the death of its owner, Boston bookseller Theodore Caster, and had been a nuisance. Fallon suggested the federal government seize the property under the Alien Property Custodian Law, and use it for military uses, including military barracks.

It was believed that the house had been left to an institution in Nazi Germany.

POLICE RAZED AT ADAMS FIELD

Police officers, under orders from Chief John Avery, conducted a general inspection of cars at Adams Field. According to rules from the Office of Price Administration (OPA), police were required to check vehicles at places of amusement to see if there were gas rationing violations.

The reason that the police were razzed by the crowd at Adams Field was because the police were driving from car to car to check registrations, unnecessarily burning up precious fuel.

The baseball game was part of the shipyard league competition with Fore River playing a team from Rhode Island.

The resolution was sponsored by Edward Scalamiero of West Quincy. He said he "button lip" rule would put an end to loose talk and reduce the spread of false rumors.

Others attending the convention from Quincy were Sebastian Squatrito, Rocco Vitale and Salvatore Sternati.

Ayers Supports Equal Choice Bill

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

When an elderly parent reaches a point in their life that they can no longer care for themselves in their own house, family members are faced with the decision to place their loved one in a nursing facility or have them come live with them. An option often overlooked is for the senior to remain at their residence with the help of a personal home care service.

However, with the current makeup of Medicaid, our state's reimbursement rate for home health care is substantially lower than that of institutional or nursing home care. Medicaid allots $130 daily for nursing home care, while it only allots $7.38 a day for home health care. This variance has called for the orientation of a piece of legislation filed by the Massachusetts Legislature calling for Equal Choice for seniors.

The city of Quincy's population is made up of a large percentage of seniors and the state of Massachusetts has the 11th largest elderly population in the country. As this population ages, there will be even more of a demand for health care assistance at home.

For these reasons, I have co-sponsored House Bill

1589, referred to as the Equal Choice Bill, which would provide elders with a choice between care at home or in a nursing facility. Home health care costs can vary; however, they are across the board less expensive than caring for individuals at the nursing homes. Why shouldn't a senior living in their golden years, eligible for nursing home care, be able to receive that same treatment in the comforts of their home, for the same price?

The State House is dealing with the 5 percent roll back and the sluggish economy. I believe now, more than ever, the state legislature has an obligation to protect our seniors. As we do with any budget, we must set our priorities; senior citizen's health and safety is one of my top priorities. I am supporting the Equal Choice Bill, which has been introduced to the Massachusetts State Legislature this year, protects the senior's basic right to live independently in a non-restrictive setting.

I intend to work hard to ensure that the Equal Choice Bill passes as soon as possible because our most vulnerable seniors deserve to have a choice.

Streets, Sidewalks Need Real Repairs

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As I read the front page story (Sheets Considering Bond Issue For Roads, Sidewalks, Quincy Sun, May 31), I wondered what's taken City Hall so long to see? The mayor says he also wants to plant more trees. According to His Honor, the city hasn't planted any new trees in more than two years. I live on Atlantic Street. Two years ago a city contractor did street and sidewalk work form Newbury Avenue up to the end of the street by Murphy Brothers. I had thought, silly me again, that the rest of Atlantic Street was also scheduled for the same thing. But it wasn't.

If the city can't get streets repaired, what can it do? The condition of Atlantic Street between Newbury Avenue and East Squantum Street is horrendous in some parts and just plain awful in others.

If retired NASA astronaut Neil Armstrong ever gets homesick for the moon, I suggest he take one small step onto Atlantic Street and it will be 1969 all over again.

However, street and sidewalk repairs are a citywide problem. I see it everywhere; I just happen to see it more on my street. Time is now to do more than patch-up work. Time is now for real repairs.

Don't consider street and sidewalk repairs, do it. The mayor and city council ought to be ashamed of how bad things have gotten. How deep do the potholes have to be before they get fixed?

Taxpayers of Quincy deserve better from City Hall.

'Bunker Hill' Author At Crane Library June 19

Janet Uhlar Tinney, a former Quincy resident, will read from her debut novel, "Bunker Hill," Tuesday, June 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

Tinney will be the fourth author to visit the library to read from a new work and talk about it with her audience.

Tinney has a love of history and a lifelong fascination with the American Revolution. She decided to interest her children in history by writing biographical sketches. Having read "Johnny Tremaine" as a youngster, she chose one of the heroes from that book, Dr. Joseph Warren

The more she researched Warren, the more she became intrigued by the part he played in the Revolution. The result is "Bunker Hill," just over 400 pages long, a suspenseful and informative historical novel. It is the first of five books in "The American Patriots Series" from Cumberland Publishing House.

Tinney grew up in Germantown in a family of 10 children. After graduating from Quincy High School, she went to the Quincy Vo-Tech to become an LPN. Now a resident of Cape Cod, Tinney is the mother of five children and still has family in Quincy.

garten to Grade 3 at the Bernazzani Elementary School were recently entertained by "Foodplay," a national award-winning nutrition theater show.

The show, created and directed by nutritionist Barbara Storper, M.S., R.D., addresses the major nutrition, fitness, and self-esteem concerns affecting today's school children, providing them with the practical skills they need to grow up healthy and fit.

According to Dr. Storper, recent national studies show that one out of four children is overweight and faces an increased risk of chronic disease later in life. Twenty-five percent of today's school children show signs of high cholesterol levels.

At the same time, national studies show alarming rates of eating disorders (20 percent of high school girls showing signs of bulimia), harmful dieting practices (up to 50 percent of teenage girls are dieting on a given day), and young people taking up smoking as a way to lose weight.

By fourth grade, Dr. Storper said, two thirds of the nation's girls have reportedly gone on some kind of diet because they think they are "fat."

Salt Marsh Trail Re-Opens With Nature Tour Saturday

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures of Quincy program invites the public to celebrate the grand re-opening of the Salt Marsh Trail Saturday at 10 a.m.

Brenda Shore, an educator at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, and her students will lead a tour of the one-half mile trail, identifying plants and points of interest.

Chuck Phelan, former city councilor and the city's current director of Data Processing, who created the trail in 1973 when he was an Eagle Scout, will provide a brief history of the trail.

Since 1999, Shore has been working with Beechwood Knoll Principal Kathleen Morris, parent Maureen McCarron, and a committee of Beechwood Knoll staff, parents, and community members to restore the trail. Tour participants will be able to view new trail markers installed by the Park Department which describe the trail's natural features.

Fourth and fifth grade students in Shore's after-school enrichment program have been training all year to become tour leaders and advocates. Assisting as tour guides Saturday will be Angela Baglione, Christine Campbell, Taylor Hughes, Kelly King, Nicole Mann, Jessica Moran, and Andrew Young.

The students said they are enthusiastic about sharing what they have learned. Concerned about vandalism that has occurred in the past, Nicole Mann explained, "A lot of people don't care about the salt marsh. If they came (on the tour), they would probably get persuaded to stop vandalizing the salt marsh."

Echoing that concern was Christine Campbell, who described the vandalism that destroyed the osprey nesting platform in the marsh. "The birds have homes, too. We should not wreck them," Campbell said.

Kelly King said, "Some people don't care for the marsh. I'm sort of hoping that if a bunch of people come and see how much work we have put into it, they'll realize it's not a piece of land; it's a thing of beauty."

In addition to its beauty, Angela Baglione noted: "The plant matter of the salt marsh starts a food chain which is important to life, from very simple invertebrates to man. Even commercial items such as clams and flounder depend on the salt marshes."

The program is appropriate for all ages. Tour participants should meet in the Beechwood Knoll School parking lot on Fenno St.

The trail can be muddy and, to minimize exposure to poison ivy and possible ticks, it is recommended that participants wear light-colored clothing, socks, long pants, and a long-sleeved shirt or jacket.

The program will last one and one-half to two hours. Wearing a hat and sunscreen and bringing water is also recommended.

The land containing the trail was donated to the city by the children of Reuben and Lizzie Grossman in memory of their parents and is under the protection of the Quincy Conservation Commission. For further information on the tour, call Dave Murphy in the Park Department at (617) 376-1254.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Grecian, Italian Lamb

I was actually looking to make a favorite entree I sometimes order when eating out, a lamb shank dish, but the market didn't have the cut I wanted, so I purchased a package of lamb pieces.

Fearing that it just wouldn't be as tender, I decided to cook it much longer than usual and the results were worth it.

Lamb-Greek- Italian Style.

1 - 1/2 pounds of lamb either pieces or shank
2 cups tomato sauce
1/4 cup cooking sherry
2-3 cloves of garlic (chopped)
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon oregano

1/2 cup uncooked rice
1/2 cup ketchup
2 carrots (sliced) (or a small can of sliced carrots.
salt and pepper to taste
In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and lamb turning until lightly browned. Add the sherry. Then all the other ingredients blending the uncooked rice all through the liquid.

Cover and cook slowly for an hour and a half stirring occasionally.

I was pleased at how it came out -- so tender. It got raves and when my brother in law Jerry, my food critic told me it was good, I knew it had to be!

Beechwood Announces Annual Sunflower Contest

The Beechwood Community Life Center announces its seventh annual "Grow Together" Sunflower Contest.

The program, said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals, is intended to encourage children and families to plant and garden together.

"Families throughout the city participate each year, planting sunflowers in yards, patios, driveways, gardens, and pots," Beals said. "We expect 12 to 15 foot sunflowers growing all over the city again this year."

Registration continues through June 15 and all Quincy families are invited to enter.

Seeds are available at no cost at Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., or The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St. Families can purchase their own favorite brand but must register by June 15 to be eligible for the contest.

Almquist Flowerland has generously provided 200 hybrid seed packets for the event.

The family whose sunflower is "tallest" on August 31 wins a Family Fun Basket filled with games, books, toys, gift certificates, and other surprises donated by Quincy businesses.

The winning family will be pictured in The Quincy Sun.

7th Annual Father Bill's Food Fest, Auction Aug. 1

The Father Bill's 7th Annual Food Fest and Auction will take place Wednesday, Aug. 1 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Summer House, located at Marina Bay.

Scott Wahle, a South Shore resident and co-host of WBZ 4 News, is the honorary chairman for this year's festivities.

The Food Fest will feature delicacies prepared by chefs from many of the finest restaurants on the South Shore. Local wine distributors will be on hand with a selection of wines to sample and enjoy.

The 7th Annual Food Fest and Auction raises money for Father Bill's Place, a shelter for those experiencing homelessness; all proceeds directly benefit guests of Father Bill's Place.

The auction features items donated by many local businesses, including sporting memorabilia, entertainment packages, and tickets to sporting events.

A brand new 2001 Ford Taurus LE will be raffled off at the event. Only 1,000 tickets will be sold at $50 each.

Eugene Creedon To Receive Koch Youth Service Award

The Koch Club and the Quincy Flag Day Parade Committee announce that Quincy Public Schools Superintendent Eugene Creedon will be recognized with the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award at the annual Flag Day Parade and Celebration.

The award recognizes a person who has made a significant difference in the lives of Quincy's children.

The award is presented at the flag-raising ceremony conducted immediately after the Quincy Flag Day Parade. This year's parade and celebration will be held on Saturday evening, June 16.

The 50th annual parade will step off at 6:30 p.m. and the flag-raising ceremony will take place at 8 p.m. at Pageant Field.

"Superintendent Creedon has spent his lifetime dedicated to helping children receive the educational foundation they need to succeed in life," said Thomas Koch, chairman of the Flag

EUGENE CREEDON

Day Committee. "His commitment and passion to this cause have improved the lives of thousands of children who have benefited from our great school system. He personifies the commitment we try to recognize with this award."

The award is named for Koch Club and Quincy Flag Day Parade Founder Richard Koch. His lifetime commitment to improving the lives of Quincy children resulted in the naming of this award in his honor.

Creedon, who has served as superintendent since 1992, recently announced he was retiring later this year. Prior to serving as superintendent, he served as: Assistant Superintendent, 1990 to 1992; Director of Elementary and Middle Schools, 1987 to 1990; Principal of the Broad Meadows Middle School, 1982 to 1987; Principal of Parker Elementary School, 1971 to 1982; and Principal of St. Ann's School, 1969 to 1971.

Prior to working as a principal, Creedon spent eight years teaching, including four at the Quincy Point Junior High School.

Creedon and wife Kathleen have three children: Erin, Susan, and Patrick.

Past recipients of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award include George Burke, Howard and Janet Crowley, Frank Brillo, and Anthony DelMonico.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

GREEN TEETH

Sometimes, help comes from the most unexpected sources. Such was found to be the case when a Japanese scientist found that the pungent green horseradish that is served with sushi is able to stop tooth decay. Specifically, laboratory studies showed that wasabi inhibited the growth of Streptococcus mutans (the bacterium responsible for tooth decay) by up to 100%. Chemical compounds found in wasabi, called isothiocyanates, interfere with the bacteria's ability to adhere to bone and teeth. Wasabi also has antimicrobial powers, which is probably why it is served with raw fish (sashimi). While no one has yet called for anyone to brush his or her teeth with wasabi, the finding does post some interesting possibilities for future tooth decay prevention.

This column on "Green Teeth" has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. We can provide you with complete general dental services, from a professional cleaning (preventative) to full mouth reconstruction (repair), periodontal treatments, and cosmetic dentistry. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we believe in the importance of regular preventative dental health care. Let us help you preserve your teeth. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule and appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

PS: The isothiocyanates in wasabi have also been shown to help prevent blood clots and cancer.

McCauley Candidate For Re-Election To City Council

City Councillor at-Large and former Mayor Francis X. McCauley announces his candidacy for re-election to a third consecutive term.

McCauley has previously served on the council both as Ward 1 councillor and a councillor-at-large and eight years on the school committee. He served four terms as mayor from 1982 through 1989.

McCauley has been called "the financial watchdog" of the council due to his scrutiny of all orders involving the expenditure of taxpayers' money. Council President Paul Harold recognized McCauley's efforts in this area in January, 2000 when he appointed him to chair the council's Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee, comprised of all nine councillors, votes on the mayor's annual budget as well as all spending orders proposed by the mayor.

During 1998 and 1999 as chairman of the Council's Health and Hospital Committee McCauley was part of the successful effort of the Sheets Administration and a hospital task force to keep Quincy Hospital open as the Quincy Medical Center.

A highlight of McCauley's tenure as mayor was his administration's successful lawsuit against the MDC which resulted in the court ordered clean-up of Quincy Bay and the closing of Nut Island as a sewage treatment plant. A modern addition to and renovation of Quincy Hospital was completed during his administration.

As mayor, McCauley notes he worked with activists to establish an after-school day care program in Quincy schools which is still in operation in a number of schools throughout the city and provides Quincy parents working outside the home with a safe environment for their young children.

An honors graduate of Boston College High School and Bentley College, McCauley, 71, lives at 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck, with his wife of 47 years, the former Sandra MacKinnon. The couple are parents of five children and grandparents of 13.

In announcing his candidacy, McCauley said:

"I have served in all four elective offices, the only person in the history of Quincy government to do so. My experience has also included over 25 years in the private sector, retiring as president of a local bank upon my election to the office of mayor in 1981.

"I have served the state of Massachusetts as executive director of the State Retirement Board. I have been involved in many civic organizations, serving as past president of the Quincy Lions Club which has honored me with the Melvin Jones Award for humanitarian service, and as a past president of the Houghs Neck Community Council where I presently serve on the Scholarship Board. Governor Frank Sargent appointed me to a five year term on the Quincy Housing Authority Board, the last year of which I served as chairman.

"I have made public service my life; from the days when as a young banker I helped young families buy their first homes, to my present service on the council where I am continually striving to 'hold the line' on runaway spending that can negatively impact the quality of life in our city."

Gutro Sees Benefits In Proposed Redistricting

Doug Gutro, Ward 5 city council candidate, believes that if the city's proposed redistricting plan is approved, the councilor from that ward will have the opportunity to play a significant role in the revitalization of Quincy Center.

"If this plan is enacted, for the first time in recent memory, the entire Quincy Center Business District and the Wollaston Business District will be in one ward," Gutro noted. "As I see it, this presents a leadership opportunity for the next city councilor from Ward 5."

"This new configuration will ensure that both the business community and neighbors will have one ward councilor responsible for overseeing the key issues which are vital top the renaissance for Quincy Center."

"Any major issue that affects Quincy Center can have a ripple effect throughout the city," Gutro added, citing traffic, parking, tourism and business development.

"The way we manage these issues will either breathe new life into our city or exacerbate existing problems."

In addition to general issues, Gutro pointed to specific projects including the Quincy Center Concourse, potential development plans for the parking lot adjacent to Revere Road, and Town Brook flood control.

Gutro cited his experience in government, knowledge and understanding of community concerns and graduate school training in public administration qualify him to manage these issues.

"Ward boundaries do more than determine where a resident votes," Gutro said. "They define who will be your voice both in city hall and the state house."

Because Wards 3 and 5

historically have been centrally located in the city with few natural boundaries, they tend to be more vulnerable to changes than other wards, he said.

"Shifting any street from one ward to another ward can be disconcerting to voters who live on these streets," Gutro said. "I've encountered many residents who have lived in the same house for most of their lives but have changed wards several times in the past 30 years. This obviously can be frustrating."

Where changes are inevitable because of population shifts, Gutro called on the city to provide early notification to inform residents of their new wards, precincts and polling locations.

Citing the importance of continuity and convenience for voters, Gutro said he supports Mayor Sheets' decision to retain 30 polling places in the city.

$30,000 In Design Funds For Cemetery, MDC Land Swap

The City Council Monday night approved a $30,000 transfer of funds from the sale of lots at Pine Hill Cemetery to the Cemetery Department to finance design and engineering work for a proposed land swap with the Metropolitan District Commission.

Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments, emphasized that negotiations for the proposed 30 to 40 acre land swap with the MDC were ongoing but that the design work would take the project to "the next level."

Responding to councillor questions concerning the space crisis at Pine Hill Cemetery, Koch said that, if realized, the MDC land swap would answer space issues "probably for our lifetime."

Sheets Confident

tee of the School Committee, attended by all members of the School Committee in addition to Committee Chairman Michael McFarland and committee members Linda Stice and Ronald Mariano.

At that meeting, Sheets said, there was an understanding that building the new Quincy High School at the current DPW headquarters at 55 Sea St., as recommended by the Siting Commission, would not be best in terms of cost or practicality.

Sheets said he came to that conclusion himself almost three weeks ago after learning that MWRA officials would require appraised market value for their property at the Fore River Shipyard, the leading site for relocation of the DPW.

That fact, along with the costs of building infrastructure and installing utilities in what is a brownfield, would put DPW relocation costs at between $17 and $20 million, Sheets said.

"That's substantially above what was projected," Sheets explained. "Certainly, we cannot put that kind of bonded debt burden on the taxpayers... it would destabilize the bond plan."

Not only was relocating the DPW to the MWRA property cost prohibitive, Sheets said, but there was also a question as to whether the city could even obtain the property.

Finance Committee To Hold Final Budget Session

The Finance Committee of the City Council will hold its final budget session tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Budget items for Quincy Medical Center and the Quincy Public Schools are on the agenda as are four items held over from earlier sessions which deal with the Inspection Services Department, Traffic Control, the Quincy Council On Aging, and the Harbormas-ter.

The committee also intends to discuss two recent bond issues brought before the council, a proposed $7.5 million bond issue for sewer repair and a proposed $950,000 bond issue for road and sidewalk repair, said Finance Chairman Frank McCauley.

To date, the Finance Committee has cut $46,350 from the mayor's proposed budget of roughly $193 million, including: $5,000, Unemployment Compensation; $3,200, Treasurer; $20,000, Elections; $5,750, Celebrations; $10,000, DPW waste collections promotions; and a voluntary $2,400 cut in his own expense account by McCauley, who made a similar cut last year.

The committee expects to vote approval at the end of the final budget session.

State deadline to approve the budget is July 1.

Walking Beat Patrolman For Wollaston Center

Mayor James Sheets announces that a walking-beat patrolman has been added to the Wollaston Square area.

The officer will begin his duties at 4 p.m. and end at midnight, covering the area of Wollaston Center including Clay St. and the other immediate neighborhoods.

The action is effective immediately.

Noise, Odor Complaints Aimed At Sprague Energy

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Sprague Energy, 728 Southern Artery came under fire at Tuesday's License Board meeting as complainants of noise and noxious odors emanating from the company surfaced.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond told the board that a woman living in the area had to virtually move out of her home for a weekend because of the terrible odor.

Calling it an "intolerable situation", he asked the board to work with Sprague and said "any condition that causes people to evict their home" has to be addressed. He said the noise level was "getting unbearable."

One abutter, Jim Doyle who lives on 200 Cove Way said in the winter when the windows are closed, the noise is not as noticeable, but in the summer months with the barges are coming and going it sounds like the "hounds of hell."

He said even though "noise concern is paramount", he suggested a re-positioning of the barges as they arrive at the shore. He suggested that the company pump at night and not all day and all night.

Fire chief Thomas Gorman said he observed the smell of number 6 bunker oil was stronger than usual. He said he received many calls concerning the strong odor.

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said the Department of Environmental Protection made site visits and tests were done, and suggested an odor deodorizer and a report from environmental consultants be submitted.

Steve Cippolla, manager of the energy company said he had contacted odor control and is actively pursuing in trying to rectify the matter.

Jeff Ciampa, manager of safety explained in great lengths what the process of the industry is. He explained that Sprague handles home heating oil, diesel fuel, kerosene and jet fuel.

He said the problem with the odor has been an excessive amount of sulfur that is in the oil. He said it supposed to be 5 points in April and May when the odors were at their worst, they were clocked at 4.2 and 4.5. He also said economically it would be more expensive if the sulfur content is reduced.

He also said that odors are complicated if an east wind or strong winds are blowing.

He said to suppress the frequency of vapors, that a misting system or flares can be used, but added that sometimes "one solution creates another problem."

Chairman Joseph Shea asked Ciampa if the delivery of the oil on the barges have anything to do with the tide, in which Ciampa said "we have to live by the tide calendar."

Shea wanted to continue the hearing and schedule a meeting within three weeks. But Gorman suggested the health and fire department begin working closely over the next few months since in the summer, deliveries are at their lowest.

Shea set the meeting for Sept. 4.

absolutely the worst letter to a senior group that I have ever read," Sheets told The Sun Tuesday. "Its content, its tone, its lack of clarity. Every tenant at Naval Terrace should have been met with individually and explained the reasons for the rental increase. The role of HUD should have been explained, the residents' fears and concerns should have been allayed.

"Every single senior should have been spoken to and all their questions answered. Frankly, they (the residents) are owed an apology by the Elder Housing Corporation."

Commenting on Monday's night's charges of hypocrisy and "appearance of a problem" by city councillors, Sheets called their reaction "perfectly understandable" if their information was based solely on the May 31 letter.

But Helen Murphy, executive director of Elder Housing Corporation and former assistant to the mayor, defended the corporation's actions and said no residents had approached her with concerns over the letter.

"We plan on working with every one of these tenants," said Murphy, who asked for "patience" as the volunteer board worked to make the Squantum Gardens Project a reality. "We consider it their home."

Murphy did say that the project was part of "an evolving process," adding that "perhaps we could have handled things better, and we've learned that."

Elder Housing Corporation Vice Chairman Paul Hines, who wrote and signed the letter, said the letter makes clear that the lease terminations were only because of "a strange quirk" in Massachusetts Law which requires owners to actually terminate a tenancy before raising rents.

"We don't want to burden these people," Hines said of the tenants living in 47 of the 48 units of Squantum Gardens Naval Terrace. "We wouldn't do it (raise rents) if we didn't have to."

In defense of his letter, Hines pointed to several paragraphs which, he said, explain and emphasize that talk of lease terminations was to comply with state statutes only.

Paragraphs six and seven of the letter read:

"There is a strange quirk in Massachusetts Law that does not allow a land owner to simply increase the rents of tenants at will. Rather, the law requires that the land owner actually terminate the tenancy at will and to thereafter offer a new tenancy at the increased rental rate.

"Therefore, in order to comply with this law and by no means in an effort to displace you from your home, Elder Housing Corporation hereby terminates your tenancy as of June 30, 2001. Elder Housing Corporation also hereby offers you a new tenancy beginning July 1, 2001 at the monthly rate of $825."

McNamee Committee Selects Council Co-Campaign Managers

Brian McNamee, Councillor at-Large candidate, announces his committee has selected co-campaign managers.

Patrick Martin and Sean Glennon of North Quincy will share duties in organizing McNamee's campaign.

"I'm grateful for the support and help of Pat and Sean in my effort to earn a seat on the city council," McNamee said. "Both are widely recognized for their service to the community and their pride in the city. It's a distinct privilege to have them associated with my candidacy."

Glennon and Martin are both graduates of the Quincy Public School System and lifelong residents of Quincy. Glennon is a graduate of Suffolk University with concentrated studies in Public Policy and Administration. Martin, who drives for Interstate Distributors, is married to Tammy Martin. They have four children.

Cahill Announces For 8th City Council Term

City Councillor at-Large Tim Cahill is seeking reelection to his eighth term.

Cahill officially announced his candidacy at a recent campaign kickoff attended by an estimated 300 at the Common Market, West Quincy.

Cahill elaborated on his vision of strengthening the school system and continuing the effort to make the schools "safe, first-class learning environments."

He also pointed out that it is time to "close down the oldest school building in the city, build a new high school, and renovate Sterling Middle School, and also renovate the current Quincy High School building for Central Middle School."

"We have already spent far too much time arguing over the least important criteria, which is the location of the new schools," he said, "and not enough time figuring out how and when we can get the students and their teachers into facilities they deserve."

He also issued a challenge to move beyond the fixation of bringing shipbuilding back to Fore River.

"We can do more than make up for the loss of the Federal Loan Guarantee money by encouraging other plans that call for the redevelopment of the shipyard with real-tax paying users and real jobs," Cahill said.

Cahill was first elected to the City Council in 1987. Twice he has served as Finance Committee chairman and chairman of the Downtown Economic Development Committee, and he currently serves as vice-chairman of the Finance Committee. He is also in the fifth year of a six-year term as Norfolk County Treasurer.

Cahill and his wife, Tina, are the parents of four daughters: Makenna, Nicole, Devin and Kendra. They live at 51 Grenwood Road.

Sagamore Towers Tenants To Meet June 12 At NQHS

John Cain, candidate for City Council from Ward 3, announces that there will be a tenants' meeting for residents of Sagamore Towers, 95 West Squantum St., on Tuesday, June 12, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

The meeting, Cain said, will provide information and opportunities for tenants to ask questions and voice concerns about management's decision to upgrade the 224 apartments and their sending of non-renewal lease notices requiring residents to find temporary housing, and increasing rents.

According to Cain, representatives of Neighborhood Housing Services, various city departments, and state officials will be on hand to provide information on tenants' rights and services offered by both city and state. For example, residents will learn about funds that are available for first-time homebuyers and funds available to assist in first and last month rent, associated with moving to a new residence.

Cain encouraged residents to sign-up and participate in the formation of a tenant association, which would allow, he said, a more effective representation as a tenant group.

Red Cross Appeals To Donors To Give Blood Friday At QMC

The American Red Cross is asking all eligible blood donors in the Quincy area to give blood tomorrow (Friday) when the bloodmobile comes to the Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St. Donor hours are 1 to 6 p.m.

"Only five out of every hundred people give blood, and the number of new donors decreased dramatically last year," said Cathy Pray, director. "First-time donors are urgently needed to replace donors who have moved away or become ineligible to donate."

The best way to give blood for the first time is to come with a friend who is experienced in the donation process. New donors usually find the procedure easy and painless and most will come back regularly to donate.

"The biggest obstacle seems to be overcoming that initial fear," Pray said. "That's why we're counting on our regular donors to help by bringing a friend to this blood drawing."

Most people can give blood through the American Red Cross. Potential donors must be at least 17 years of age, in good health and weigh over 110 pounds. In most cases, donors may give if they are on medication, but they should know the names of these medications.

For more information call the American Red Cross at 1-800-448-3543.

Quincy Native Opens 'Hypnosis Works' On Newport Ave.

Quincy native Jeffrey Scott Rosen, an advanced certified hypnotherapist specializing in successful weight loss, has opened "Hypnosis Works" at 299 Newport Ave., Wollaston.

Besides weight loss, Rosen works with clients for smoking, self-esteem, motivation, stress, insomnia, controlling bad habits, regressions and more.

A Reiki Master, Rosen also offers energy healing. Small group sessions are available Wednesday nights from 6:30 to 8 p.m. for weight loss and 8:30 to 10 p.m. for smoking cessation as well as daily private lessons.

Rosen credits hypnosis

with turning his life around after he reached his heaviest weight -- over 300 pounds -- in 1998.

"I was feeling unhealthy, lethargic, emotionally insecure and down. My obesity was running my life and it was getting worse. I tried every fad diet known to man as well as unhealthy speed pills to curb my appetite. As we all know that only made things worse," Rosen said.

Then one morning while eating an unhealthy breakfast, Rosen saw a friend who looked much better and healthier than ever before. "He said hypnosis was the key to his success. Well, not understanding much about hypnosis, being at my lowest point, I was ready and willing to give it a try," Rosen said.

"After two visits to a wonderful hypnotherapist, I too was well on my way to losing all my undesired weight, feeling better, healthier and more confident every day and my new found success. I found it instantly rewarding, easy and natural to now lose all the weight I had wanted to like never before and as a result, I have lost well over 100 pounds," Rosen said.

"My new found success has also motivated me to help others, so I decided to gain qualifications as an advanced certified hypnotherapist specializing in weight loss for life. I also work with clients for smoking, self-esteem, motivation, stress, insomnia, controlling bad habits, regressions and more."

Rosen said he considers it an honor and privilege to help others help themselves. "My success is your success," he said.

Did You Know...

The National Cancer Institute Reports That:

Every year, 434,000 people die of illness related to their smoking. But smokers are not the only ones whose health can suffer. Their tobacco smoke in the air is called environmental tobacco smoke (ETS) or secondhand smoke. Breathing it can be a hazard to your health and to the health of your child.

Secondhand smoke contains smaller amounts of the same chemicals that harm smokers. ETS is so harmful that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has classified it as a "Group A" carcinogen. "Group A" carcinogens are the most toxic substances known to cause cancer in humans, also including benzene, radon and asbestos.

The more often you're around secondhand smoke, the greater your risk for health problems. Each year it causes about 3,000 lung cancer deaths in U.S. adults who don't smoke. Secondhand smoke increases the nonsmoker's risk for heart disease and makes worse the symptoms of adults already suffering from asthma, allergies or bronchitis.

Children are usually innocent victims - unable to choose whether or not to be in a smoke-filled environment. Among infants to 18 months of age, secondhand smoke is associated with as many as 300,000 cases of bronchitis and pneumonia each year. It also increases the chances for middle ear problems, causes coughing and wheezing and worsens asthma conditions.

Facts like these show that other people's smoke is more than an annoyance. Secondhand smoke is a serious threat to your good health. (U.S. Dept. of Health & Human Services, June 1993)

Dunkin' Donuts Celebrates Re-Opening Of Original Shop

Dunkin' Donuts franchise owners Victor and Octavio Carvalho recently hosted city officials, Dunkin' Donuts representatives, and patrons to celebrate the re-opening of their newly renovated store at 543 Southern Artery, the first Dunkin' Donuts shop in the United States.

The festivities included raffles for an autographed Nomar Garciaparra shirt, Red Sox tickets, balloons, face painting, and free samples of Dunkin' Donuts' goods.

The Southern Artery shop was the site of the original Dunkin' Donuts franchise, opened in May of 1950 by founder William Rosenberg.

Since 1950, more than 6,000 Dunkin' Donuts franchises have opened across the United States.

As part of the observance, a commemorative plaque was unveiled reading: "On this site the Original Dunkin' Donuts shop opened its doors in May 1950."

"My brother and I are proud to be a part of this historical event," said Victor Carvalho. "We are honored to carry on the tradition that William Rosenberg started with this, the original Dunkin' Donuts franchise more than 50 years ago."

Dunkin' Donuts is the largest coffee and baked goods chain in the world, providing its loyal customers with coffee, bagels, donuts, and other related baked goods since 1950. With more than 5,000 combined locations in the United States and 37 countries around the world, Dunkin' Donuts has established a worldwide reputation for quality, freshness, and convenience.

Dunkin' Donuts USA is based in Randolph and is a wholly owned subsidiary of Allied Domecq PLC.

Firemen's Memorial Services Sunday

The annual Quincy Firemen's Memorial Services honoring deceased members will be held Sunday at 9 a.m. at the Firemen's Memorial Monument in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Sea Street.

Firemen's Memorial Sunday has been set aside as the second Sunday in June by all fire departments throughout the state in order to pay respect to all members who have died.

A detail will form at the cemetery gate on Sea Street at 8:30 a.m. The procession will then march to the Firemen's Memorial Monument and the program will commence at 9 a.m.

Participants at the exercises will be Fire Chief Thomas Gorman Jr. and officers of the Quincy Firemen's Relief Association: President Harold Carroll, Vice President Noel Balducci, Treasurer Harold Shedd and Secretary James McCarthy.

In the event of inclement weather, the program will be conducted at the Bryan VFW Post, 24 Broad St.

NFPA Executive Advocates Sprinkler Systems In New Homes

Gary Keith of West Bridgewater, an executive with the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) and a volunteer fireman in his town, says the annual death toll caused by home fires could be drastically reduced.

In an interview published in the current issue of the Estabrook & Chamberlain Insurance Agency customer newsletter, Keith, a client of the agency, advocates for the installation of home sprinkler systems in new-home construction.

As vice president of NFPA, headquartered in Quincy, and project manager for the Home Fire Sprinkler Coalition, Keith crosses the country raising awareness about the safety values of home sprinkler systems.

"It's all about saving lives," Keith says. "Eighty percent of deaths caused by fire happen during home fires."

He points out that a high percentage of home fire deaths are caused by smoke and heat conditions that occur far away from the fire's point of origin.

Keith paints a common scenario: "A grease fire starts on a stove in the kitchen. The flames jump to the ceiling. Because there is no sprinkler system to contain the fire in the kitchen, it rapidly spreads. Smoke seeps into a bedroom where the kids are asleep. They are overcome by the smoke, unable to escape. They die."

Keith, a veteran of over 20 years in fire service, goes on: "These types of situations and deaths can be pre-

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

In terms of a willingness to change residences, it seems that younger Americans are the movers. According to the U.S. Census Bureau's update on geographical mobility, Americans aged 20 to 29 were the ones most likely to move between 1998 and 1999 (the most recent years for which data were available). Some 32.4% in that age group headed for new homes during the year, which is more than double the national average of 15.9%. In fact, the older people get, the less likely they are to move, as household mobility decreases steadily with age. And, most movers do not go very far. Only 17.6% of movers relocated to another state, while 19.8% moved to another county in the same state.

HINT: According to Mayflower Transit's 1999 survey, "America on the Move," half of the country's moves take place between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

SPORTS

Defeats North Quincy For Mary Pratt Trophy Quincy Takes City Softball Title

By CHRIS POISSON

After eight long years, the Mary Pratt Trophy finally has a new home — Quincy High School.

The trophy changed addresses when the Quincy softball team defeated North Quincy, 17-1, at the end of the season, ending the Red Raiders' eight-year stranglehold on the hardware.

You'd think the Presidents would have held a ticker-tape parade, or at least a small celebration after the game, but head coach Mike Sedar honestly had no clue a trophy was at stake.

"I didn't even know about," Sedar admitted. "They brought it over at the end of the game and I didn't even know what it was."

OK, we'll cut the coach some slack because it's his first year at the helm. The trophy is awarded to the winner of the second Quincy-North Quincy game and Hancock Street has been its residence 10 times since its inception 12 years ago.

Capturing the Mary Pratt Trophy capped off a remarkable season for Sedar and the Presidents, and it's another sign that the program has ended its four-year run of horrors and is now heading towards more pleasant times.

From 1997 through 2000, Quincy compiled an atrocious 3-65 record. This season Quincy more than tripled that win total, finishing with a 7-11 mark in the powerful Old Colony League, which boasts three teams in the Division 1 South tournament, including top seed Taunton.

Quincy's non-league games were no cakewalk, either. Notre Dame, Braintree and Martha's Vineyard combined for a 42-16 record and they all made the tournament. Although all 11 losses came against tourney teams, Quincy was competitive in just about all of them.

"All of the teams that we lost to are playoff teams," Sedar said. "It would have been nice to steal a win from them. But we accomplished what we wanted to do. We got the kids to believe they could win and compete in their league. We were in a lot of ball games. We're young. The future is bright."

Indeed, the future look as luminous as the North Star. Only three players (seniors Andrea Verlicco, Christina Keenan, Michelle Ploof) graduated and nearly all of the returning players will be working out in the off-season, beginning July 1 with a 10-game summer schedule.

Second basemen Michelle Pilalas will return for her senior year next season to lead the Presidents. Pilalas made the OCL All-Star team, which had five Taunton players, after batting .430 in the league and making only three errors in the field.

"She deserves to be an all-star with that group of Taunton kids," Sedar said.

The core of the team, the five starting sophomores, will also return with a full season of varsity ball under their belts. Although they showed their age, as expected, at times this year, center fielder Diane Gilbody, first baseman Liz Campbell, shortstop Shannon Paine, right fielder Jen Groppe and pitcher Stacy Andrewall made strides since Opening Day.

Freshmen Rachel Sorensen, Rose Bell and Katlyn Markham also saw time with the varsity and Sedar expects all three to play bigger roles in 2002. Sorensen, who missed some time with an injury, pitched well and Markham looked strong at third base. Bell excelled behind plate in the final three games, showing strong defensive skills while batting .500.

"We still have a ways to go, don't get me wrong," Sedar said. "We're not Hall of Famers yet, but we're definitely going in the right direction. Maturity-wise, we've gone leaps and bounds. If you saw us at the beginning of the year at Taunton, we were scared to death. Now we're not scared of any team. We'll be hungry next year."

Hopefully, they'll have a huge appetite because the state tournament will be on the menu.

North's Christian Donovan, Kyle Piazza Qualify For All States

Two members of the North Quincy boys' track team were supposed to compete in the All States last Saturday at Worcester State College.

However, only one participated as torrential weather canceled some of the events.

Senior Christian Donovan placed eighth in the 400 meters, failing to qualify for the New England Regionals by two spots. Senior Kyle Piazza had to wait until Tuesday to take part in the shot-put event, which was moved to Holy Cross.

Donovan and Piazza qualified for the All States with third-place finishes at the State Meet. Also at the State Meet, senior Joe Holleran placed fifth in the high jump and sixth in javelin.

At the recent Old Colony League championship meet, North Quincy finished third with 81.5 points. Bridgewater-Raynham took the title with 137 points.

First-place finishers were Donovan (400 meters), senior Brian Breslin (two-mile run), Jeff Hunt (long jump), junior Sean Ginty (javelin), Piazza (shot-put). The 4x800 meter relay team of Breslin, Donovan, Ginty and Will Gardner also took the top spot.

Top 5 finishers were Ginty (fourth, 400 meters), junior Phil McGillicuddy (fifth, 300 meter hurdles), fifth, triple jump, junior Mike Maguire (fifth, high jump) and Holleran (second, javelin).

Other finishers were senior Greg McGinness (eighth, 200 meters), senior Paul Griffith (ninth, 800 meters), senior Eric Eley (13th, long jump), senior Mike Torchetti (10th, triple jump), freshman Michael Rispin (13th, discus), junior Robert Kennerson (15th, discus), senior Sean Cote (ninth, javelin) and junior Greg Sommers (sixth, shot-put).

The 4x400 meter relay team of Griffith, McGillicuddy, freshman James Cook and senior Mike Petrucelli took fifth place and the 4x100 meter relay team of Holleran, Cote, Piazza and McGinness finished sixth.

North Quincy finished the regular season with an 89-25 victory over city rival Quincy to finish with a 2-5 record.

North Quincy also beat Taunton, but suffered close losses to Barnstable, Falmouth, Silver Lake and Plymouth South.

In addition to those at the OCL meet, others placing regularly during the season were Jeff Batoloni (mile, 800 meters), Steve Barkowski (mile) and Matt Gage (triple jump).

Remarkable Season For North Quincy Baseball

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy baseball team and its faithful fans must have felt as comfortable as a feathered pillow early in Sunday afternoon's game against Catholic Memorial in the first round of the Division 1 South sectional.

And they had every reason to be. First, after a gloomy start it turned into a beautiful day with the sun beaming down on Billings Field in West Roxbury. Second, the Red Raiders had just pushed four runs across the plate in the first inning and one in the second for a 5-0 lead. The Knights contributed to the cause with four errors, looking like a farm league team rather than a parochial power.

Third, and more importantly, North Quincy had its ace on the hill, senior left-hander Keith Doherty. After retiring the side in the first, he trotted out to the mound in the bottom of the second with that seemingly insurmountable 5-0 cushion. A handful of runs for him was a couple of game's worth in the regular season.

So the fans along the first-base line, sitting in their lawn chairs, had every reason to kick back their feet and talk about a Monday matchup with Stoughton and North Quincy's chances the rest of the way.

Boy, were they in for a shocker when fourth-seeded CM sent 12 men to the plate in the fifth inning and scored eight runs en route to a 15-6 triumph over 13th-seeded North Quincy.

"We played a good team in Catholic Memorial," said head coach Larry Taglieri.

"Obviously we jumped out to that lead, but they're a good hitting club and they scored some runs on us. I don't think you ever expect to give up eight runs in an inning. They just had big hits and they capitalized on a couple of our mistakes."

Although the loss ended the year with that bitter feeling you get from eating a box of Sour Patch Kids at the

Swimming Clinic Saturday At YMCA

The Quincy and South Quincy athletic departments in association with the South Shore YMCA Summer will hold a free swimming clinic Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the YMCA Quincy branch, 994 Colburn St.

Open to all grades, the Quincy grades K-12, the clinic provides an opportunity for swimming. Hours will be video of Olympic World Champion swimmers and demonstrations by nationally ranked swimmers.

Coaches participating include Bill Edwards, Quincy head coach and former coach of 1997 Olympian Dr. Ron Karamanah, Dan Riley, Strippers assistant coach, Kim Duncanson, Quincy-North Quincy girls swim coach, Chris Murtough, Quincy-North Quincy boys swim coach, and Andrew Kramer, Quincy-North Quincy boys assistant swim coach.

Those attending will be evaluated and instructed in the basics of competitive swimming. Each swimmer is asked to bring a bathing suit, towel, cap, goggles and goggles if possible.

Network Plus Road Race Sunday

The 9th annual Network Plus Road Race, a joint effort of Greater Boston and Network Plus, will be held Sunday at Network Plus, 234 Copeland St., Quincy.

Registration for the 5K race will be $12 before tomorrow (Friday) and $15 the day of the race. All registered runners will receive a number and the next 250 registrants will receive an official race T-shirt.

Registration will take place at 8 a.m. and the race will start at 9 a.m. The race will begin at Network Plus and will proceed towards East Milton Square, onto Adams Street, onto Furnace Brook Parkway, and back to Network Plus.

Awards and prizes will be given to the first male and female runners in all age categories, including the popular men's "Clydesdale Division."

All members of the community are invited to participate.

Last year's race raised $50,000 and Network Plus hopes to exceed that total this year.

For more information call Mike Ward or Frank Moynihan at Network Plus at 617-786-4000.

Children should be accompanied by an adult for registration and orientation purposes, and are asked to bring a tennis racket.

In the event of inclement weather, the clinic will be held the following Tuesday, June 19, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Remarkable Season For NQ Baseball

movies, North Quincy still enjoyed a remarkable season one that saw them qualify for the state tournament for the fifth time in six years and post its best record (14-7) since it went 19-6 in 1998.

The senior class played every game like it was going to be the last. They epitomized what North Quincy baseball under Taglieri is all about: a hard working, toughball club that plays with the innocent passion a high school team is supposed to have.

Indubitably, Doherty was the stud of the group. A four-year varsity starter, Doherty tossed that memorable no-hitter in the season opener, struck out over 100 batters and compiled a 7-8 record, with three of those losses by one run. His athleticism has earned him a full ride to UMass Amherst and the type of kid that does wonders for a program. Taglieri can only hope the younger kids have been paying attention.

"I hope they were watching closely," Taglieri said. "A lot of his success was due to his talent, but it also came from his hard work every day."

"Everyone knows what Keith has meant for us," he added. "But guys like Chris Lockhead (dislocated shoulder, who we missed as far as our starting shortstop and captain) and Chris Doherty who played three infield positions for us. And Mike Keddy putting on the catching gear when we lost our catcher. We had two captains, but as far as I'm concerned we had Tom. I'm going to miss all the seniors. I do a real

But North Quincy would not have made the tournament if it weren't for the talented junior class. With nine of the 10 juniors playing varsity ball for the first time, they were able to push their inexperience aside and make an impact in the league.

"We had a lot of juniors come up this year without varsity experience and they bought in with the seniors," Taglieri said. "The foundation is there to have success next year."

North Quincy built its 4-0 lead in the first with a bases-loaded walk to Keith Doherty, an RBI groundout by Keddy, an RBI single by junior Dennis Thomson and a Knights' error. Keddy put them ahead 5-0 with a deep sacrifice fly to center in the second.

CM slowly crept back into the game, reaching Doherty for a pair of runs in the second and third frames to trim North Quincy's lead to 5-4. Usually accurate as a calculator, Doherty had trouble finding the plate as three of the five batters he walked scored.

On a day Boston's Manny Ramirez smashed the longest home run in the history of Fenway's SkyDome, Doherty vented his frustration by smacking a one-out triple over the center fielder's head in the top of the fourth. He was stranded, however, as the team's offense went stale, managing just three hits over the final seven innings after getting four through the first two.

"After the second inning we really didn't do much," Taglieri said. "Their pitcher [Bill Situng] really settled down."

In the fourth, Doherty rebounded to retire the side. His father once said it takes him a couple innings to warm up and find his groove. Maybe it was taking a little longer today. After all, he hadn't pitched since May 25.

That was not the case in this game.

As the fifth got underway, the weather quickly took a turn for the worse, with dark, gray clouds washing out a blue sky. Although there was no actual thunderstorm or torrential downpour, CM's offensive outburst coupled with North Quincy's defensive lapses did just as much damage.

Doherty gave up a single and a walk to the first two batters and then the pesky Kevin Rowley (5 for 5, two RBIs, four runs) laced an RBI single to tie the game and Tim Connors (3 for 5, four RBIs) followed with an RBI double to put his team ahead for good.

Junior Mike Feetham relieved Doherty and had no help from the defense, which made consecutive errors that enabled three runs to score. The Knights tacked on three more runs for a 12-5 lead.

"I think it could've been the layoff," said Taglieri on Doherty's outing. "He had eight days rest and maybe that's a little too much. We had the rainout on Saturday so we had an extra day. But he pitched well all season for us. I have no qualms about Keith Doherty. I have no complaints about anyone. We had a great year. They came to play every day. It was fun coaching these kids."

26 North Quincy High Students Teaming Up In Relay For Life Friday

A team of 26 students from North Quincy High School will participate in the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life beginning tomorrow (Friday) at 3 p.m. at Hanover High School.

rales, Sheila Lynch, Stacey Lynch, Colleen Cornell, Laura Delaney, Rita Shinick and Erin Carimody.

Funds raised during the seventh annual relay will support the American Cancer Society cancer control programs, including a research initiative that has supported 30 Nobel Prize winners during its history.

Last year's relay in Hanover raised more than $184,000 with 1,000 participants and 70 teams. According to Chief Paul Hays, event co-chair, the American Cancer Society hopes to raise $200,000 this year.

Among the more than 1,200 participants expected, about 125 are local cancer survivors said Dave Kindy, event co-chair. Cancer survivors are invited to take their own "Survivor's Lap" around the track during the opening ceremony. Afterwards, they can attend a special reception in their honor.

"The relay is such a great way to renew our hope in the fight against cancer, while also doing something practical to support the American Cancer Society," Hays said.

For more information call the American Cancer Society at 1-888-648-4880.

Quincy Youth Soccer Camp Aug. 6-10

Quincy Youth Soccer and NOGA Soccer have teamed up to provide a week-long soccer camp this summer at Fore River Field.

The camp will be held Aug. 6-10 and is open to all Quincy Youth Soccer players regardless of ability. Players ages 4-11 are invited to the first session from 9 a.m. to noon and players 12 and over are invited to the second session from 4 to 7 p.m. All children will initially be grouped by age and then by ability.

As part of the camp program, the NOGA Soccer coaches will also run free clinics for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

NOGA is regarded as one of the premier soccer coaching organizations in the United States, with over 150 coaches who work with 50,000 of America's soccer youth every summer. All staff members hold national coaching licenses from the U.S. and the United Kingdom and many are also qualified teachers.

For more information or to receive a registration form, call director Graham Stafford at 617-479-6122.

Golf Tournament To Benefit Affordable Housing

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore and Father Bill's Place will host the second annual Mulligan Golf Tournament Friday, June 15, at the Pembroke Country Club.

The tournament's goal is to raise funds for the creation of affordable housing for working people in need of a home. Last year the tourney raised over $15,000.

The proceeds generated from the Mulligan Tournament help to fund affordable housing ventures.

NHS of the South Shore is a public, private partnership devoted to neighborhood revitalization by promoting, developing and maintaining affordable housing. Father Bill's Place is a service provider committed to moving homeless people from the dependency of shelter to independence within the community.

In addition to golf, there will be a dinner, silent auction and prizes. For more information regarding participation and sponsorship, call Robert Corley at 617-770-2227, ext. 21.

Stefan Miranda On Xaverian Volleyball Team

Stefan Miranda of North Quincy recently completed a successful volleyball season at Xaverian Brothers High School.

As a freshman, he was the only non-senior on the 10-man roster. Coach Alex Salachis is high on his passing ability and said he is a superb back row player. Besides his defensive contributions, Miranda had six straight service points in a recent match against Holliston.

He is the son of Karen and Larry Miranda of North Quincy.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

How satisfied are you with your personal life? Are you satisfied more often than dissatisfied? Or vice-versa? How often have you tried to determine the reasons - either way?

For example, are you sincerely trying to make the most out of what you have?

... Do you appreciate and express your admirations? ... Are you envious; do you covet someone else's possessions? ... Are you influenced by someone else's kindness of heart or gentle manners? ... Do you hate falsehood and misrepresentation and avoid it in your own attitude and expressions? Are you saddened more often by the clouds in your own life instead of trying to scatter sunshine in the lives of others? ... Do you allow worry to pull clouds over your life instead of ignoring them in the radiance of hope? ... Do you keep your heart free from hate? ... Do you treat others as you would like them to treat you? ... Do you think more often of your friends than those you dislike? ...

Would not an honest answer to these sort of sample question help change an attitude toward life - If a change is longed for?

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You are self-reliant and rarely ask anyone for help. But this time you might want someone you trust to be there for you while you deal with a difficult matter. Cheer up. Things improve soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your patience begins to pay off. Look for the first sign that your goals are in plain sight. Take time out from all your hard work for some fun with someone special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There could be some lingering effects from a recent setback. But it's all for the best, as you're now beginning to appreciate. Use the lessons you've learned to start over.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) What seemed to be a difficult goal to reach is now—or soon will be—all yours. Congratulations. An unexpected travel opportunity holds an intriguing new prospect.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A chilly reception to your presentation shouldn't cause you to abandon your ideas. Instead, tweak-up those weaker parts and then, once again, show them what you have.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Hiding your feelings might make you feel safe against rejection. But this could be the time when you'll need to speak up or risk losing out on an important event in your life.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Some co-workers might try to talk you out of accepting a promotion. But you need to follow your own instincts. If you believe you're right for the job, then take it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some changes are in order as you come to realize that you need to sort out several areas in your life. Your remarkable insight helps you make the right decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's time to act on your own behalf and separate yourself from those whose selfish needs threaten your personal and/or professional survival.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Resist your tendency to close yourself off from unpleasant situations. Instead, open up to how things are, so that you can help change them to what they could be.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unspoken problem could be driving a deep wedge between you and that special person. Some honest talking twice the two of you starts the healing process.

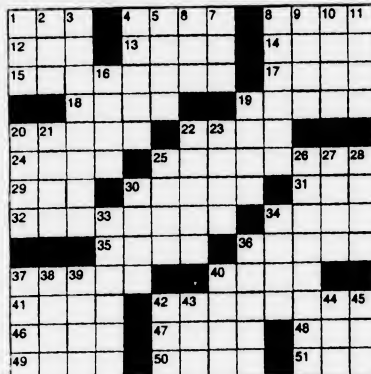

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might feel that you've been going around in ever-widening circles trying to deal with recent workplace problems. Cheer up. A successful end is finally in sight.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You love to talk, and people love to hear what you have to say. If you were a teacher, you'd never have to worry about keeping your students' attention.

4th Annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Event ALS 'Squirrel Run' Saturday At Veterans' Stadium

By CRAIG SALTERS

When New York Yankees legend Lou Gehrig died in 1941 from Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), from then on better known as "Lou Gehrig's Disease," the world was still 12 years away from the deciphering of the double-helix structure of DNA.

When, at the age of 31, Quincy's Jimmy "Squirrel" Kennedy lost his own personal battle with the degenerative neuromuscular disease on April 6, 1997, researchers on The Human Genome Project were still three years away from announcing successful completion of a rough draft of the entire human genetic code.

"Researchers are extremely hopeful (about a cure)" said Marty Levenson, a childhood friend of Kennedy. "They've identified certain genes but they don't know the exact cause."

Which is why the fourth annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS, a five mile-run better known as "The Squirrel Run," takes place this Saturday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The race, co-founded in 1998 by Levenson and Richard "Ratt" Kennedy, Jimmy's brother, has already raised more than $100,000 over its three-year history, with all proceeds going directly to ALS research.

"Our goal this year is to raise $50,000," said Kennedy. "We want to continue to build awareness for this devastating disease that strikes thousands of individuals each year."

ALS AWARENESS WEEK: In honor of the fourth annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS, which takes place Saturday, Mayor James Sheets has proclaimed it ALS Awareness Week in the city of Quincy. Flanking Sheets are, from left: Louis Tozzi, director of Special Education for Quincy Public Schools; and Marty Levenson, co-chairman of the event and a childhood friend of Jimmy "Squirrel" Kennedy. ALS is a debilitating neuromuscular disease more commonly known as "Lou Gehrig's Disease."

Last year's race, which saw over 400 runners take part, raised approximately $40,000 for the Cecil B. Day Center for Neuromuscular Research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, also this year's beneficiary.

The Cecil B. Day Center, Levenson said, boasts some of the world's pre-eminent researchers, including Dr. Robert Brown, a faculty member at Harvard University.

What's more, Levenson added, funds raised privately by events such as "The Squirrel Run" are subject to less restrictions than federal research dollars, allowing scientists to be more flexible and creative in their race for a cure.

The road race, which is sponsored by New Balance

Athletic Shoe, Inc., will start at 10 a.m. and will include a 2.5 mile Fitness Walk beginning at 9:30 a.m. The event also includes special children's events and awards in 15 age divisions.

Race day registration will begin at 8 a.m. with a $15 entry fee.

This year's race features longtime supporters Governor Michael Dukakis and Mayor James Sheets, who has also declared June 2 through June 9 ALS Awareness Week in Quincy.

Official starter will be Jimmy's mother, Mary Kennedy-Paretti.

Levenson, who serves as race co-director with Kennedy, pointed out that such a positive event as "The Squirrel Run" actually arose from the utter helplessness he and others felt during the last stages of his friend's illness.

"ALS is devastating," said Levenson, who explained that the disease degenerates muscle tissue until a person can no longer move, speak, or breathe yet leaves the brain intact and fully aware. "Some have compared it to attending your own funeral."

Louis Tozzi, currently director of Special Education for the Quincy Public School but formerly a track coach at North Quincy High School for 13 years, attributed the event's popularity to three things: the city's respect for Jimmy Kennedy and the Kennedy family; the "far reaching ties" of the disease which make people eager to help; and support from such places as New Balance and the mayor's office.

"It's become a city event, like Flag Day," Tozzi said, "a great day to mark on your calendar."

Jimmy Kennedy's death in 1997 was not the first time ALS had struck the Kennedy family. Years earlier, Jimmy's father Chris, a former vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee and Dean of Students at Northeastern University, also succumbed to the disease.

Jimmy, the youngest of eight children, was responsible for his father's care during the elder Kennedy's illness, Levenson said.

An academic and athletic standout at North Quincy High School and Northeastern University, Jimmy "Squirrel" Kennedy was a graduate of Georgetown Law School and a practicing attorney before being stricken with ALS.

For more information or to pre-register, contact The Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS, 5 Norman Todd Lane, Cohasset, MA 02025 or call (781) 383-6008.

NFPA Executive Advocates Sprinklers In New Homes

vented by a residential sprinkler system, no question."

Sprinklers can knock fires done right at the source, containing flames, smoke and heat, and eliminating visibility problems caused by smoke spreading rapidly throughout a house.

Sprinklers in new-home construction

Keith and the NFPA, along with other associations and safety officials who are forming "sprinkler safety coalitions," are actively promoting the installation of sprinkler systems in new-home construction.

They'd like to see owners, contractors and developers view sprinkler installation as a "standard installation just like your plumbing, heating and electrical systems."

While existing houses can be retrofitted with sprinkler systems, it is a more complex and costly (per foot) proposition.

Local code requirements

Some communities like Scottsdale, Ariz., have required sprinklers in new-home construction for over a decade.

Keith says there is "a billions of dollars" of a state legislative movement for mandating residential sprinkler systems in new construction.

These moves are based on not only the basic life safety benefits but cost-benefit considerations. For example, savings in insurance premiums ("less expensive claims settlements; cost-savings passed along to policyholders"); savings in local fire-fighting time and expense so taxpayers benefit; savings in water use and run-off at fire scenes — an environmental benefit.

What does a typical home sprinkler cost?

According to Keith, the rule of thumb used for installation of home sprinklers in new construction is "about 1.5 percent of the total new-home construction cost."

When you look at it the way Keith looks at it ("they'll save lives, no question about it"), the cost is a real bargain.

Home Safety and Insurance Savings

Thomas T. Chamberlain, CFC, agency principal, Estabrook & Chamberlain Insurance Agency, foresees the day when the installation of home sprinkler systems will play as big a role in the assessment of premium costs for individual homeowners policies as it does for business policies.

"Right now, it is a factor, he says. "But there aren't that many homes with sprinkler systems, so we're not seeing a major impact on homeowner insurance rating systems at the moment."

But he quickly adds, "The day is coming and soon, I think."

Citizens Group To Meet June 12 On Development Issues

A local citizens' group, which says it is frustrated with the loss of open space to development and limited public input into the local planning process in Quincy, is beginning to explore ways to make changes.

John Adams Care Center Flea Market Saturday

The John Adams Continuing Care Center, 211 Franklin St., will have an indoor Flea Market Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The group, known as the Friends of the Neponset River Estuary and is a local branch of the Neponset Watershed Association serving Quincy, Milton and Boston, will host an open discussion and working session Tuesday, June 12, at 7 p.m. at the Atlantic Community Center, 11 Hayward St.

The meeting is open to all and will focus on how to build community involvement in the planning and development process from neighborhoods along the Neponset River.

For more information or directions, call the Neponset River Watershed Association at 781-575-0354.

Proceeds will benefit the resident activity fund.

SAFETY FIRST

Handling performance, and styling may be on the minds of new-vehicle buyers, but safety is the factor in the purchase process that often heads the list. That is the conclusion one can draw from a survey conducted by a maker of luxury vehicles. According to the survey, 84 out of 100 new-vehicle buyers consider safety to be "extremely important" or "very important." And, it is important to note that, although the survey was conducted by a luxury-car maker, the research covered all types of buyers, not just those interested in luxury cars. This is a concern that carmakers have been quick to respond to with a variety of safety innovations that have been introduced over the past decade.

HINT: Twenty years ago, 64% of new-car buyers considered safety to be either "extremely important" or "very important."

NEW BEACH SIGNS will be installed by the end of the month at all municipal beaches. Displaying the new signs are, from left, Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon and Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission members Bernie Reisberg, Chickie Abdalla, Michael Morad, Anne McDonald, Mayor

New Signage For Quincy Beaches

The city's beaches will soon be adorned with wooden signs bearing the names of each individual beach, reports Leo Kelly, chairman of the Beaches and Coastal Commission. "It's been a goal for a long time," Kelly said of the new signage, purchased at $500 apiece through the use of grant monies.

Kelly, who thanked commission member P.J. Foley for his leadership on the project, said the eight signs should be installed by June 22.

The signs will be installed at the following sites:

Avalon Beach, Edgewater Drive Beach, Mound St. Beach, Baker Beach, Nickerson Beach, Heron Beach, Parkhurst/Perry Beach, and Orchard Beach.

There will be no sign for Wollaston Beach, Kelly reminded residents, because the beach is under the authority of the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC).

The new signs, Kelly said, were just some of the beach improvements slated for this summer, which will also include new benches, picnic tables, and the cleaning and raking of beaches.

During Summer And Fall Second Crew For Sidewalk Street Repair

The city will have a second public works crew to repair streets and sidewalks during the summer and fall months.

The added manpower, said Mayor James Sheets, who announced the additional city crew recently with Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, should allow quicker response for emergency repairs, substantially reduce the number of maintenance requests awaiting attention, and grant additional flexibility for performing preventive maintenance to avoid future problems.

In addition, the enhanced service is being provided at no additional expense to the city.

"The funding (for the crew) is already in the budget," said Sheets, explaining that four currently unfilled DPW positions will be filled with crew members and that the crew's foreman will come through DPW reorganization on the part of Colton.

Explains Why He Isn't Seeking Re-election Scramble On For McDermott Ward 3 Seat

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott will not seek re-election this year, a move that is already triggering a scramble for the seat he has held nearly six years.

McDermott's decision caught many by surprise Tuesday but there had been speculation the past week he would not seek a fourth term.

"I believe that the time is right for me to move in a different direction and give another an opportunity to serve," McDermott said.

There were already three candidates for the Ward 3 seat: John Cain, Alan Cousin and John Rodophele.

McDermott's decision to

how out started to widen the field quickly.

David McGillicuddy, chairman of the Ward 3 Democratic Committee, picked up nomination papers Tuesday.

Sea St. Parcel Re-Zoned To Open Space

By CRAIG SALTERS

The City Council Monday night voted to re-zone from Residence A and B to Open Space a parcel of land located on the southerly side of Sea St. from street number 261 to 273.

The vote followed a public hearing on the matter which saw several residents from streets such as Homer, Moffat, and Calvin Roads speak in favor of re-zoning, arguing that the wooded area directly abuts the Broad Meadows marshlands and provides a buffer to Sea St. Some residents also brought up flooding and wildlife concerns.

Arguing adamantly against the re-zoning were Attorney Sean Fallon and Attorney Steven Coleman, who both represent the Gallagher Group, the owner of the property that wishes to construct five single-family homes and a five-unit townhouse on the parcel.

Pointing out that the city's Planning Board had recommended against re-zoning the parcel at its May 9 meeting, both Fallon and Coleman labeled the move a case of "spot zoning" which could be challenged legally.

Gallagher Group purchased the property from a private party in 1997.

Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley spoke in favor of the re-zoning, as did Councillor at-Large and former Ward 1 Councillor Frank McCauley.

Former City Council President and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson attended the public hearing and also spoke in favor of re-zoning.

"It's still a problem building on that property because of the sewerage problem," said Kolson, explaining that a large sewer line ran under the property over which, during his tenure as ward councillor, the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority had expressly forbidden development.

Gallagher Group attorneys countered that the developer had purchased additional property and changed its plans so as to meet MWRA requirements, adding that the developer had met several times with the MWRA.

Coleman also contended that, since the proposal was filed prior to any zoning changes, his client's right to develop was protected, a claim which was debated at length.

"The Gallaghers have never stopped their plan to develop this property," Coleman added.

All seven city councillors present at the public hearing voted to re-zone the property, with Council President Paul Harold and Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott not in attendance.

Following the 7-0 approval by the council, attorneys for the Gallagher Group offered no comment.

Over 55 Units Participating 50th Annual Flag Day Parade Set For Saturday

The 50th annual Quincy Flag Day Parade and celebration will take place Saturday evening.

The parade will step off from Quincy Center at 6:30 p.m. Following the parade, there will be a flag-raising ceremony and fireworks display at Pageant Field.

The parade will feature drum corps, marching bands, floats, military vehicles, clowns and 1,500 flag-waving youngsters from area youth groups. More than 55 units will be participating in this year's parade, the largest in Flag Day history.

Participating musical units include the Boston Crusaders Drum Corps, United States Air Force Band of Liberty, Waltham Legion Post Band, East Coast Jazz Drum Corps, Boston Fireman's Band, Boston Gaelic Fire Brigade, HBEW Fife and Drum Band, Melchiorri's Dixieland Hobos, Quincy/North Quincy High School combined marching bands, and the Tulach Ard Fife and Drum Band.

The parade will begin on Coddington Street in Quincy Center, proceed to Hancock Street, head north on Hancock Street and turn south down Merrymount Parkway to Pageant Field.

Joining the line of march for the 50th anniversary will be a contingent from the original Koch Club members that participated in the inaugural parade in 1952.

All of the grand marshals from the past parades have been invited to attend. Confirmed participants include USAF General Ronald Rand, Ted DeCristofaro, John (Jake) Comer, Simone Koch, Karen Cashman and Ron Kaufman.

The flag-raising ceremony will feature the hoisting of a 30 foot by 60 foot Old Glory. The ceremony will also feature an F-14 fly-over and a howitzer salute.

Honored at the flag-raising ceremony will be Grand Marshal John Gillis, longtime city clerk and Norfolk County commissioner. School Supt. Eugene Creedon will receive the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award for his lifetime of dedication to the educational betterment of youngsters.

"The Quincy Flag Day Committee is honored to recognize John Gillis as the Grand Marshal of the 50th annual Flag Day Parade," said Tom Koch, chairman of the Flag Day Committee. "John exemplifies all that we try to capture with the grand marshal designation. His half-century of public service to his country and his community are an extraordinary example of the impact that one man can have on thousands of lives. He is one of the greatest men from the greatest generation."

Capping off the evening will be a 20-minute fireworks display over Black's Creek. Designed by Atlas Pyrotechnics, the show will be simulcast to patriotic music played on WJDA AM-1300.

Flag Day Committee members, in addition to Koch, include Ed Keohane, Henry Bradley, Bette Campbell, Bob Campbell, Bryant Carter, Ray Cattanoe, Jake Comer, Bob

Curry, Capt. William Falco,

Bob Galligan, Fire Chief Tom Gorman, Al Grazioso, Mike McFarland, Rich Meade, Dave Murphy, Helen Murphy, John Nicholson, Lt. William Phelan, Joe Shea, Barry Welch and George White.

Board Denies Restaurant Beer And Wine License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday denied a request from Charles S. Debrezeni, owner of Anna's Hungarian Restaurant, 258 Willard St. for a beer and wine license after opposition from the landlord Bruce Wood and Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico.

Several weeks ago, Debrezeni applied for the beer and wine license, but withdrew his application because of opposition from landlord and councillor.

While no one disputed the fact that the restaurant serves good food and is a "good neighbor" and very clean, both reaffirmed their opposition at Tuesday's meeting citing that the restaurant was originally just breakfast and lunch, and should remain that way.

Atty. Andrew Burbine said when Debrezeni signed a lease with Wood, it stated that he would serve breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Wood explained that he kept giving Debrezeni time extensions, a decision hat has come back to "haunt him."

Wood said the area has always been "alcohol free" and he had no interest in changing it to serving beer and wine.

Chairman Joseph Shea said he had met with Debrezeni about "50 times" and that he felt the area provided a "certain concept" thus he couldn't support his request for the beer and wine license. He said he would be willing to talk to him about trying to relocate the restaurant.

Walter White, director of inspectional services said he feared that once a liquor license is issued, the license would always remain there or be moved elsewhere.

Debrezeni had said he could not make his business a success without the sale of the beer and wine.

However, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said there are many other restaurants in the city that survive without beer and wine. He said it is the "location" of the restaurant that's important and that the "product is the big thing." He added if that's good the beer and wine is a "minor thing."

Board members said they would "honor the landlord's" decision and reject the proposal.

Not giving up, Debrezeni said he would appeal to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

QUINCY IS NOW the headquarters of the Massachusetts Democratic Party. Taking part in the opening ceremony Tuesday in the SAR Building, 10 Granite St., Quincy Center, were Mayor James Sheets, Chairman Phil Johnson and Michael Cheney, chairman of the Quincy Democratic City Committee. The Democratic party moved from downtown Boston.

State Democratic Party Moves HQ Here

By CRAIG SALTERS

Speaking at a Tuesday morning press conference announcing the relocation of the Massachusetts Democratic Party from Boston to its new headquarters in the SAR Building, 10 Granite St., state party Chairman Phil Johnson said he expected the enthusiasm of Quincy Democrats to lead grass roots efforts as the party headed into the 2002 elections.

"I know Quincy very well," Johnson, a South Shore native, told state, county, and local officials as well as longtime party members. "There is an enormous amount of energy in Quincy Democrats. They will help us, volunteering to do the nitty gritty work to elect progressive Democrats to public office."

Johnson pointed to the city's reserve of high school and college students, its history of labor unions, and its senior population. "We need grass roots activism," Johnson said. "We want an army of volunteers."

In addition to the city's Democratic tradition, Johnson also cited the city's accessibility, the office space provided by SAR, and the "skyrocketing" costs of operating in Boston as reasons for the party's move to Quincy.

"We need every dime that we raise to be focused on the races coming up in 2002," said Johnson, who singled out one particular goal of regaining the Governor's Office.

Party officials will begin moving in to the SAR Building this week and should have operations underway by Monday.

Mayor James Sheets welcomed the party's move to Quincy Center as a "terrific opportunity" for both party and city, adding that the new headquarters was another example of the revitalization taking place in the downtown.

"This is a Democratic city," said Sheets, "and this is a tribute to the blue-collar history of Quincy."

Council President Paul Harold, who along with Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Mayor Sheets' Administrative Assistant Bernice

Mader, and Janet Coughlin comprise the Democratic State Committee Members for the Norfolk/Plymouth District, praised the move and said he hoped it would lead to new involvement in the party.

Harold, author of a recent council resolve touting the benefits of Quincy as a headquarters when the choice was between Quincy and Medford, also recalled that, before the landmark election of John F. Kennedy as president in 1960, Quincy had been one of the largest Republican strongholds in the nation, owning the distinguon of having voted against Franklin Delano Roosevelt on all four occasions.

Mader, who emphasized Quincy's unique access to Routes 3, 93, 95, 24, and 128, recalled her first call to party activism, stuffing envelopes for JFK in 1960.

Michael Cheney, former city councillor and currently chairman of the Democratic City Committee, called the relocation an historic move and Sheriff Michael Bellotti added that Democratic goals such as health care, education, and the rights of labor were "the reasons that people remain in this city."

State Rep. Steven Tobin, who was also on hand for the ceremonies, called the move "an ideal marriage" between city and political party. Recalling generations of families, including his own, who worked at the Fore River Shipyard, Tobin said the city was still true to its industrial past.

"It's changed a little, but Quincy's still a blue-collar city and we still care about the same issues," Tobin said.

Councillor at-Large Timothy Cahill, who also serves as treasurer for Norfolk County, thanked Johnson for his efforts to protect county government from Republican attack and thanked companies like SAR Engineering for revitalizing the downtown.

Johnson ended the ceremony by noting that historian David McCullough's recent book on John Adams rose to number one on the New York Times Bestseller List in its first week of print.

"That's a sign of things to come for the city of Quincy and the Democratic Party," Johnson predicted.

Autumn Oster Collecting Food For Pantry Shelf

Eleven year old Autumn Oster of Wollaston will hold a food drive Saturday, June 16, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Wollaston Congregational Church to benefit the Pantry Shelf of Interfaith South Shore.

Many people don't think of the Pantry Shelf except during the holiday season but it's needed year round. The need for food increases during the summer months due to children being home from school and the pantry's shelves are bare.

Non-perishable food items, canned goods, dry goods, paper products and cleaning supplies will be accepted.

Checks made out to U.S. in honor of a special man may be made out for Father's Day. Autumn will give a card for presentation.

Call 617-417-3121 for more information.

Dads' Day Haircuts Aboard USS Salem

Dads will be offered a haircut for $2 at the USS Salem's barber shop Sunday, June 17, from noon to 3 p.m. in recognition of Father's Day.

Music will be provided by a barbershop quartet.

Fathers will be admitted to the Salem and the Naval Shipbuilding Museum free of charge.

The regular admission is $6 for adults and $4 for seniors and children, including a tour of the ship.

Visitors should use the main entrance off the Fore River Bridge rotary near the Harbor Express.

An Election Year That Is

If you like politics you've got to love this election year.

It didn't look like much to get excited about at the start but then -- bang! -- things began to happen. And still are.

This was supposed to have been the year for the big showdown between incumbent James Sheets and City Council President Paul Harold for the mayor's office.

But when Harold decided to run for Norfolk County Register of Deeds and won, it took him out of the mayoral ballgame. And by doing so, it looked like he handed Sheets a free ticket to a seventh term.

Another year without a real mayor's race. So it seemed. Until School Committeeman William Phelan stepped into the picture. That came as a surprise.

He has nomination papers out and says he intends to file them. He would be Sheets's first major challenger since 1989 when he won the office against Peter O'Connell, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Steve McGrath. That was the last good mayor's race.

Since then, Sheets has run unopposed three times and has flicked off minor challengers twice. Two years ago, he swamped candidate Robert Boussy with 85 percent of the vote -- 14,487 to 2,476.

And, two years ago, Phelan, a practicing attorney, now 41, was making his political debut. An impressive one as he took the second spot in the five candidate, three seat school committee race.

Phelan since has drawn a large following for leading the successful fight against the Quincy Ave. toxic waste dump as the proposed site for the new Quincy High School.

Phelan will have his work cut out for him trying to unseat Sheets, one of Quincy's all-time popular mayors. But he says he is running this year to win -- not to set the stage for a run in 2003.

There was another development this week that came as surprise: Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott disclosed he will not seek re-election.

This means there will be at least two new councillors elected this year with both Harold and McDermott vacating seats.

McDermott had three challengers: John Cain, Alan Cousin and John Rodophele, Jr. His departure will open that field up much wider with other candidates -- including friends who wouldn't run against him getting in.

McDermott, who would have been seeking a fourth term, says, "I've been thinking about not running for a long time. There now just isn't enough time in the day to do all the things I want to do."

He's now executive assistant to Harold at the Registry of Deeds and is starting a law career. He will be supporting Steve Lynch in his bid for the 9th District Congressional seat of the late Joseph Moakley, possibly as Norfolk County coordinator.

He and Susan Connolly, an assistant at the Registry of Deeds, are co-chairing the organizing of the new Norfolk County Democrats League. He plans to stay active in Ward 3 as a private citizen.

And if the right candidate is nominated in Ward 3, he will openly endorse and support him in the final election.

And, he and his new bride, the former Tracy Wilson, want to start a family.

McDermott muses that he and Tracy must be one of the few couples to "split" as their recent wedding trip ended. After a Caribbean cruise, the two separated at the airport in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. He flew home to return to work.

An assistant district attorney, she flew off to Charleston, S.C. as a delegate from Dist. Atty. William Keating's office to the National Prosecutors Conference there. (Due home today).

So it's turning into an interesting election year with races for mayor, council at-large and in every ward except Ward 2 where Dan Raymond reigns supreme.

The voter turnout in 1999 was only 36 percent. Could it come close to doubling that this year?

Park Dept. Contest

'Neat Neighbors' Nominations Open

Quincy Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch announces nominations for the fourth annual "Neat Neighbors" contest are open.

Nominations can be made by calling the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1254 through Sept. 7.

The "Neat Neighbors" contest aims to recognize those homeowners who maintain their yard or property in the spirit of a Cleaner, Greener Quincy. Quincy residents can nominate a neighbor, friend or relative who they feel deserves recognition for their hard work.

"The 'Neat Neighbors' contest allows us to recognize those people who maintain and improve their properties for the aesthetic betterment of the entire neighborhood," Koch said. "Through the hard work of our city's 'neat neighbors' we all enjoy a more beautiful place in which to live."

Once the nominations are closed, a representative of the Park Department will visit each property to ensure that it meets the qualifications for the contest. All properties that meet the basic qualifications will be entered into a random drawing to choose 25 winners city-wide. Winners will be notified in late September. All properties that are nominated will be notified of their nomination(s).

"The city has committed a significant amount of resources in making our parks, gateways and business districts more beautiful but the aesthetic backbone of our city remains the residential properties in our neighborhoods," Koch said. "The hard work of our residents adds immeasurable value to the quality of life for all the residents of Quincy. As Park Director and a resident of Quincy, I am appreciative of all the hard work of our 'neat neighbors.'"

For more information call the Quincy Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Marriott Signing To Be 100th Business, School Partnership

The Quincy School-Community Partnership, Inc., will sign its 100th agreement between a business and a school Wednesday, June 20 at 10 a.m. when the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel signs a partnership with Quincy High School.

The ceremony will take place at the hotel.

Arthur Keogh, executive director of the Quincy School-Community Partnership, said the new partnership will foster imaginative and creative links between the school and the hotel, allowing students "to see the world of work in a very practical way."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1921 postcard view of the Swedish Baptist Sunday School Union's "auditorium walk" off Broad Street in the Bethel Beach section of Germantown. Thirty-four acres of land in this area were purchased in 1907 by the Bethel Beach Real Estate Trust which set four acres aside where conferences for religious purposes could be held. For many years the stucco auditorium in the center of the view was home of ten-day as-semblies held every summer by the Sunday School Union. People came from all over New England. A boat landing on Rock Island Cove was reached by a wooden walkway across the marsh. Fourteen acres of the trust's land were developed into house and cottage lots which were mostly owned by Swedish families. The rest is marsh land.

READERS FORUM

Questioning The Logic Regarding Faxon Field

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I question the logic behind the choice to build a new high school on Faxon Field. Building the high school on Faxon Field would eliminate open space. While building on the DPW site would preserve open space.

It would be attached to 30 acres of restored marshland; thereby, providing faculty and students with a thriving ecosystem for study. This site is semi-secluded and would provide scenic vistas. This site has no direct residential abutters, eliminating potential lawsuits. It is also large enough for future school expansion.

Councilor McCauley was the first to publicly oppose the DPW site. He has said that it is a mistake to demolish a perfectly good DPW complex that is centrally located. If it were true I would agree. The truth is the DPW site is in disrepair. Siting the new high school there would force the replacement of the dilapidated and underutilized DPW garages. Many of the employees are forced to work in inadequate working conditions. Where's the good? It may be functioning, but eventually it will have to be completely renovated. That will be a costly project, resulting in the loss of an opportunity to give the people of Quincy a school built on a campus type setting. It is really a quality of life issue that goes far beyond the political aspirations of a few.

Just imagine it! Preserving open space in a city that is so over built that we have spent four years trying to find enough land to build a new school. What happened to all our open space? It was sold to developers. Why aren't Councilor McCauley and William Phelan talking about the quality of life in our neighborhoods? Why can't they see the vision of a new high school on an 18-acre site adjacent to 30 acres of restored marshland as an asset? A new school along side the Broad Meadows Open Space Nature Walk will have trails built on the former water retention basin brim. These trails would be several miles in length and would not be open to traffic. Running paths, scenic overlooks and benches would be located along the trail. This site would also create open fields that could be used for recreation and Quincy High School's sports practices.

Someone once described the redesign of existing open space at Faxon Field as just a 20-acre lawn. No! It's much more than that; it's about building a new vision for the city of Quincy by preserving open space. This vision favors a better quality of life for everyone. Under the leadership of Mayor James Sheets people came first. The plan put forth by the 1997 building and needs task force committee as well as the siting commissions recommendation to build a new high school at the DPW is a shining example of community building at its best. John F. Kennedy once said "that the difficult issues are the important ones."

The siting of the new high school is an important quality of life issue that will last for decades, more important than politics, bureaucracy and personal gain!

Keep Quincy High School Where It Is

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I have grandchildren attending Quincy High School, Central Middle School, Atherton Hough Elementary School and Della Chiesa Preschool. When Quincy was about to put a new high school on the toxic dump at Quincy Avenue, I collected signatures on a petition and wore a sign in front of City Hall, objecting that it would be dangerous to my grandchildren. Taxpayers going in and out were very supportive and I want to thank them for convincing the mayor that the site was unacceptable.

At that time, most people asked, "Why do we need a new high school?" That is still a good question. There are experts who could plan the accessibility and updating of the school without double sessions, hardship or danger to the students.

Most people thought it was not a good plan to convert the high school for Central Middle School right beside the college. They didn't truly believe that plan would be implemented. Some people wondered if Quincy College connections wanted to get our beautiful high school building and field to expand their campus. Could that be possible? Is this the hidden agenda? Think about it.

The DPW is another poor site, requiring new roads, new lighting, environmental clean-up and relocating buildings and underground fuel storage tanks. It has traffic dangers, wetland problems, flooding potential and nothing of which to be proud.

Why all that expense to build a smaller school on an inferior site?

We want the proudest site for our high school students. Let's keep the best site in Quincy. Keep Quincy High School on its own land.

Quincy's Yesterdays

'Pony' Back At Quincy High School

By PAUL HAROLD

Following a year's absence, the Quincy High School "Pony" was returned to the lobby at Quincy High School fully repaired and installed on a new polished Quincy Granite base.

The statue of an Indian on horseback was a replica of Cyrus Dallin's "Appeal to the Great Spirit." It was damaged a year ago and recently repaired. The new base was the fit of the city's Granite Manufacturers' Association.

The statue began its "career" at Central Junior High School, the old Quincy High and was moved to Coddington St. in the 1920s. Three years ago, it was stolen but found later in a building in Quincy Square.

Members of the manufacturers' group donating the new granite base were Louis Volpe and Sons, Hancock Monument, Peruzzi Brothers, West Quincy Granite and E.A. Settimelli and Sons.

Sales and income figures showed Quincy bouncing back from the 1958 recession surpassing national averages. Quincy residents were earning more and spending more according to the recent economic survey.

Quincy was given a retail sales index of 136, 36 points higher than the national average. The average household income in the city was $7,525, higher than both the national average of $6,005 and the New England average of $6,850.

FIXED BOUNDARY FOR CENTRAL STUDENTS

By a vote of 4-3, the School Committee set fixed boundaries for ninth grade students attending Central Junior High School. Principal George Young said the current optional boundaries made it difficult to plan classes.

Students attending CJHS in grades seven and eight could take advantage of the optional boundaries, but because of space limitations, ninth graders outside the school district would have to switch to North.

School Committee member Charles Sweeney spoke against the fixed boundaries noting there were only 22 students who wanted to continue ninth grade at CJHS.

Founding Fathers To Debate June 17 At Carriage House

In celebration of Father's Day, the National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park, will present two Founding Fathers -- Presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson -- in a lively discussion Sunday, June 17 at 2 p.m. in the Carriage House, 135 Adams St.

The program, entitled Adams & Jefferson: The Rematch, promises "a spirited but ever cordial dialogue" about the political, economic, and social development of the nation they helped to found.

The program is free of charge and open to all ages. It will run approximately 90 minutes long and be followed by light refreshments.

There is limited seating and the program will be offered on a first come, first served basis. Those who wish to attend are recommended to call the Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center at (617) 770-1175 to reserve a place.

For more information about Adams & Jefferson: The Rematch or any other interpretive program offered by the Adams National Historical Park, call (617) 770-1175.

Stephanie Carlson-Flynn of Quincy had a leading role in the Thayer Academy Middle School's production of "Final Dress Rehearsal."

Bernazzani School Reaches Goal Of 2001 Books Read

The students of the Bernazzani Elementary School have collectively read 2001 books in just four months by participating in a reading marathon, the "Bernazzani Bears Book Bonanza."

The reading campaign, which was kicked off in February, was organized by the school council to support the school's literacy goals.

"We wanted to provide the children with more incentive to read and to encourage them to work together as a school to reach a common goal," said Susan Wade Yee, a member of the parent council. "So, a school-wide marathon seemed like the right way to go."

Throughout the campaign, council members tallied the number of books read by each grade on a weekly basis and posted the numbers on the large bulletin board in the corridor.

"It was important that the children see how they were progressing toward the 2001 goal and how each grade was contributing to meet that goal," said Gail Macdonald, also a member of the parent council.

The most ambitious readers were the first graders, who read over 700 books in just four months. As part of the campaign, they will be treated to a pizza party at the end of the year.

The campaign received support from Borders Books

& Music of Braintree, which supplied gift certificates, and City Councillors Michael D'Amico and Stephen Durkin, who allocated a portion of community funds.

As the campaign draws to a close with over 2,500 books read, Bernazzani Principal Richard Hutchinson is already looking forward to next year.

"The children's excitement and community support have combined to make this reading campaign successful beyond our expectations," Hutchinson said. "We are confident that the children will enthusiastically accept the challenge of 10,000 books in the next school year."

USS Salem Announces Summer Hours, Events

The USS Salem at the Fore River Shipyard announces it is now open for its summer season seven days per week.

Summer hours are: Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Beginning July 8, summer concerts will be held each Sunday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on the main deck of the ship, continuing through Labor Day Weekend. The last concert will be the "USO Show" with the group "For Sentimental Reasons" on Sept. 2.

New exhibits have been opened aboard the USS Salem and are included in the tour. Admission, which includes special events during the summer season, remains at $6 per adult and $4 per senior and/or child over four years of age.

Upcoming events include the second annual "Father's Day Barbershop Special" from noon to 3 p.m. where authentic "USS Salem Barbershop" haircuts will be available for a $2 donation. Music will be provided by a barbershop quartet and refreshments will be available. Fathers are admitted free that day.

The USS Salem Volunteers and Sea Cadets and USS Salem Sea Scouts will also take part in the city's Flag Day Parade.

Beginning Sunday, July 29 and ending Saturday, Aug. 11, there will be a two-week Summer Overnight Program offered aboard the ship. Information on the program is available by calling the Scout Overnight Director at (617) 479-7900.

'Songs Of The Sea' At Mound St. Beach June 19

The Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission will sponsor Songs of the Sea performed by The Broad Cove Chorale on Tuesday, June 19 at 6 p.m. at Mound St. Beach.

Beginning at 5 p.m. that same night, the Marshall School Choral Group will present "Melodies At Mound Beach."

The Broad Cove Chorale Group will perform music ranging from classical and folk ballads to love songs and chanteys.

The program will also celebrate the Great Age of Sail and the story of women living aboard the sailing ships with story-teller Joan Gattuna.

Blankets, lawn chairs, and food are recommended for both concerts and, in the event of rain, the concerts will take place at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd.

A Long, Proud Tradition

Point Webster Rededication Celebrates Community Spirit

Community pride and commitment to education were common themes Monday as Point Webster Middle School held its official rededication ceremonies.

The Quincy Point school, which boasts a long tradition dating back to its days as Quincy Point Junior High School and the Daniel Webster Elementary School, recently underwent a $7 million conversion from an elementary school to a middle school, re-opening in September of 1999.

The long-awaited rededication was filled with many former students, teachers, and administrators telling current students -- represented by 20 students each from Grades 5 through 8 -- just what an important role the school had played in their lives.

"I'm thrilled to see what the school has evolved into and thrilled to see so many familiar faces," said Principal James McGuire, himself a graduate. "This school has truly been a neighborhood school, attended by families and generations of families of Quincy Point."

Some of the "familiar faces" McGuire alluded to made remarks at the event, including: State Rep. Ronald Mariano, a 1961 graduate of Quincy Point Junior High School who also taught at the school; Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, a 1962 graduate who credited the dedicated staff for steering his life toward success; and Point Webster teacher Thomas DiTullio, who first stepped into the building as a five-year old boy on his first day of kindergarten.

Others making remarks at the event included Mayor James Sheets and School Committee Vice Chairwoman Jo Ann Bragg, who both reaffirmed the city's commitment to renovating the public schools, looking back at projects such as Point Webster Middle School and the new Clifford Marshall Elementary School -- which made Point Webster's transformation into a middle school possible -- and future projects such as the construction of a new Quincy High School, the renovation of the current QHS into the new Central Middle School, and the renovation of the Sterling Middle School.

"When we are done, every school in the city of Quincy will be improved," Bragg said, whose comments were echoed later by the mayor's promise to build a new QHS on the Faxon Field Coddington St. site "second to none."

Also attending the event were School Committee Members Christine Cedrone, William Phelan, and Linda Stice and Councillor at-Large Timothy Cahill.

Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon, who is retiring after 36 years in the Quincy Public Schools, noted parallels between Monday's rededication and the dedication of Quincy Point Junior High School in 1928, urging students to tell their classmates "of the historic event which took place."

Other notables in the auditorium included former teacher and Assistant Principal Arnold Levine and retired teacher Arthur Foster, to name only a few.

Making a special point to mark the occasion was 102-year old Winifred Lancy, whose five children all attended the Quincy Point school.

Lancy, a gold star mother whose son Norman was killed in World War II, said she had many fond memories of the school. She also remembered, she said, having to visit the principal's office several times on account of Norman, whose youthful picture still hangs about her neck in a locket.

As part of the ceremonies, former Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro was presented with the United States and Massachusetts flags.

DeCristofaro, who thanked the audience and expressed a deep affection for the flag, also received a standing ovation, as did Rabbi Jacob Mann of Congregation Beth Israel, who offered the benediction.

Also announced at the event were plans by Rep. and School Committee member Mariano and Councillor Raymond to donate a plaque for the Teachers' Room in memory of long-time Quincy educator Edward Pettinelli.

Other highlights of the rededication ceremonies included the presentation of colors by the Air Force Junior ROTC of Quincy High School, the leading of The Pledge of Allegiance by

Patio Approved For Marina Bay Restaurant

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After a lengthy discussion and opposition from abutters, as to whether the Chantry at Marina Bay should be allowed to have a patio the License Board Tuesday voted in favor of the temporary extension of the premises, but with restrictions.

The restrictions are: That they follow the guidelines of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) and come before the board for a review on July 10; that the patio close at 9 p.m. if there is entertainment inside the restaurant, and that the use of the patio ceases at 10 p.m. instead of the 11 p.m. requested by the owners.

Some regulations by the ABCC state that the premises be enclosed by a fence, rope or other means.

Atty. Dennis Harrington, representing the Chantry said the patio would have five tables with seating for four persons at each table, and be enclosed with a three foot fence.

He assured the board that the patio would close if and when there is entertainment inside.

Paul Zine, chairman of the Marina Bay Quality of Life Association complained about the noise and said he felt the license board votes against the residence when issuing licenses for outside entertainment. He asked the board to deny the request.

Another abutter told about motorcycles parked outside the chantry and karaoke being sung late at night.

Bob Galligan, inn keeper at the Adams Inn said many customers that come into the Adams Inn have praised Marina Bay. Galligan added that it was one of a few places one can get fresh lobster.

Another supporter was Pat McKenna, manager of the Wollaston Yacht Club who said he recently brought a friend to Marina Bay who said it was one of the "nieces places she had ever been to." He said the height of business at Marina Bay about three months a year, and that the board should vote in favor of the patio.

Still another supporter, William Fortier, a resident at Marina Bay and a boat owner said the motorcyclists were parked on the left side of the Chantry, and not necessarily their customers. He said that the "Chantry was being picked on."

man who said he had seen the patio and said as long as they followed the ABCC guidelines, he said "no problem". He praised the area of Marina Bay and called it a "busy place" with the atmosphere of the water and boats and did not think that a patio would "add to the noise."

He asked if the owner would be willing to place some sort of a screening around the patio if the noise becomes a problem.

Walter white, director of inspection services asked if a sliding door, (which abutters said was annoying them with the closing and opening) of the doors could be replaced by a single type door. Harrington said it would be "too late" to construct anything now, but maybe next year if need be.

21 Residents Graduate From Curry

Twenty-one Quincy residents received degrees from Curry College of Milton May 20 at the school's 122nd Commencement ceremony.

Graduating were: Alfred Barzykowski, Loretta DeGrazia, Joseph Gazdik, Michelle Goldrick, Beverly Gunther, David Hastie, Brian Kinnally, Jason MacIsaac, Lori Melchin, Matthew Morse, James Sullivan, Danielle Vitiello, Elizabeth Flynn.

Jane McGinnis, Kathy Belt, Carolyn Briguglio, Catherine Doherty, James Halev, Laurie Wassell, John

Heaney, and Jennifer Managanaro.

John Hamill, chairman and chief executive officer of Sovereign Bank New England, and Thomas Payzant, Superintendent of the Boston Public Schools, both received Honorary Degrees and served as commencement speakers.

FOOT NOTES

by Joel Chariton, D.P.M.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

PREVENT FOOT PROBLEMS

Of the more than 300 possible foot ailments a person can develop, most would be prevented if people stopped abusing and neglecting their feet. Proper foot care increases comfort and helps prevent painful conditions. It limits the potential for related medical problems that can occur with foot disorders, including arthritis and circulatory disease. Foot care reduces the possibility of infection and helps people stay mobile as they age, which helps keep them out of nursing homes and other institutions. To keep feet healthy, wear properly fitted shoes with a firm sole and soft upper. Avoid tight-fitting socks, pantyhose and garters that can restrict blood flow. Bathe feet in warm water with a mild soap, then moisturize. Trim toenails straight across.

Because your feet are the foundation of your entire body, keeping them strong and healthy is fundamental to your well-being. If foot problems point to trouble elsewhere in the body, or result from other conditions, we will work with the members of your health care team to ensure your good health. Keep your body's foundation in the best of health - call us at 781-986-3668, 999 North Main Street, in the MEDICAL OFFICE BUILDING. I am affiliated with the Brockton, Milton, Good Samaritan and Carney Hospitals, as well as the Quincy Medical Center.

P.S. Inspect feet regularly, and see a podiatrist if you notice any problems.

Second Crew For Sidewalk Street Repair

At the direction of the mayor, the DPW studied its operations for the purpose of identifying methods to increase the number of repairs able to be performed annually. It was determined that the addition of another crew for the street and sidewalk repair program would be the best way to help alleviate the list of repairs pending.

In the future, the new crew will also move the department closer to its goal of repairing every deficiency during the same construction season when it is noted.

"This additional manpower and equipment was accomplished thanks to a good plan and the hard work of the DPW employees," said Sheets. "I commend Commissioner Colton and his staff for using the most effective equipment possible which has helped create the efficiencies necessary to make another crew possible without adding to the bottom line."

Colton noted the recent severe weather which, he said, took its toll on the condition of streets and sidewalks.

"This is not an isolated problem in one neighborhood," said Colton. "It is a city-wide concern also felt by most other communities throughout the state."

The increasing need for repair work is the result of reduced state funding provided for local road improvement projects. Several years ago, the portion of money allocated for Quincy was reduced by over $1 million dollars, forcing the Quincy DPW to slow its reconstruction and pavement program and making it necessary to focus the available funds on those streets in the greatest need of reconstruction.

Despite the reduction in state funding, Quincy has responded by increasing its own funding commitment for road and sidewalk projects and has spent well over $20 million on such projects over the past decade. Currently the city is managing over $4.25 million in road construction work this season alone.

Additionally, the mayor has proposed spending an additional $950,000 for roadway work, a measure that has already received approval from the Finance Committee of the City Council.

Board Approves Gazebo At Marina Bay

The License Board voted unanimously for an extension of premises and gave permission Captain Fishbones at Marina Bay to open a gazebo, 20 feet across from restaurant.

The gazebo is used as a waiting area for those while waiting to eat dinner, or they may eat there.

Atty. Steven Colman told the board that customers would not be allowed to carry drinks from the gazebo to the restaurant, but would have to leave them there and then be reimbursed later.

Walter White, director of inspection services added that beer should be poured into a glass and not served by the bottle, so persons would not be seen carrying beer bottles to and from the restaurant from the gazebo.

Discussion about the time frame of the business as Marina Bay came to the conclusion by Colman and board members that the weather would dictate the time frame.

Colman said that instead of the Memorial Day to Labor Day concept, that sometimes in April, the weather is so favorable, that persons take advantage and go to Marina Bay. He said the time of opening for business at Marina Bay should start in April and end at the end of October sandwiching between Patriots Day in April and after Columbus Day in October.

Colman promised that there would be two employees in the gazebo at all times and that there would be snacks and a limited menu served there.

Det. Lieut. Robert M. Perchard, who is a liquor inspector and a license board agent said there were "no problem" at Captain Fishbones.

Speaking in support of the gazebo was Bob Galligan, inn keeper at the Adams Inn, who said the restaurant has an "ambiance and had a Nantucket flair."

After a long discussion on what the hours should be, it was agreed that the restaurant would close at 11 p.m. seven days a week.

Olin Taylor Resigns From Conservation Commission

Citing personal matters and a desire to "move on" after two decades of service, Olin Taylor has resigned as a member of the city's Conservation Commission.

In a letter to Mayor James Sheets dated May 29, Taylor thanked the mayor and added that serving on the Conservation Commission had been "an honor and a privilege."

Sheets praised Taylor for his years of service to the city. "Olin Taylor has done a tremendous job on the Conservation Commission and it was with great regret that I accepted his resignation," Sheets said. "I spoke with him briefly (about the decision) and he said he felt it was time for him to move on."

OLIN TAYLOR

Taylor, who was appointed to the commission by then Mayor Arthur Tobin, was the 1996 recipient of The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year award.

Information Tour For State Drug Insurance Plan

The Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs announces its "Peace of Mind Information Tour" is coming to Quincy.

The tour promotes the first state sponsored prescription drug insurance plan in the nation: Prescription Advantage.

There are three separate information sessions offered June 28 between 9 a.m. and noon at three different Stop & Shop locations: 65 Newport Ave., Quincy; 215 Samoset Ave., Quincy; and 700 Middle St., East Weymouth.

Rep. Ronald Mariano of Quincy said he supports the campaign to inform constituents of the Prescription Advantage Plan, which provides coverage to all Massachusetts elders who are 65 and over as well as younger people with qualified disabilities.

With the plan, once those insured spend either $2000 or 10 percent of their gross annual income (whichever is less), Prescription Advantage will then cover the cost of prescription drugs and the co-pay for the rest of the year.

The plan does require a yearly premium; however, the deductible, premium, and the co-pay are graduated based on gross annual household income. Also, almost all pharmacies accept the Prescription Advantage card and most prescription drugs are covered.

Mariano encouraged anyone interested in gaining further information to attend the outreach activities.

"This plan gives people an affordable and convenient choice with their insurance," said Mariano. "It is important for people to know that the state now sponsors a plan that is competitive to what they have now."

We need you.

Dick Koch And The Flag Day Parade

Richard J. "Dick" Koch founded the Koch Club to emphasize the importance of service and togetherness in his community.

After returning from service during World War II, he decided that he could continue to serve people right here within his community of Quincy. The Koch Club initially began as a softball team comprised of young men that would compete against others throughout the area.

Koch soon decided there was a need to provide younger people with a chance to begin playing sports at a young age. He realized that not all children could hit home runs in every at-bat. He saw children being cut from sports teams and decided that every child deserved a chance. The Koch Club accepted every child and every child was allowed to play. More than just the fundamentals of the game, Koch's efforts were to instill in these youngsters the ideals it took to be good young men.

Toward that effort, he decided that the Koch Club would honor Flag Day in 1952 with a small parade through Norfolk Downs followed by a flag-raising ceremony at Cavanaugh Stadium. He led a small group of about 30 youngsters from the Koch Club, each of whom was provided with a small American flag. His parade and ceremony highlighted the importance of our national symbol and the sacrifices that were made in its honor and protection.

From this small parade in North Quincy a tradition rose. Year by year components were added to the parade until it outgrew its location. Koch wanted to expand the parade so that all of the city's youth could participate. He recognized that the parade belonged to the city and was not just a Koch Club event. In the late 1960's the parade was moved to Quincy Center and the flag-raising ceremony was held at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The importance of the parade brought governors, attorneys general, senators, former prisoners of war and other dignitaries. Through it all, Koch kept the focus of the parade not on the dignitaries, but the message they brought to the youngsters that participated in the parade.

Every year, youngsters learned about the importance of respecting our flag and honoring the sacrifices that were made to protect the freedoms that it represents.

Today the Flag Day Parade has grown to a level likely unimagined by Koch in 1952. More than 55 units will participate in this year's event, which will step off 6:30 p.m. Saturday: drum corps, military bands and a number of other exciting participants. An Air Force flyover will buzz the crowd and howitzers will salute Old Glory.

But the emphasis remains the same. More than 1,500 flag-waving youngsters from youth groups throughout Quincy will march in the parade. Koch's service extended well beyond the Koch Club and the Flag Day Parade, but the parade remains his lasting legacy.

Dick Koch, who died in 1987, would be proud of how far the parade has come, especially because it has never wavered from its true purpose: to instill our youngsters a respect for our flag and all that it represents.

Phelan: Formal Announcement Coming

School Committeeman William Phelan has taken out nomination papers for mayor but as of mid-week had not officially declared his candidacy.

That's coming, he indicates.

"I will be making a formal announcement about my candidacy in the coming weeks," he told The Sun Tuesday.

Meanwhile he is looking and acting like a candidate.

"I have taken out nomination papers," he notes. "I have been meeting with supporters and I will be out speaking with the citizens of Quincy."

Phelan added: "I have been overwhelmed by the amount of encouragement and offers of support I have received in the last few weeks."

The Sun headlined in its May 31 issue, "Phelan Seen As Mayoral Candidate."

Last week he took out nomination papers.

Phelan would be Mayor James Sheets's first major challenger since he won the mayor's office in 1989, over Peter O'Connell, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Stephen McGrath.

Since then he has run unopposed three times and has had minor opposition twice.

Sheets, the city's longest serving mayor under Plan A, is seeking an historic seventh term.

Utility Should Remove 'Butchered' Oaks, Says Cain

John Cain, candidate for Quincy City Council from Ward 3, has proposed to Mayor James Sheets that the electric company be required to remove "a considerable number" of pin oak trees which, Cain said, had been confirmed by a certified arborist recently retained by the Parks Department to have been "butchered."

Cain said he attended a May 1 meeting at The Bernazzani Elementary School which involved concerned residents living on or near Puritan Drive, Priscilla Lane, and Joan Drive.

More than 15 residents spoke, Cain said, describing "years of frustration and no action on complaints of bulging sidewalks and streets, butchered trees, and sewage floods in their basements caused by the big oak trees strangling and bursting their sewage pipes."

Some of the residents have even offered to pay for the tree removal and replacement themselves, Cain said.

Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments, said that the meeting, attended by roughly 50 residents, was part of "an ongoing process" initiated at the request of Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott.

Koch noted that some trees had been trimmed "too aggressively" by the electric company's nationally used "V-Method" of trimming, but added that "they have a job to do and that's clearing the power lines."

THE LARGE TOE AND YOUR GAIT

Patients often ask about the relationship of the large toe and how it affects your gait. The author has often heard a comment from some people like: "if you lose your big toe, it will affect your balance. The large toe does play an important role in the gait but there are other important factors that will affect balance, like nerve signals coming from the brain. The large toe is involved in other ways that are important to a "normal gait pattern. In fact, what is happening at the metatarsophalangeal joint (the joint between that large toe and the first metatarsal) may be crucial to the whole body.

The first metatarsophalangeal joint forms a pivot point during propulsion (the point of the gait where the body weight is transferred from one foot to the other). This transfer of weight gives the body momentum (push) to advance forward. The toe should normally be able to bend upwards about 65 degrees at this joint. If this movement is restricted or even "blocked" completely, all sorts of problems can develop. These may range from foot pain to long-term back problems. Fortunately, in many cases, treatments are available from orthotics (biomechanical devices) to surgical approaches to alleviate symptoms.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 617-773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

REAL ESTATE

Today's Home Buyers Have A Menu Of Mortgage Choices

By CAROL BULMAN

A few months ago, I reported on several initiatives presented by Rep. John LaFalce (D-N.Y.), including one that would make it easier for teachers, police officers and firefighters to purchase homes in the community in which they work. If passed by Congress, this bill will reduce the downpayment requirements and mortgage insurance costs on a mortgage through the Federal Housing Administration for those groups of buyers.

Although it is a creative and forward-thinking idea, the program generated some interesting feedback from several readers who felt that this unfairly assisted a select group of individuals. Specifically, a woman from Marshfield called to ask why such programs were not available to all municipal workers, such as those who work at the town or city hall, the water department, the health department. She wondered if there are programs to assist these people and encourage them to live in the community where they are employed. This is a very good point, and it may be just this argument that keeps this bill from making its way through Congress.

In the meantime, I thought it would be interesting to discuss the wide range of mortgage opportunities available to today's consumers. Many of the programs simply did not exist 10 years ago, meaning that many more people can buy homes today than they could in the late 1980's.

The following is a brief list of programs aimed at helping people, especially first-time buyers, purchase a home. For more details on these programs and others like them, contact Conway Financial Services at 781-681-9400 for a confidential analysis.

- The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (FHFA) offers below-market fixed-rate mortgages for first-time buyers as well as for individuals buying in what the state has deemed to be "targeted areas." There are limits on the income you can earn, as well as limits on the price of a home.

- The Federal Housing Administration (FHA) offers loans other than the program mentioned above for teachers and law-enforcement employees. These programs offer flexibility for first-time buyers that many other loans programs do not. For example, the FHA will allow the borrower to receive all of his or her downpayment and closing costs in the form of a gift from a relative. In addition, the FHA will allow as little as a 3-percent downpayment and will be flexible in some categories of credit.

- The Veterans Administration (VA) offers 100-percent financing to qualified veterans. This could be the loan for you.

- The Rural Housing Service (formerly the Farmers Home Administration) offers 100-percent financing for certain rural areas. You would be surprised to know what is considered to be rural today — some of the communities on South Shore fit the definition of "rural" in this program's eligibility requirements.

- Some cities and towns offer grant and "soft second" financing for first-time buyers and others. The best way to find out what's available is to contact your city or town hall or call a local non-profit agency, such as South Shore Neighborhood Development or the Massachusetts Affordable Housing Alliance.

- Most lenders will allow as little as a 3-percent downpayment on most conventional loans for qualified buyers.

- There are even 100-percent and 103-percent financing programs available if your credit profile is solid. The 103-percent is meant for the borrower who needs to finance closing costs.

- The "subprime" loan allows individuals who have had some past credit difficulties to obtain a loan. The interest rate and the downpayment required will be higher based on the risk of the loan, or, in other words, how severe your credit problems are. If you are in this category, it's wise to get a second or even a third opinion as the programs vary from lender to lender.

- The no-income verification loan is for the person with good credit and a sizable downpayment. With no-income verification loans, lenders may charge a higher rate but will not verify income in determining if the borrower is creditworthy.

Fortunately, today there are many programs custom-suited for each consumer's credit and financial profile. It's never too soon to get pre-qualified, even if you find that today is not the best time for you to buy. You will be armed with the knowledge of what you need to accomplish to reach the goal of homeownership, either now or in the future. And all of this information is just a phone call away.

Carol Bulman is president of Conway Financial Services.

Liang Forms Committee For City Councillor At-Large

Jimmy Liang, candidate for city councillor at-Large, has formed his campaign committee.

Co-chairing the committee are Deb Panoff of Forbes Hill Road and David Holland of Lincoln Avenue.

Panoff is vice president Global Services at Fleet Bank and a lifelong resident of Quincy. She earned her bachelor's degree at Wheaton College, graduating magna cum laude.

Holland is sales associate for the Taylor Group at Salomon Smith Barney. He attends Wollaston Congregational Church and is active in youth athletics and the community. He attended Portland State University in Oregon.

Serving as committee treasurer is Mayumi Sengoku of Merrymount, a 2001 graduate of Eastern Nazarene College with a bachelor's degree in business administration/accounting. While studying at Eastern Nazarene she was employed by Jimmy Liang at the Fuji Restaurant in Wollaston Center.

Liang will formally announce his candidacy Tuesday, June 19 at a campaign kick-off fund-raiser from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Granite Rail, 16 Cottage Ave. Tickets are $25 per person and $35 per couple and may be purchased at the door.

For more information or to volunteer to help the committee, call 617-797-6639.

Commissioners Donate $500 To Crisis Center

The Norfolk County commissioners recently presented $500 to the Quincy Crisis Center with a "challenge" to the community to donate their talents and treasure to help it meet its goals.

The commissioners emphasized that the $500 is not a conditional gift.

The crisis center, manned by volunteers from the community, provides food and other support services to neighbors who have fallen on hard times.

The center's programs include a crisis hotline, a "Food for Families" pantry and the Faith Covenant meal served at 1 p.m. Monday through Friday at the United First Parish Church.

Volunteers are always needed to help in the food pantry, office and meal program. Hours are flexible.

Keenan Calls For Change In Budget Process

John Keenan, candidate for City Councillor-at-Large, proposed a change in the city's budget process, recommending that a statement of revenue be submitted with the annual budget.

"Basically, the annual budget should include a statement indicating where the city will get they money to fund the budget," Keenan said. "Under the existing process, only the spending plan is presented, and information on the sources of funds is not provided."

Keenan, former executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, now financial coordinator for the Norfolk County Advisory Board, said that determining the amount of revenue should be the first step in the budget process, and the first question asked by the City Council should be, "How much can the city afford to spend?"

"Before a person buys a car or house the person first figures out how much he or she can afford," Keenan said. "It's the same principle with the city budget."

"The way the process is presently, when the budget is prepared the city is without final state aid figures and has not set its tax; rate; consequently, the budget is prepared upon estimates. If the estimates prove to be too high, the city could face a deficit."

Keenan asserts that knowing the basis for the revenue estimates is critical to the budget process, and that those revenue estimates should be presented and reviewed as carefully as the budget itself.

"There are two sides to every equation and it holds true in budgeting," Keenan said. "Requiring a statement of revenue will allow both sides of the budget equation to be reviewed."

The city has four basic sources of revenue: local receipts, which include water and sewer charges and other local fees and fines; property tax revenue; state aid; and new growth, which is the amount of tax dollars realized from new development and the expansion of the tax base.

"The four revenue sources added together must equal the budget amount plus an amount set aside in an overlay account for tax abatements," Keenan said. "The budget pending before the council is approximately $3,000,000. This means the city must have revenues of at least $196,000,000."

"Increasing the tax levy by 21/2 percent, planning on new growth equal to last year's high number, estimating local receipts in accordance with state law, and factoring in the state's estimated local aid, all combined, just barely cover the budget and overlay."

"What all this shows is that the city's financial situation is tight; therefore, knowing at budget time where the city will get the money it needs becomes extremely important. By requiring that a statement of revenues be submitted along with the budget, the City Council and public will be better able to make a determination whether the city can afford the proposed budget."

Cousin Lauds Mayor's Plan For Street Repair

Alan Cousin, candidate for Quincy City Council from Ward 3, said he supports Mayor James Sheets' plan to propose a bond issue to pay for street and sidewalk repair.

According to a story in the May 31 Quincy Sun, the mayor plans to ask the city council to approve a bond issue of $750,000 to $1 million for street and sidewalk repairs and possibly tree planting.

"I still believe $250,000 of public money, including indebtedness, should not be used to plant trees," Cousin said, "and I'm still concerned that we should ever have come to the point of needing to borrow money for essential city services. But the important thing is that the mayor recognizes the desperate need for the insulating condition of our streets and sidewalks to be addressed. At least he's doing something about it."

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

FINE-TUNING YOUR SMILE

A slight to moderate overlapping, slight rotation, or unevenness of the front teeth can all detract from your smile. Fortunately, in certain select cases, the appearance of top and bottom teeth can be improved by recontouring the enamel. The top and bottom incisors and canine teeth can be routinely altered in this manner. This usually painless procedure involves removing, recontouring and repolishing the enamel to produce a more uniform and natural appearance. Many times, recontouring in this manner is all that is required to significantly improve your smile. Poor alignment that is more pronounced might be done in conjunction with bonding, the cosmetic technique by which tooth-colored resin is added to the tooth surface.

An unattractive smile can harm a person's chances for career success. A warm, attractive, open smile makes people feel accepted. For cosmetic dentistry utilizing modern and up-to-date procedures, we invite you to call us at 617-479-6220. We are currently accepting new patients and welcome the opportunity to provide you with gentle, professional, 21st century dental care in a warm and caring environment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we stress preventive health care - and we believe good dental health requires constant attention. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Enamel recontouring and/or bonding can be performed in a single office visit.

SPORTS

Both Local Legion Baseball Teams Optimistic

Morrisette, Quincy Underway

By CHRIS POISSON

The early season matchup between the Morrisette and Quincy legion baseball teams was postponed Monday night due to rain.

Probably just as well for both teams.

Morrisette didn't have its full team together until the first game of the season and still has one of its top hitters from a year ago playing in the high school tournament. And Quincy is shorthanded with three players sitting out with injuries.

Morrisette (1-2) suffered an 8-3 loss to Milton last Thursday and an 8-4 setback to Canton last Friday, before rebounding Sunday night with an 8-1 victory over Randolph at Adams Field. It will host Braintree tomorrow (Friday) at 8 p.m.

Quincy (1-1) has gotten off to a decent start under first-year coach Bob Benn, who was an assistant on Ray Cattaneo's Morrisette team last season. Quincy opened with a thrilling 5-4 win over Weymouth last Friday followed by an 8-2 loss to Canton Sunday night. Quincy hosted Cohasset yesterday (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. and will host Randolph this Sunday at 8 p.m.

"It's going to take a few games to get going," said Cattaneo, who had nine players on the North Quincy tournament team and is waiting for Brian O'Hanley to return from the playoffs with B.C. High.

"We're off to a slow start because we didn't have our team together, with North Quincy playing in the tournament, until the first game of the season. I'm looking for a decent season. We have most of the kids back from last year. We're shooting for the playoffs."

In Sunday's game against Randolph, pitcher Keith Doherty made his first start and handed the team its first win. Doherty, who starred at North Quincy and will continue at UMass-Amherst, tossed a complete game, striking out 13 and giving up five hits and an unearned run.

"He's our top pitcher," Cattaneo said. "We'll be in games with him, that's for sure."

Morrisette backed Doherty with a seven-run, second-inning outburst, highlighted by Dan O'Toole's three-run triple and Steve Pizzi's RBI single. Morrisette collected only four hits in the game, but it managed to capitalize on Randolph's defensive lapses.

"We won 8-1 but we only had four hits," Cattaneo said. "We had two timely hits which were huge, but our hitting has to pick up a little."

Meanwhile, Quincy has Chris Lockhead, Charles Vidoli and Chris Walsh on the injured list. Benn said he expects them back in the lineup soon and their return should give the team another lift, which already had a confidence-booster in the comeback win over a talented Weymouth squad.

With two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning, Mike Feetham (2 for 4) slapped a single to knock in Wayne Moynihan (1 for 3) with the game-winning run. Feetham, the No. 2 pitcher behind Keith Doherty at North Quincy, also fired a three-hitter with six strikeouts and only two earned runs.

"That was a great win," said Benn, as the Quincy team has struggled in recent years. "That gave the kids a lot of confidence and they realize they can play with some of the big guys in the league."

"Mike Feetham has turned into an incredible ballplayer," he added. "In a matter of a couple of years, he has emerged as a star player."

BACK TO SCHOOL: New England Revolution defender and 2000 Olympic team captain Brian Dunseth recently visited junior Lucy Ross at Quincy High School. Ross is the winner of the Revolution "Take a Player to School" contest. Dunseth signed autographs, posed for photographs with Lucy and her friends, and talked soccer with the varsity and junior varsity soccer teams. Ross also won Revolution season tickets, an autographed jersey and a $500 gift certificate to Ski Market.

Instructional
Swimming Lessons

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold two sessions for instructional swimming lessons this summer at Lincoln Hancock Community School pool.

Registration for the July session (July 5-26) is Thursday, June 21 at 9 a.m. and the August session (July 30 to Aug. 17) is Friday, June 22 at 9 a.m., both at the Water Street entrance to the pool.

Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis and class size is limited. The Recreation Department will not accept pre-registration or phone registrations. Post-registration is accepted on a space available basis.

Classes will be held Monday through Friday. Instruction is for children age 6 and over who are Quincy residents.

The following classes are offered for both sessions and are conducted in accordance with the standards of the American Red Cross:

- Level I/II Water Exploration and Primary Skills.
- Level III Stroke Readiness.
- Level IV Stroke Development.
- Level V Stroke Refinement.
- Level VI Stroke Proficiency.

• Guard Start, a program for proficient swimmers ages 11-14 who wish to develop skills that lead to lifeguarding.

Inaugural Summer Season For Bay State Strikers

The Bay State Strikers are looking forward to their inaugural summer season as a 14 and under fast pitch softball team comprised of Quincy and Braintree girls.

Besides sharpening athletic skills, the team's goals are to promote self-confidence, leadership, social skills, trust and teamwork.

The Strikers recently kicked off their travel schedule with the CT Thunder tournament in Milford, Conn., over Memorial Day weekend. Other tournaments will be in Franklin, Groton, Leonminster, Greenfield, Falmouth, Hudson, N.H., and Clifton Park, N.Y. There will also be a number of midweek games held locally.

The Strikers began play this past winter in the Bridgewater Dome, posting an impressive 12-3-1 record against teams from Taunton, Lakeville, New Bedford, Brockton and Whitman.

All of the girls can play multiple positions. Emily Bularzik, Katie O'Neil and Rebi Sorensen are three solid eighth grade pitchers who throw strikes. Eight-graders Jessica Patts and Lucia Reed ably handle the catcher position. Ninth-graders Courtney Alongi (captain), Janene Quintiliani, Tori Simms and Meaghan Sweeney bring experience, while eight-graders Jaime Eng, Kerri McAtee, Marissa Powers and Katie Rupprecht add speed, versatility and enthusiasm.

Paul Tanguoso, who has coached travel teams for the past seven years, manages the Strikers and many of his former players have gone on to enjoy success at the high school varsity level at Quincy, Braintree, Archbishop Williams, Blue Hills and Notre Dame Academy.

Mike Sedar, the successful first-year Quincy High School varsity softball coach, is an assistant coach who has worked with Tanguoso on many teams in the past. The other assistant coaches are Jack Patts and Tom Bularzik.

The Strikers gracefully accept donations to help defray the cost of uniforms, tournament entrance fees, travel, equipment, etc. Donations can be sent to the Bay State Strikers, 15 Grace Road, Braintree 02184.

South Shore ARC Golf Tournament June 26

The 14th annual South Shore ARC Golf Tournament will be held Tuesday, June 26 at the Lakeville Country Club.

Funds raised will help underwrite programs and direct services provided by South Shore ARC (Association for Retarded Citizens).

"Our goal is to outdo last year's tournament by having more fun and raising even more money for South Shore ARC in their 50th anniversary year," said Quincy's Loretta M. Oliva, vice president/loan servicing officer for South Shore Savings Bank, who is tourney co-chair along with Kathleen Bailey of Cohasset.

The 165-yard ninth hole will be designated the "South Shore ARC Dream Hole," where someone can win a million dollars, a Buick automobile compliments of South Shore Buick, and the closest to the pin within six inches will win $1,000. Another hole will feature a $5,000 savings bond sponsored by David and Liz Potter.

South Shore Savings is corporate sponsor and Braintree Cooperative Bank is low net prize sponsor. Fallon Ambulance Services and Mass State Knights of Columbus are sponsoring the chicken barbecue. After the barbecue, there will be an auction with Dan Flynn of Quincy as volunteer auctioneer, and entertainment by New England's own "Rodney Dangerfield."

Other committee members include Jean and Lou Bailey of Cohasset; Leo DelVecchio, Norfolk Mechanical; Robert N. Gamm, RG Manufacturing; Frank S. Lagrotteria, chairman of South Shore Savings Bank Board; Norman Racicot, Fallon Ambulance; and George Mathieson, South Shore ARC.

St. John's Little League Baseball

Mets Defeat Indians, A's, D'Backs

The Mets rallied for a pair of runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to come from behind to beat the Indians, 4-3, in recent St. John's Little League action.

Richard Gonsalves and Shane Ferguson both walked and then executed a double steal, where the ball was thrown into the outfield allowing them to score.

Joe Ferris crushed a two-run homer in the second inning. Diego Arrendondo picked up with win with five strikeouts in two innings. Nick Hillner pitched three scoreless innings with eight strikeouts.

In other action:

Red Sox 5, Mets 2

For the Mets, Joe Ferris hit an inside-the-park home run and Mike Lemay had an RBI double. Greg Burrows made a spectacular defensive play at first base.

Mets 7, Astros 2

Nick Hillner went 2 for 2 with an RBI double and two runs scored to pace the offense. He also struck out nine in three innings of work. Diego Arrendondo pitched three innings with seven strikeouts to earn the win. John Parry stroked a two-run single and Rick Henry walked twice, scored two runs and turned an unassisted double play.

Mets 12, D'backs 3

Chris McCue went 3 for 3 with three RBIs, including a two-run moonshot home run tonight-center. Joe Ferris went 4 for 4 with two doubles and two RBI and Greg Burrows went 3 for 4 with two RBIs and a run scored. John Parry picked up with win, allowing one hit and no runs in three innings.

Mets 8, Giants 3

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

The Skinny On Peaches, Plums And Nectarines

As the hot weather sets in, science is ripe with suggestions for healthy summer skin.

In short, practice what you preach.

Consumers stock up each summer on sunscreen, sunglasses and cover-ups to protect their skin from the sun, but some of the most effective combatants in the battle against the sun's harmful ultraviolet (UV) rays can be found in the produce section at the local grocery store.

It's no secret that fruits and vegetables are important for good health. According to the National Cancer Institute, eating five servings of fruits and vegetables a day can reduce the risk of cancer. Several national health organizations concur with those recommendations for the prevention of heart disease and other illnesses.

A less well known fact, however, is that summer fruits like peaches, nectarines and plums also have phytochemicals (chemical compounds produced by plants) that are important for healthy skin. A recent study from the University of California-Davis showed peaches, nectarines and plums from California are good sources of several phytochemicals, which act as antioxidants. These compounds are critical in maintaining healthy skin.

Antioxidants are substances that protect the body by capturing free radicals and eliminating them. Free radicals cause cell damage and can contribute to aging. Here's how antioxidants work to protect the skin. People experience two types of aging: intrinsic aging, which is mainly affected by genetics and lifestyle; and photoaging, which refers to skin changes resulting from exposure to UV rays.

Aging happens when there is an imbalance of pro-oxidants — free radicals — and antioxidants in the skin's cells. The sun's UV rays can accelerate free radical production while at the same time depleting antioxidants. Photoaging happens when damage from UV rays affects skin cell function, usually reflected in rougher, drier, wrinkled and less elastic skin.

Antioxidants protect skin cells by counteracting free radical activity. Peaches, plums and nectarines are rich in phytochemicals called phenols that act as antioxidants. Ascorbic acid (Vitamin C), carotenoids (orange or red colored substances found in many fruits), and provitamin A/beta-carotene are the most notable.

"Peaches, plums and nectarines are a delicious way for everyone to get their 5-a-day," said Pat Baird, M.A., RD, and author of The Pyramid Cookbook. "They are great sources of fiber, vitamins and minerals, and now we learn they are good sources of antioxidants, which are important to good health and good skin."

"Summer tree fruits have long been considered a delicious source of nutrition, but the fact that the benefits extend to promoting healthy skin is great news for consumers," said Marilyn Dolan, consumer programs director for the California Tree Fruit Agreement, which represents approximately 2,000 peach, plum and nectarine growers in the state of California. "Especially those interested in maintaining a peaches-and-cream complexion."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Because of the changes in society, men, today, are developing family relationships quite different from those they had with their own fathers. Fathers, today, may not be the sole breadwinner or the unquestioned spokesman for the household. Yet, at the same time, many fathers are receiving more admiration, more respect and love than many fathers received in previous generations.

For today it is undeniably true that most husbands and wives make most family decisions a matter of mutual agreement. Today, fathers share and share alike . . . in child rearing . . . in housework . . . in cooking . . . and extending the family image outside the home. Agencies such as Big Brothers, the Boy Scouts and the Y.M.C.A. are quick to admit they would be in big trouble were it not for the fathers who volunteer and work with young people.

To all the fathers who read this may we salute you. May you have a happy, happy day.

'Surfin' Seniors

By MARY ANN STILGOE

It wasn't so very long ago that my eighty-something parents spent their evenings in front of the television. They still watch TV but in the past year or so they've added something new to their recreational activities: the Internet.

Like so many seniors worldwide, my Mom and Dad have discovered the ease and fun of surfing the net; they e-mail their children and grandchildren, send and receive pictures, mail animated greeting cards, and talk (type) in real time to any one of a number of their "internet buddies."

While there are literally hundreds of sites designed specifically for seniors, one of the most comprehensive and easy to use for us here on the South Shore is the South Shore Elder Services site. Their web address is www.ssellder.org and they're a good place to start.

From their site, you can easily link to many others. Another that we would be remiss in not mentioning is, of course, the AARP site at www.aarp.org. It, too, offers many other links.

If you're new to computers or to the Internet, be assured that it doesn't take much skill at all to get started. Just hold your mouse, get your clicking finger ready, and hop online; surf's definitely up!

Stanley Sorkin, 74

Retired Owner, Quincy Medical Supply

A funeral service for Stanley S. Sorkin, 74, of Sharon, formerly of Quincy, owner of Quincy Medical Supply, was held June 7 at the Temple Beth El, 1001 Hancock St.

Memorial Observance was through the evening of Sunday, June 10, at his residence.

Mr. Sorkin died June 5 in Boston after a brief illness.

Mr. Sorkin was the owner of Quincy Medical Supply from 1950 until his retirement in 1988.

He was a World War II Navy veteran.

He was a past president of Temple Beth El in Quincy and was a member of the board of directors of the Spring Valley Country Club in Sharon for 17 years. He was also a fund-raiser for the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston.

He graduated from Boston English High School and the University of Vermont.

He was born in Boston, grew up in Mattapan, and lived in Quincy before moving to Sharon.

He is survived by his wife, Marilyn (Hirwitz) Sorkin; two sons, Michael Sorkin of Tokyo and Steven Sorkin of Lincoln, RI; a daughter, Carolyn Sorkin of New York City; and four grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Stanetsky Memorial Chapel in Canton.

Donations may be made to the Friends of the Dana Farber Cancer Center, 44 Binney St., Boston 02115.

Anna McCarthy, 78

Restaurant Owner

A funeral service for Anna A. (Bonani) McCarthy, 78, of Attleboro, formerly of Quincy, who owned and operated Anna McCarthy's Restaurant in Braintree, was held June 7 at Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

A funeral Mass for Mrs. McCarthy was also held that day at St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. McCarthy died June 4 at Sturdy Hospital in Attleboro after a brief illness.

Mrs. McCarthy was a waitress at Eddie's Diner and Seigney's in Quincy before she opened Anna McCarthy's. She operated the restaurant during the 1950's and 1960's and later worked at the Filene's Pub at South Shore Plaza, Braintree. She retired in 1985.

She lived in Quincy for many years before moving to North Attleboro in 1988. She attended Quincy schools.

Wife of the late Gerald J. McCarthy, she is survived by two sons, Gerald E. "Jay" McCarthy of Plymouth and Quincy Fire Department Lt. Robert S. McCarthy of Whitman; a daughter, Beverly A. Currie of Bourne; a brother, John Bonani of Braintree; a sister, Josephine Thibodeau of Quincy; nine grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, 2 Mount Royal Ave., Suite 200, Marlboro, 01752.

People Of Color

Focus Group

By DEANNA WHITE-HEBERT

The "People of Color Focus Group" is one of the oldest Impact Quincy Alliances and a reliable supporter. Impact Quincy is a program of Bay State Community Services, a non profit organization whose mission is the reduction of underage drinking in the city of Quincy.

Two of the most successful prevention strategies for reducing underage drinking are strong families and caring communities. Impact Quincy's staff and volunteers have always been committed to both. Families come in all sizes, shapes, colors and religions. Caring communities recognize, embrace and celebrate all members of the community.

The "People of Color Focus Group" was organized in 1994, with the primary purpose of getting families together for community events in order to get to know and learn from each other in a spirit of respect and acceptance. Over the past seven years many of the same families have been part of the group, or have continued to bring their families to support the community events. Children have grown up attending and participating in our celebrations and are now part of helping the focus group continue its work.

The pride that we have seen grow in families as they learned about and celebrated their culture and their neighbor's culture has been a major reason why people value the work they give to the group and keep coming back. Culture is an important part of family and community pride.

Some people have asked why we chose the name People of Color. It was chosen as a simple reminder that we are not all the same color but that we all have color, and does it really matter what that color is? We also felt it was time for people of color in

DEANNA WHITE-HEBERT

Quincy to become part of the community in a more active way.

Our first event in December of 1994 was a Kwanzaa Celebration, an African American cultural celebration. Since then we have, as a group, attended the Quincy Martin Luther King Breakfast each year, held many other events including Chinese, Hispanic, Islamic, Italian, Black History, Jewish, Irish, Filipino and Puerto Rican. Our events are usually attended by 200 to 300 people.

We began a new adventure under our two co-chairs, Donna Johnson and Dianne Pinkney in the year 2000. We started a scholarship for former students of Smg Harbor Community School who are continuing their education after high school. The scholarship was named for a former student, Christina Transtam, who accidentally drowned last year while attending a birthday party.

African Celebration was held by the "People of Color Focus Group" in April of 2001 as part of a major fundraiser for the above scholarship. We are very pleased to report that we raised almost a thousand dollars during this event.

The "People of Color Focus Group" has been very successful in bringing different communities of Quincy together and helping to build stronger families. We see our work as important, and continuing into the future.

Impact Quincy editorial, published once a month in The Quincy Sun, addresses critical substance abuse issues such as underage drinking in the city of Quincy.

We cherish the memory of our Fathers:

Frederick J. Dolan
John F. Hartnett
Charles H. Mundt
Joseph A. O'Brien, M.D.

And honor Dads everywhere for their fine example and unfailing commitment.
Rest in peace eternally.

Salome's Stars
 ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep a lid on your temper, despite attempts made by someone who might be trying to goad the Sheep into flaring up. Staying cool helps put your adversary into a deep freeze.
 TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) All you Ferdinands and Fernandas need to take time to smell the flowers. You've worked hard. Now stop and indulge yourself with the vacation you so richly deserve.
 GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The good news for single Geminis who feel incomplete without someone special in their lives. A peek at Cupid's checklist reveals that a Scorpio or Virgo will soon be knocking on your door.
 CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Don't fret if things at work might be going too slowly for you. Everything's on-track. Meanwhile, gather your family and friends for a lovely summer outing.
 LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel that you're being virtuous dedicating all this time to your project. But a little time off for summer fun with loved ones will help you relax and refill your energy reservoir.
 VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your emotions might mislead you, but not your instincts. Do what you know to be right, even if you'd rather make other choices. Time will show that you chose well.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This could be a good time to re-evaluate some of the business decisions you've made over the past several months. A new adviser offers some much-needed counsel.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A personal challenge involving someone close to you needs precisely the kind of courage and honesty you can bring to the situation. Go to it—and good luck.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Continue to build your self-confidence by taking additional steps to assert your rights. Cheer up. The process gets easier with each clear-cut victory.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Despite your keen Capricornian sense of what's right and what's not, you still need facts to back up your suspicions about a co-worker. Bide your time. The truth will come out.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A relationship you hope to save might seem too far gone to be rescued. But continue working with your partner to try to mend the misunderstanding.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You need to keep your emotional side in check and let your logical self sort out the problem that threatens a longtime association. Expect some hidden truths to be revealed.
BORN THIS WEEK: You can be extravagant and you can be frugal, almost at the same time. But whatever you do and whenever you do it, you do it with style and gusto.

Dodgers 11, Angels 4

Craig Kelly stroked a single and an RBI double, and made a nice defensive play when he tagged a runner out at second base. Andre Elnakhze had a double and a single and Matthew Fisher added a single and a walk. Andrew Stacy walked twice.

Kyle Piazza Finishes 11th In N.E. Shot-Put Competition

North Quincy High School senior Kyle Piazza finished 11th in the shot-put event at last Saturday's New England Interscholastic Track & Field Championships in Hampton, N.H.

Although he didn't place with a throw of 48 feet, Piazza has enjoyed a successful season and high school career.

"He's a very talented athlete," said head coach Peter Chrisom. "He's a hard worker. He attended a lot of camps to get better. He's very dedicated to the sport. He really enjoys it, which is important."

Piazza qualified for New England with a third-place finish (50'2 3/4") at the All-States June 5 at Holy Cross.

Piazza will participate in the Bay State Games this summer and will continue with track and football at Westfield State College in the fall.

New England Women's Baseball Game Here

The New England Women's Baseball League will make its first-ever appearance in Quincy Sunday, June 24, in a double-header at Adams Field beginning at 2 p.m.

Four teams — the Express, Cougars, Robins and Blitz — will participate and the players will sign autographs between games.

Prior to the games, there will be a throwing and baseball clinic for girls ages 10 and up at 10 a.m. The only requirement is that each girl brings a baseball.

Initiated through the efforts of Chris Lindberg and Len Dawson, the league recently started its third season.

The interest in women's baseball has been highlighted this year by the International Tournament that will be played in July in Toronto, Canada. Many players of the NEWBL took part in tryouts for the team that will represent the United States in the tourney.

Quincy Medical Center Auxiliary Plaque Remembers Loved Ones

Remember a loved one or honor a friend by placing their name on the Quincy Medical Center Auxiliary plaque in the Hunting Hall of Founders at the hospital.

Nameplates cost $85 each and become a permanent part of the auxiliary plaque.

The Hunting Hall of Founders recognizes the contributions of the many individuals, businesses and organizations who have provided financial support to Quincy Medical Center over the years. It is named for Nathaniel S. Hunting, MD, one of the founding physicians of Quincy Medical Center at its inception in 1890.

Proceeds from nameplate contributions help support the Quincy Medical Center Auxiliary, which raises funds for equipment and services benefiting patient care at Quincy Medical Center.

To place an order for a nameplate in memory of or to honor a family member call Natalie Fossati in the hospital Gift Shop at (617) 376-5509.

Free Smoking Cessation Program Starts July 17

Bay State Community Services is offering a free eight-week smoking cessation program at Quincy Medical Center starting July 17.

The program will be held Tuesday evenings for six weeks.

Charlene McDonald, smoking cessation counselor, will lead the group through a series of six smoking cessation counseling sessions that provide education on methods for ceasing tobacco use, supportive counseling during the early quitting period, information and advice on nicotine replacement therapy, and referral to individual smoking cessation counseling.

Nicotine patches are available as part of this program at a small co-payment along with counseling. To register or for more information, call Charlene McDonald at (617) 472-6027, Ext. 213.

We need you.

Scramble On For McDermott Ward 3 Seat

(Cont'd From Page 1)

And Kevin Coughlin, assistant chief probation officer at Middlesex County Probate and Family Court and community activist, said he is running and will make a formal announcement soon.

Other names being mentioned as possible contenders are School Committee-woman Linda Stice, Mary Ellen Cronin who ran for Register of Deeds, and Greg Newton, immediate past president of the Wollaston-Montclair Association.

Ron Iacobucci, now a candidate for school committee, might consider switching to the Ward 3 race.

Others are expected to look at getting into the race.

McDermott's decision not to seek re-election guarantees there will be at least two new faces in next year's city council. Council President Paul Harold is vacating his at-large seat to concentrate on his new duties as Norfolk County Register of Deeds.

McDermott explained his decision not to run again.

"In addition to my position as the Executive Assistant to the Register of Deeds in Norfolk County, I plan to start a private law practice specializing in real estate law and would also like to explore a career in political consulting and entertainment law."

He said he also expected to join state Senator Stephen Lynch in his bid for Congress and to work helping the Democratic regain the governor's office.

McDermott said he will play a role in the Ward 3 election and stay active in the community.

"I plan to remain active in neighborhood and city issues that I believe are important," he said. "I also plan to be active in the race to succeed me."

He said he is confident that "qualified and committed candidates" will run and "seek to serve with dignity and integrity."

McDermott said that because of his new commitments "to run for a fourth term on the city council would not be in my best interest nor in the best interest of the residents of Ward 3."

McDermott said he feels fortunate to have had the opportunity to serve in Ward 3 and "I have always strived to do so with the utmost integrity and respect."

He said when he decided to run for the council in 1995 he thought he would serve only two terms.

"I have always held the belief that elected government service should only be temporal and that one should serve to advance his or her ideas and then leave public office when those ideas and initiatives have been accomplished or at least put forth into action."

He said he debated in 1999 over running for a third term but did so "because of outstanding concerns I had on many neighborhood and city issues that I wanted to continue to work on."

"I am satisfied I have accomplished most of the goals and initiatives that I set out to accomplish six years ago. I have always tried to focus my attention on what I call the 'bread and butter' issues in my district: park improvements, street and sidewalk repair, tree plantings, beautification projects, and economic development.

"I am proud to visit each and every park in my district, knowing that each has been improved during my tenure. This year I hope to see a final plan put forth for the refurbishing of Forbes Hill Park which will have completed my goal set out in 1995.

"The most pressing issue for the entire city has been street and sidewalk repair, which will continue to require aggressive advancement."

He said he has been proud to have worked with residents and Department of Public Work officials in setting goals and priorities to address this problem on an annual basis.

"This year the city council will appropriate almost $1 million to address the condition of streets and sidewalks," he said.

Among other accomplishments he noted he worked on: the Quincy Center Concourse, expansion of the Crane Public Library, the North Quincy gateway improvement project, the Quincy Center Action Plan, senior citizen advocacy programs, community policing and the new Quincy High School.

"But there comes a time for each of us when we must make decisions on which direction our lives should take," he added. "During the last year I have experienced many life-changing events: my graduation from Suffolk University Law School last year, passing the bar exam last summer and being sworn in as an attorney this past winter."

"And my recent marriage to Tracy Wilson. Tracy and I had several discussions over where each of us wants to go professionally and personally as individuals and as a couple. This decision to leave public life is one with which we both feel quite comfortable and confident.

"I want to thank my family and friends and the residents of this community for the support, advice, and prayers over the past six years and in the making of this important decision. To serve as the Ward 3 Councilor for the past six years has been an honor and an experience that I will remember and cherish fondly."

Parents, Do You Know That..

By following a few simple steps you can help your teens reduce risks of alcohol/drug use:

1. Keep doors of effective communication always open
2. Parents should assume the leadership role in the family
3. Enforce fair discipline, anticipate & prevent problems proactively
4. Remember alcohol/drugs are addictive either psychologically or physiologically

Attention Quincy Residents

The Quincy DPW has taken over the curbside yardwaste collection program from BFI.

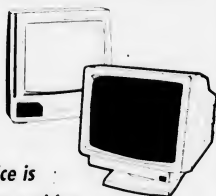

Yardwaste may be placed curbside now through December 14, 2001 on your regular trash pickup day.

The drop-off facility at the DPW Backyard, 55 rear Sea Street, will still be open to Quincy residents Monday through Saturday from mid-April through mid-December and has been relocated so that residents do not have to drive far into the yard.

$ An incentive program is ongoing for residents who make the effort to drop off their materials and includes FREE YARD WASTE BAGS AND CASH PRIZES! $

It is mandatory that you use brown leaf bags, open barrels or cardboard boxes. No plastic bags will be accepted. Please bundle/tie (with rope) branches and brush (in 3 foot lengths) separate from grass and leaves. Large tree limbs and heavy brush can be disposed of, unbundled, at the DPW yard.

Computer monitors & TVs, due to lead content, are now being accepted at the DPW drop off-site at 55 Sea Street every Saturday morning 9:00am-noon (except during snowstorms). Residents may drive up to the loading area of the building to place their materials on pallets. As this service is available weekly, year round, there will be no waiting.

Recycling Works! In the past ten years, the national recycling rate has increased from 11% to 27%!

BATTERY CHECK

Vehicle owners should refrain from automatically assuming that their batteries need to be replaced on the basis of a battery tester's indication that their batteries are operating at less than full capacity. Upon further examination, it may be found that a loose belt or charging system malfunction may have caused the problem. Batteries may also not recharge fully if they are not driven for prolonged periods or the engine is continually cranked over then shut off after very short trips. Charging the battery or testing for related electrical problems will usually reveal the culprit. In the meantime, vehicle owners should have their batteries inspected when they come in for oil and filter changes.

Routine maintenance is important in keeping your car at its best and safest. Don't neglect checking the battery and belts. If you are having any problems or have question, bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. Council Finds Permit Violations On Faxon Woods

By CRAIG SALTERS

Acting as special permit granting authority, the City Council Monday night found developer Roseland/Faxon Woods LLC in violation of the "responsible employer" language in its permit to build "The Highlands at Faxon Woods," an age-restricted independent living campus off Falls Blvd.

But the council did not revoke the permit, instead referring its findings to the Solicitor's Office and Inspectional Services Director Walter White, the city's zoning enforcement officer, for review and "appropriate action."

In making the decision, the council sought the most appropriate method of enforcement for the "responsible employer" language found in the permit, which requires prevailing wages, medical coverage, accident insurance, apprentice programs, and "local hiring" practices but which has not been traditionally addressed by the permit granting authority.

"I think the council acted as best it could," said Solicitor Stephen McGrath, who advised councilors that the director of Inspectional Services enforced zoning in the city. "The councilors sent it to the appropriate authority and we'll go from there."

During a discussion with councilors Monday night, McGrath also cautioned that he would be "hesitant to advise the building inspector (White) that he has the authority to revoke the permit," adding that he wanted to review case studies on the matter.

Commenting on the matter Tuesday, White told The Sun that dealing with the so-called "REO" (Responsible Employer Ordinance) language was new territory for both the council, which recently passed an REO for all

Announces Candidacy

It's Official: Phelan Running For Mayor

School Committeeman William J. Phelan has made it official: he is running for mayor.

In a formal announcement Tuesday, Phelan said he was "mindful of the awesome responsibility to undertake a campaign against an entrenched 12-year incumbent" but "was up to the task."

The state was critical of Mayor James Sheets' administration and was seen as an indication that Phelan planned a hard-hitting campaign to win the office Sheets has held since 1990.

"The time is now," said Phelan. "The citizens of Quincy are ready to listen to an elected official who stands up against the odds to do what is right and speak directly to the people, with straight talk."

Phelan, a first-term member of the school committee, will be Sheets' first major challenger since winning the mayor's office in 1989.

That year featured a four-way mayoral race between Sheets, Peter O'Connell, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Steve McGrath.

Sheets and O'Connell took the nominations and

WILLIAM PHELAN
Mayoral Candidate

Sheets won the final election to succeed Frank McCauley who decided not to seek reelection after serving four terms.

It was the last big mayoral election. Since then Sheets has run for re-election unopposed three times and against minor opposition twice. Two years ago Sheets rolled over Robert Boussey with 85 percent of the vote - 14,487 to 2,476.

Phelan said he is running this year to win and not to set the stage for a second run in 2003.

Phelan said he is announcing his candidacy now

"because the incumbent mayor has broken the bond of trust given to him by the citizens of Quincy. A series of ill-conceived and ill-advised decisions has caused the city to lose millions of dollars."

He said, "The continual yearly increase in taxes during the time of a thriving economy should not have happened. The time is now to take our city back, not two years from now."

"My message will be clear and specific," Phelan declared. "I intend to outline a pattern of poor judgment by the incumbent Mayor and his administration by informing the people of Quincy of:

- "The purchase of a toxic waste dump on Quincy Avenue to locate a new high school.
- "The Quincy Shipyard give-away deal of millions of dollars in neighborhood grant money and real estate tax concessions to a developer who left the country.
- "The lack of leadership displayed by the Mayor of

Council Approves $193M Budget For FY 2002

The City Council Monday night approved a budget of $193,093,967 for Fiscal Year 2002.

The new budget represents a roughly five percent increase from Fiscal Year 2001, which had a budget of $183,381,916.

Councilors reviewed the budget during five sessions of the Finance Committee led by Finance Chairman Frank McCauley.

After reviewing each department appropriation and making minor cuts totaling roughly $40,000, the Finance Committee approved Mayor James Sheets' budget proposal at its June 7 meeting.

Fiscal Year 2002 begins July 1.

Newton, Condon-Walsh At Odds

Differing Estimates To Move USS Salem Stir Storm

By CRAIG SALTERS

Although the USS Salem is known for never having fired a shot in anger, the same might not be true for those for and against the museum ship's proposed move to Squantum Point Park near Marina Bay.

At Monday night's meeting of the City Council, Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton blasted Salem officials for lowballing their estimates for the proposed moving of the ship, producing copies of a letter which stated figures three times higher than those previously reported.

"The issue to move the USS Salem to Marina Bay has now become insane," said Newton, the leading opponent of the move. "Someone should bring out the smelling salts."

JOSEPH NEWTON

JOANNE WALSH

Joanne Condon-Walsh, to whom the letter was addressed, responded Tuesday that the inflated estimates were based on earlier, inadequate information, a claim supported by the author of the letter, Joseph Lombardi, a marine industrial surveyor and consultant for Ocean Technical Services of Manchester, MA.

He failed bidder on the project.

"I'm disappointed that this was presented without any discussion with ship officials or any attempt to clarify the matter," said Condon-Walsh. "This is a letter addressed to me and, if someone wanted to discuss correspondence sent to me, you'd think they would have started with me."

In a Monday night resolve seeking to schedule a meeting of the Oversight Committee on the proposed moving of the Salem, Newton produced a letter dated Oct. 10, 2000, from Lombardi to Condon-Walsh. The two-page letter estimated the total cost of moving the Salem at between five and seven million dollars, well above the roughly $2 million figure presented by Ronald Bourne, the engineer eventually chosen for the project.

"The cost (of moving the ship) will be substantially more," said Newton, who called even Bourne's $2 million estimate "ridiculous" because, he said, "It comes down to something very basic: the ship does not have to be moved."

Condon Walsh responded that Lombardi's Oct. 10 letter, which lists five key points in the dredging/moving process and contains a "best case" estimate of $5,929,211 and a "worst case" estimate of $7,559,665, was the first estimate on the project and was based on less information than the later estimate of Bourne, the chosen engineer.

"The Massachusetts Highway Department funded Mr. Bourne (for the engineering work to relocate the ship)" said Condon-Walsh, adding that the MHD had copies of both estimates. "They are fully aware of what the correct numbers are."

Lombardi, reached at his office Tuesday, agreed.

"Items one, three, four, and five (of the Oct. 10 letter) are very close to those of Bourne Consultants," Lombardi said. "The difference is in item two."

On item two, which addresses dredging, Lombardi said that, at the time of the estimate, he was unaware the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) had previously dredged the proposed berth area, which cuts 20,000 cubic yards from Lombardi's 50,667 cubic yard estimate.

More importantly, Lombardi said, his estimate that 244,444 cubic yards would need to be dredged from the Squantum Channel to move the ship could prove unnecessary if the ship can be raised sufficiently.

"The ship draws 22 feet, six inches in the water," said Lombardi. "If the average draft of the ship can be set at 21 feet, the Squantum Channel won't have to be dredged."

The way to do that, Lombardi said, was to remove ballast, thereby making the ship lighter. "It's feasible," he said.

Both Salem officials and Lombardi agree that the letter's estimate of $10 to $15 per cubic yard dredged is accurate.

"But the amount to be dredged (on the Lombardi estimate) is 10 times greater," Condon-Walsh said.

Lombardi, who said MWRA reports and other useful data were not available for his bid, added that his knowledge of the ship dates back to 1994 when he worked on the ship's original tow to Quincy and last year when he worked on the ship's move to Boston for repairs.

"I'm intimately familiar with that ship," Lombardi said.

The USS Salem, a Cold War cruiser built at the Fore River Shipyard, is currently berthed at the shipyard near the Fore River Bridge.

Many Marina Bay residents oppose plans to move the ship to the MDC's Squantum Point Park off Marina Bay, saying the ship is not a good fit with some of the city's most attractive real estate.

House Panel Endorses Adams Memorial Bill

Legislation co-authored by Congressman William Delahunt to authorize a memorial in Washington, D.C., honoring the legacy of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams received a green light Tuesday from a key House Subcommittee.

The Subcommittee on National Parks voted unanimously Tuesday to approve HR 1668. The bill was endorsed with one amendment, offered by Subcommittee Chairman Joel Hefley (R-CO) that narrows the focus of the memorial on John, Abigail, and John Quincy Adams.

It goes next to the full Resources Committee and, if successful, on to the House floor.

Senator Edward Kennedy is sponsoring a corresponding proposal in the US Senate.

"The subcommittee's enthusiastic response bodes well," said Delahunt. "It reflects the merit of recognizing the enormous contribution of this South Shore family."

Earlier this year, Delahunt and Kennedy set an ambitious objective of enacting the legislation by July 4, the anniversary of the death of John Adams. Delahunt said that Tuesday's vote, which comes only a week after a subcommittee hearing on the bill, keeps that expedited schedule on target.

Just this past weekend, Delahunt hosted a visit to the Adams homestead by two key House colleagues in advance of today's vote. At the site Saturday was Congressman Rush Holt of New Jersey, a member of the National Parks Subcommittee, who accepted Delahunt's personal invitation at last week's hearing, as a way to tie together the historical Adams resources in Quincy and Washington.

Joining them was Congressman John Spratt of South Carolina, ranking member of the House Budget Committee.

At Tuesday's markup, Congressman Holt said the Quincy visit "further persuaded (him) on the wisdom" of the bill.

Before Tuesday's vote, subcommittee members said they were particularly impressed by testimonials at last week's hearing from eminent scholars detailing the magnitude of the Adams legacy. They also examined historical artifacts illustrating the family's legacy, including original correspondence with Thomas Jefferson.

John Adams' strong connection to Jefferson generated subcommittee speculation about locating the memorial near the existing Jefferson Memorial, but discussion was appropriately deferred until after the enactment of HR 1668.

The ultimate location and design of the memorial would be handled by the National Capital Planning Commission.

Delahunt said he is keeping White House officials posted on the bill's progress, given the historical father-and-son parallels with the Bush family. While the legislative process continues, Delahunt is also in discussions with state officials about prospects for a memorial in Boston to honor the Adams legacy.

In addition, Delahunt is pursuing additional support for the Adams National Historical Park. Demand has begun to surge at the Adams site in the wake of the current legislative activity and the best selling biography by historian David McCullough.

Council Approves $950,000 For Streets, Sidewalks

The City Council Monday night approved a $950,000 bond issue for the re-paving of city streets and sidewalks.

The bond was approved by the Finance Committee at its June 7 meeting.

Recently, the city announced a second DPW crew had been added for street and sidewalk repair in an attempt to address what is seen as a citywide concern.

Shea's Long-Range Forecast

It should be in the high 60's or mid-70's. No, that's not Dick Albert, Ed Carroll or Harvey Leonard with their weather forecast for the week.

It's City Clerk Joseph Shea and his long-range forecast for voter percentage turnout in this year's Nov. 5 final election.

"We have a mayor's race this year, a council at-large race and four good ward council races," Shea notes. "Combined they should bring out a voter percentage somewhere in the high 60's or mid-70's."

And he sees a turnout of over 50 percent Sept. 11 in the preliminary election.

He attributes that to spirited preliminary run-offs for council at-large and for council seats in Wards 3, 5 and 6.

And there could possibly be another preliminary contest to liven things up a little more. This one for mayor.

If Shea's prediction is on target there will be more voters going to the polls this year than in any municipal election city hall observers can recall.

More even than in 1989, the last big mayoral election year.

That was when James Sheets, Peter O'Connell, Joseph LaRaia and Steve McGrath squared off in a preliminary battle but brought out only 46 percent of the registered voters.

"There were no council at-large or ward council preliminary contests that year," notes Shea.

Sheets and O'Connell nailed down the two nonincumbents and Sheets went on to win, taking over the mayor's office from Frank McCauley who decided not to seek re-election after serving four terms.

But that other voter turnout was only 64 percent with the only contests for council at-large, school committee and Ward 1.

"There were no contests for council seats in Wards 2, 3, 4 and 6 which probably kept the turnout from hitting 70," says Shea.

Sheets is seeking an historic seventh term this year and has his first major challenger since winning the office in School Committee man William Phelan.

Sheets has been one of the city's most popular mayors.

And one of the strongest. Evidence: unopposed for re-election three times and minor opposition twice.

There have been times when it seemed the only way anyone could get him out of the mayor's office would be with dynamite.

But Phelan says it can be done with issues.

But, what about that possible preliminary run-off for mayor?

Robert Boussy, who ran against Sheets two years ago and got swamped, has nomination papers out but is being coy about what office they are for. He hints they may be for mayor.

If he files them for mayor and they are certified, that would make a mayoral preliminary election.

Boussy would need something along the line of a political miracle to win a nomination. But forcing a preliminary election for mayor might appeal to him.

SHEA

And, if he does, the big question:

Who benefits the most from a preliminary contest, Sheets or Phelan?

Shea at the moment isn't thinking about a possible preliminary but what appears to be a sure council at-large runoff.

The seven candidates who have papers appear to be in the race all the way. They are: incumbents Tim Cahill and Frank McCauley, Joseph Finn, John Keenan, Jimmy Liang, Brian McNamee and Denis Tardo.

"It looks like a definite preliminary election there," says Shea.

The city council had cut $20,000 out of the Election Department budget thinking there would be no city-wide preliminary election as there hadn't been one for many years.

But $10,000 has been re-instated. And the other $10,000 probably will be before the final in November.

Helping to bring out the vote Sept. 11 are council preliminary battles in Wards 3, 5 and 6.

Pat McDermott's surprise decision not to seek re-election has opened up the Ward 3 field. John Cain, Alan Cousin and John Rodolphe who were already in the race now have company: David McGillicuddy and Kevin Coughlin. Mary Ellen Cronin may get in.

Incumbent Steve Durkin has strong challengers in Doug Gutro and James Mullane for the Ward 5 seat.

And in Ward 6, incumbent Joseph Newton has Maryann Mahony and William Kiley to contend with for that seat.

No preliminary election in Ward 4 but there's a good race there for a November showdown with Bryan Connolly challenging incumbent Michael D'Amico.

Looks like a good year to get out and vote.

Community Policing: Spotting Little Problems Before They Get Bigger

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Recently, the mayor announced that Squantum will be getting its own community police officer to deal especially with the problems associated with underage drinking up on Squaw Rock. Then, he announced that Wollaston Center will be getting its own beat cop patrolling this retail area. In both cases the decisions were warranted, but is this community policing or political policing?

As a police officer with the Metro Boston DMII police force since 1985, I believe in good police work and the concept of community policing is good police work. However, community policing is not a police unit or division, it is a mindset or mentality going back to my childhood when cops working the neighborhoods had a sixth sense about trouble. It came from knowing where they were and talking to those being served by them. Back in the fifties before computers, cops knew their beat well and people in return knew them. However, about 30 years ago with the dawning of the computer age, cops seem to stop walking and apparently separated themselves from people in the neighborhood. Either with their cruisers or with their computers.

Community policing is getting back to the future. It is once again getting to know their beats intimately. Community policing is about spotting little problems before they turn into bigger problems. It is about creating a good quality of life in the neighborhoods being protected. It is elementary policing. It isn't brain surgery. It's common sense.

When I see politicians sending in a community policing team, it angers me because it is a misuse of police and it isn't even effective policing. The beat cop in Wollaston Center will be doing community policing. Because the bottom line is getting every police officer doing community policing as second nature. You don't go out there saying, "I think I'll do community policing today." You go out there to do your job, which is to know everything about the area you serve. Most cops have been doing this for years. You don't need to attend classes to understand it.

City Hall could do us all a favor and let the police do their policing without politicians looking for soundbites and photo ops. I hope the police can do something about the drinking at Squaw Rock but real community policing also involves the people of the community doing their part. The police need folks and parents in the neighborhoods working with them as partners to change things around. Real community policing involves two communities: the police and the neighborhoods. Sharing responsibility and creating real change.

Community policing will be truly successful when it is seen as part of everyday police work.

RIVERVIEW VETERANS' HOUSING DEDICATED

The federally aided housing in Germantown called Riverview was dedicated this week by John Kane, regional director of the public housing.

One third of the 180 units were ready for immediate occupancy with the remaining units scheduled to be ready by mid-July. To be eligible, veterans' total family incomes could be no more than $2,300 to $2,800, depending on family size.

The Quincy AMVETS Post presented a special citation to Councilor David Crowley for the role he played in securing veterans' housing for the city.

Ruth Harcovitz To Perform At Ward 4 Senior's Festa Italiana

The Ward 4 Senior Group will celebrate Festa Italiana Wednesday, June 27 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 200 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

Ruth Harcovitz, a professional vocalist, will perform "The Sunny Skies of Italy," a program comprised of Neapolitan songs, well-known opera arias, and Italian popular and folks songs, at 2:30 p.m.

With a clear, scintillating voice, soprano Harcovitz, at 110 pounds, is often referred to as "the female Pavarotti." She has given many performances throughout eastern Massachusetts for community organizations.

A New England Conservatory graduate, Harcovitz is also an opera singer. She studied in Europe at the Vienna Academy of Music. Upon her return to the United States, she was engaged by the Santa Fe Opera, the Opera Company of Boston, and Opera New England. She has appeared as soloist with choral societies and orchestras.

The program is sponsored by the Quincy Cultural Council, a local agency of the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

Crane Library To Sponsor Summer Reading Club

The Thomas Crane Public Library has organized a summer reading club for all children of middle school age or younger, including infants.

Registration will take place between Monday, June 25 and Friday, August 24 at all library locations.

Participants should pick up a registration packet, fill in the registration form, and then begin reading or listening.

Those who have read or listened for three hours will receive certificates. For each additional three hours of reading, participants will receive stickers to add to their certificates.

In addition to the reading club, the library will offer many summer programs for which no registration is required. Activities include simple drop-in craft programs, drop-in storytimes for different ages, special science programs presented by the Museum of Science, a music concert with "Two of a Kind," and the library's annual Summer Storytellers Series and Pajama Time storyhours.

Calendars of events are available at any Thomas Crane Public Library Location.

19 Quincy Students Win Prizes For School Safety Essays

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti, for the second time this year, honored middle school students, 19 of them from Quincy, for their ideas on improving school safety.

"We continue to hear about school violence in the news," Bellotti said. "This is a serious issue, and we must listen to what students have to say about it. They are our greatest resource."

Bellotti recently honored 69 students from Quincy, Medfield, Stoughton, Walpole and Westwood at the Apollo Function Hall in Norwood.

A free buffet and soft drinks were served at the event.

The students were first, second, and third place prize-winners in Bellotti's "Safe School Essay Contest." Their essays were chosen from hundreds submitted for consideration in the latest contest.

"This event is becoming more and more popular with teachers, parents and the children," Bellotti said. "We have 12 more winners this time around, and it really shows that kids care about what's going on in their schools."

Bellotti applauded local law enforcement for its response to recent safety concerns at several schools in Norfolk County.

"We're addressing this problem at the local level, and our police and school officials should be commended for their ongoing efforts," he said.

Many students in their essays said they would like to see metal detectors at the front door, clear lockers in the halls and increased security patrols.

Others wrote that closer relationships with teachers and staff would open the lines of communication; that working to eliminate drugs and alcohol would improve behavior; and that stiffer punishments for "bullies" and greater cultural awareness for all students would create safer school communities.

"By giving students a chance to express their concerns about things happening in school and with their peers, it helps us to understand their situation and how to handle it," Bellotti said. "These kids know what's going on, and they have some answers we can learn from."

The winning students received certificates of achievement from the sheriff's office and U. S. Savings Bonds ($150 for first place, $100 for second place and $50 for third place.).

Winners from Quincy included:

Point Webster Middle School - First, Robbie Page; second, A. J. Priscella.

Central Middle School - First, Lisa Luo, Alexandra Valli and Phil Kostka; second, Sara Marhamo Amy Sandonato and Danielle Rand; third, Brittany Whitaker, Marissa Monaco and Allison Coughlin.

Sterling Middle School - First, Daniel McCarthy, Jessica Smith and Rachel Sullivan; second, Taylo LaCorte, Aileen McPherson and Nicole O'Sullivan; third, Donald Gaxho and James Callahan.

In her prize-winning essay, Alexandra Valli recommended the use of metal detectors inside or outside the school buildings, a dress code to limit a student's popularity, and security guards to check for suspicious people.

As to metal detectors, Alexandra wrote, "there aren't that many people who would bring metal weapons to school that had metal detectors. I hope there are not a lot of people that are desperate to hurt someone."

"It is a good idea and a bad idea to keep them secret. The kids would have no idea that there was a metal detector so they might bring some weapons inside and get caught. Though the kids might not want to bring them in if they knew about it."

Lisa Luo ventured the opinion that bullying by classmates appears to be the main cause of school mass shootings and other violence.

"Seventy-five per cent of school shootings were brought about by students being teased or harassed by fellow students," she wrote. "According to the U. S. Department of Education and the Secret Service, anti-bullying programs are more liable to prevent school shootings than metal detectors, student profiles or police officers."

Kevin Mason Leads 'Unga Bungas' To 3rd

Kevin P. Mason of Quincy, a mechanic engineering student at the Benjamin Franklin Institute of Technology, helped the "Unga Bunga Bean Bundlers" team to a third place finish in the fourth annual Technology Olympics.

The "Just For Fun" team sparked by Chi Hang Wu of Quincy, a medical electronics engineering technology student at Franklin, finished in fourth place.

In one of the four events in the Olympics, students were required to build any type of structural bridge with balsa wood. They were judged on how much weight it could carry before it collapsed.

SOCIAL

Historical Society Trip To Mark Twain, Harriet Stowe Homes

Quincy Historical Society is offering a trip Tuesday, June 26 to two New England literary landmarks, the Mark Twain and Harriet Beecher Stowe homes in Hartford, Conn., and lunch at historic Avon Old Farms Inn.

The Mark Twain house was built in 1874 and was the author's home for 17 years. During this time he wrote, among other works, Huckleberry Finn, The Prince and the Pauper and A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court.

The house itself, a 19-room, orange and black, turreted mansion, is considered a leading example of Victorian Gothic architecture. The first floor interiors were designed by Louis Comfort Tiffany.

The Harriet Beecher Stowe house, her home from 1873 to 1896, is decorated with her paintings and drawings and features an 1870's "state-of-the-art" kitchen. An exhibit gallery presents material on Stowe's life and novels, particularly Uncle Tom's Cabin, and on the social issues with which she was associated.

Lunch at Avon Old Farms Inn will include soup and popovers and a buffet of hot and cold entrees.

The trip, via Interstate Coach bus, will depart the Adams Academy at 7:15 a.m. and will return approximately 5:30 p.m. The price of the trip is $50 per person for Historical Society members and $55 for non-members. Registration is limited to 46 persons.

For more information or to register, call the Historical Society at 617-773-1144.

Harriet Messcher New QMC Development Director

Quincy Medical Center CEO Christine Schuster announces Harriet Messcher has joined the hospital as the Vice President of Development.

She will oversee the QMC Foundation, the hospital's fund-raising organization, as well as the Volunteers and the QMC Auxiliary. She will play a key role in Quincy Medical Center's bid to become a self-sustaining not-for-profit private hospital.

Messcher came to QMC in May with 18 years of experience in implementation of highly successful fund-raising campaigns. Most recently, she served as Director of Development at

HARRIET MESSCHER

George Washington University School of Public Health and Health Services. In this role she successfully achieved the highest one-year philanthropic support for the school since its inception in 1997. She also was part of the GWU Medical Center team in a University-wide, eight-year $500 million comprehensive capital campaign. She has served in a variety of development positions in non-profit organizations.

She was the Director of Development for the Massort Foundation and Associate National Director of Development for the B'Nai B'rith Foundation of the United States.

Now a resident of Quincy, she lived and raised her family in Sharon for nearly 20 years. She received her Bachelor of Arts Cum Laude from Brooklyn College.

Council Lauds Metzler, Sterling For MCAS Efforts

Sterling Middle School Principal Earl Metzler recently received a commendation from the City Council in recognition of his efforts and the school's improved results on the state-wide MCAS tests.

"I am certainly honored to stand before you on behalf of Sterling Middle School," Metzler told councillors at the start to their June 4 meeting.

Sterling Middle School was recently honored as one of only four "exemplary" middle schools by the state Department of Education, meaning that other middle schools across the state striving for MCAS improvement will use Sterling as a model.

The Department of Education, Metzler noted, identified three key components to Sterling's dramatic improvement: an inclusionary model of teaching; longer "block" scheduling; and efforts at student empowerment.

Moreover, Metzler said, the school has maintained

"an appreciation for the arts" while at the same time championing the belief that "more math equals more diplomas."

In response to questions from councillors, Metzler added that, while scores were heading in the right direction, there still had not been enough improvement from the school's baseline scores.

"We'd like all our category scores to be in the proficient level," Metzler said.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico praised Metzler for a job "more than well done" and Sterling itself as a "school that has really turned the corner."

Effective with the high school Class of 2003, passing scores on the MCAS test will be a state requirement for graduation.

UNDERINFLATION FEARS

There has been much recent attention paid to the fact that underinflated tires flex too much and build up heat, which can lead to blowouts and tread separation. According to tire safety experts, just four or five pounds per square inch (psi) too low can prove dangerous. Thus, with such a narrow margin of safety, vehicle owners are encouraged to check the air pressure in their tires at least on a monthly basis. Instead of relying on the recommended pressure noted on the tires, follow the car manufacturer's pressure recommendation. This can usually be found on a metal plaque on the driver's side door pillar, inside the glove compartment, or in the owner's manual.

Keep your tires at their recommended inflation and check them often. The safety of our customers and their children is important to us here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO and we want you to be informed. For maintenance and repairs, we provide friendly, personal service and have the latest test equipment and more important, outstanding ASE Certified service technicians. You can trust your auto repairs to us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: For accuracy's sake, consider the purchase of a tire gauge and test the pressure of each of the tires when they are cold, prior to being driven.

USS Salem Praised By Naval Inspector

The USS Salem won praise for its volunteer crew and overall ship's condition during a recent visit by Lt. Timothy Renshaw of the United States Naval Reserve, a member a NAVSEA inspection team which will conduct a full inspection next year.

In a letter dated June 12 and sent to Joanne Condon-Walsh, executive director of the USS Salem, Renshaw expressed his appreciation of the assistance given May 19 and 20 by crew members Joseph Walsh, Robert Tate, and Frank Carlson, noting that crew members "made it clear they were there to assist us with anything we needed, which proved to be invaluable during our inspection."

Speaking to the condition of naval museum/ship itself, Lt. Renshaw said:

"The inspection team unanimously agreed it is nothing short of remarkable that the USS Salem is in such good material condition, especially considering the minimal volunteer crew and funds that she has available for support. Our hats are off to you and the crew for the outstanding efforts that are ongoing aboard ship.

"Results of the dry-dock availability are notable and effort to preserve the hull enjoys the USS Salem for years to come."

An Open Letter to our Mayor, City Councillors, and the Residents of Quincy

Dear Mr. Mayor, City Councillors and Residents:

The last couple of years we have noticed a dramatic skyrocketing of rents and purchase prices for houses in Quincy. Many of our parishioners, and residents in our city, are finding it more and more difficult to pay the escalating prices for housing. Although there has been development of housing in Quincy in recent years, all of it has been market rate luxury housing, with very little or no housing for people in the middle class, people like teachers, fire and police workers, and people earning $40,000.00 to $45,000.00 per year. This is a serious crisis.

We are very pleased that the Quincy City Council has proposed an inclusionary zoning ordinance for our city to help with the crisis of the lack of affordable housing. However, the proposed inclusionary zoning ordinance is very weak, and if enacted as is, it will do very little to address the present crisis. We would like to see the proposed ordinance amended and strengthened so that it will indeed provide some affordable housing in the near future. Specifically, we would request that the ordinance indicate that affordable housing be MANDATED (and not merely considered); and that ALL new housing developments of 10 units or more, be subject to the ordinance (and not merely Planned Unit Developments, PUD's.) Likewise, because of the scarcity of developable land in Quincy, we would hope that the ordinance would be amended to say that developers provide that the 10% of the units that are in the affordable category be ON-SITE (and not off-site, or an equivalent cash contribution.)

Last September our Archbishop, Bernard Cardinal Law, issued a report based on a year long study by professionals at Northeastern University. One of the major recommendations of Cardinal Law was that ALL cities and towns in Massachusetts mandate that 10% of all new housing in their community be in the affordable housing category. We write to encourage Quincy to make this commitment with a strong, mandated inclusionary zoning ordinance, so that with cities and towns across Massachusetts we can be part of the solution to the crisis in affordable housing. Hopefully, city elected officials, developers, clergy, parishioners and residents will all pull together to help solve this affordable housing crisis.

We encourage parishioners and residents to write or call Mayor Sheets and all the City Councillors to express their heartfelt concern and support for the passage of a strong, mandated inclusionary zoning ordinance. Likewise we urge parishioners and residents to attend the public hearing meeting on Tuesday, June 26, 2001 at 7:00 P.M. in the City Council Chamber to show their support for a strong amended inclusionary zoning ordinance.

And let us all pray for divine wisdom and guidance in this important matter.

City Allocates $300,000 To Plant New Trees

Mayor James Sheets has allocated $300,000 for a Fall 2001 tree-planting contract.

The special appropriation was approved Monday night by the City Council.

The allocation will be used by the Park and Forestry Department to plant approximately 1,000 trees city-wide this fall and will be the most extensive municipal tree planting in three years.

"The planting of trees is an investment in the future of our city," Sheets said. "Trees in our neighborhoods improve the quality of all our lives by providing oxygen, screening dust from the air we breathe, and providing shade in the summer."

"They also add significant economic and aesthetic value to all our neighborhoods."

The Park and Forestry Department has compiled a list of tree-planting requests from residents over the past two years. A tree-planting request must be initiated from the specific resident at a requested address.

Residents wishing to request a tree planting in front of their property should call the Park and Forestry Department at (617) 376-1251.

The Park and Forestry Department has compiled a list of appropriate tree species to be planted. Such factors as salt tolerance, root size, underground interference, height, and stress vulnerability will be considered in choosing the specific tree species chosen.

"Because of the support from Mayor Sheets, we can greatly improve our city's tree-lined streets," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. "We need to have a regular tree-planting program in order to replace the older trees that are removed every year due to death, disease, and decay."

"This appropriation will help us maintain our city's invaluable urban forest."

Quincy was named "Tree City USA" in 2000 by the National Arbor Day Foundation, the fifth consecutive year the city had received this recognition for its commitment to maintaining its urban forest.

Steven Crosby Named Collegiate Scholar

Steven Crosby of Quincy has been named an All-American Collegiate Scholar by the United States Achievement Academy.

Crosby, who attends Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, was nominated for the national award by Christine Corsello, Dean.

The USAA has established the All-American Collegiate Award Program to recognize superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. Eligible scholars must earn a 3.3 or higher grade point average.

Crosby, son of Frederick and Dorothy Crosby of Quincy, will appear in the All-American Collegiate Yearbook, which is published annually.

Hanley: Rename Snug Harbor School For Supt. Creedon

Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley introduced a resolution at Monday night's meeting of the City Council seeking council support to rename the Snug Harbor Elementary School in honor of retiring Superintendent of Schools Eugene Creedon.

The resolve, referred to the Education Committee of the council for further discussion, requests that the council "strongly recommend" to Mayor James Sheets and the School Committee that the school be renamed the Eugene W. Creedon Elementary School.

Hailing Creedon as an "outstanding educator and leader" in the city since he began teaching at the Quincy Point Junior High School in 1996, Hanley's resolve lists many school accomplishments under Creedon's leadership, including class size reduction, after school enrichment activities, and improvements and additions to the infrastructure of the Quincy Public Schools.

To Receive Good Scout Awards Burke, Bosworth To Be Honored At Mayor's Boy Scout Breakfast

Atty. George Burke and Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth will be honored as the 2001 Good Scout Award recipients by Mayor James Sheets and the Boston Minuteman Council of Boys Scouts.

The awards will be presented at the Mayor's Annual Boy Scout Breakfast Thursday, June 28, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. aboard the USS Salem at the Fore River Shipyard.

Burke and Bosworth were selected for the honor "based on their community mindness, charitable nature and overall character that exemplifies the Scout Oath and Law."

Burke, founder of a North Quincy law firm that bears his name, has had a long, distinguished political career. He served as president of the City Council, state representative, Norfolk County District Attorney, president of the Massachusetts District Attorney's Association and delegate to both the state and national Democratic conventions.

He recently won wide recognition for rescuing the historic Col. John Quincy tankard from a New York auction block with a bid of $160,000 to bring it back to Quincy. The tankard was bequeathed to First Parish Church by the man after whom Quincy was named.

A graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Burke was an outstanding basketball player there, winning All-East, All-New England, All-Boston Garden and All-American honors. The Sports Hall of Fame and the Most Valuable Player Cup for baseball are named in his honor at UMass. His uniform number "32" has been retired and he was recently awarded the Chancellor's Medal, the school's highest honor.

Burke became a Boston Celtics rookie but decided on a career in the court of law rather than on a basketball court.

Bosworth founded The Quincy Sun in September,

GEORGE BURKE

HENRY BOSWORTH

1968 as "Historic Quincy's Hometown Weekly Newspaper," dedicating its entire coverage to Quincy.

He started his newspaper career at the then Quincy Patriot Ledger and went on to The Boston Traveler before returning to Quincy to establish The Quincy Sun.

A World War II veteran, he saw action aboard the destroyer USS Cogswell in the Pacific before coming back to pick up his newspaper career.

He headed up the coverage of a murder trial that won a Pulitzer Prize nomination for the Ledger and covered the top stories of that period.

He joined The Boston Traveler in 1956 where he covered the Brink's robbery trial, President John F. Kennedy's presidential election, wrote the column "Inside South Shore" and wrote the story about a little lonely boy known as "Francis X" at the Lakeville Sanitarium that inspired the start of the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon.

A telethon pledge center was later set up at The Quincy Sun in memory of Francis who died at age 18 and with the help of many organizations and individuals, raised over $1 million to fight muscular dystrophy. The Sun still helps today.

The Sun has won New England Press and Massachusetts Press Association awards, numerous community service awards and was designated a Blue Ribbon Newspaper by the National Newspaper Foundation in Washington, D.C.

Bosworth has received a number of awards himself: Quincy Jewish War Veterans Citizen of the Year Award; the Salvation Army's first Community Service Award, the James R. McIntyre Humanitarian Award, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Member of the Year Award, an honorary degree from Quincy College for his contributions to journalism and the Good Shepherd Maria Droste Agency Family Award.

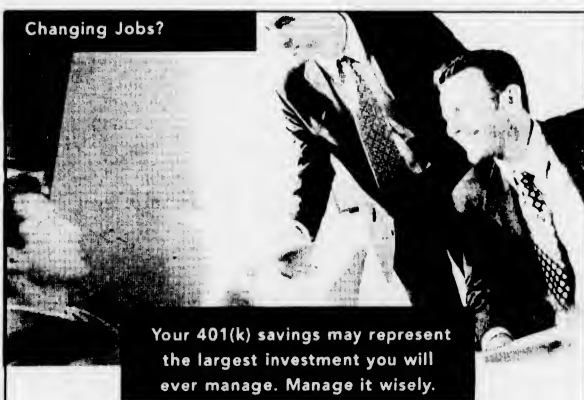

"Although both men followed different paths in life, it is apparent that both were and continue to be destined for success," said Sheets. "Their contribution and modesty make them a great asset and wonderful role models for our community."

Those wishing to attend the breakfast are asked to contact the mayor's office at 617-376-1990.

Century 21's Donna Dakin Earns 'The Extra Mile Award'

Century 21 Annex Realty recently presented "The Extra Mile" Award to Sales Associate Donna Dakin.
The award recognizes an agent who goes above and beyond the required duties of a real estate agent.
Dakin received the award for taking on a listing with difficult circumstances which required many hours of hands-on service for a long period of time. In addition to bringing the sale to a satisfactory conclusion, she also helped the owners move.

Arthur Foley, Phyllis Rudnick, and Mary Dawson, broker owners of Century 21 Annex, presented Dakin with her citation at a recent sales meeting for their entire staff in Quincy and Hanover.

GETTING READY TO SELL.

While no one expects perfection, it is a pretty safe bet to say that most buyers are looking for homes that are in the best possible shape. To this end, real estate agents recommend that sellers spend reasonable sums for cosmetic touchups. Aside from painting interior and exterior walls, this means taking a good critical look at the kitchen and bathrooms. These are the rooms that sell homes. Drastic remodeling in preparation for a sale is not necessary, as most buyers prefer to make their own design decisions. Instead of ripping out cabinets and moving walls, therefore, sellers should concentrate their efforts on modernizing fixtures, refinishing cabinets and replacing worn flooring and countertops.

If you're selling a home, it's to your advantage to make strategic improvements to the interior so that prospective buyers feel at ease about the amount of initial investment they would need to make when moving in. At FRACENTRAL REAL ESTATE, our goal is to bring buyers and sellers together to the mutual satisfaction of both. We provide sellers with an accurate market analysis, advise them on how to increase the home's appeal and value, and coordinate open houses. Are you currently renting? With interest rates at their lowest in years, you may be able to afford the home of your dreams and have a monthly mortgage equal to or less than your monthly rent. Call us at 617-328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

THINK Unless the neighborhood standards include a pool or hot tub, do not invest in these features with the expectation of recouping your investment when you sell your house.

HN Maritime Center To Open June 25

Mayor James Sheets announces the official opening of the new Houghs Neck Maritime Center.

Beginning Monday, June 25, the new facility, which has been completely renovated from its days as the former Hurley's Boathouse, will feature convenient hours for the summer season: 4 p.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

The Maritime Center, Sheets said, will serve as a new command post for the local community policing program and headquarters for the Quincy Police Marine Patrol and Harbormas-ter Department. Two officers from the Marine Patrol will be dispatched from the location to ensure a proper presence on the waterways both during the day and evening shifts, providing assistance and answering any maritime-related law enforcement questions residents may have.

The Maritime Center will also offer many services to the general public, including: a meeting place for community projects; educational programs regarding marine activities; a free public boat launch; and ample parking.

Summer employees will be stationed at the building to provide assistance, beautify the grounds, and keep the center clean and in good order.

As an additional convenience, ice and soda will be sold on the premises.

The dream of a the Houghs Neck Maritime Center has become a reality and promises to be a success in its inaugural season, said Sheets, who recognized the collective efforts of the Houghs Neck community, former Council President and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, and current Ward 1

Councillor Gregory Hanley as well as the work of the Citizens Advisory Council and Quincy Police Officer James Silcox.

Father & Son Presidents Series At Adams Mansion

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park announces the 2001 Lecture Series June 25 through June 29 will explore the relationship and responsibilities of the only Father and Son Presidents — the Adamses and the Bushes — portrayed in recently published books and through first person interpretation.

The five-day series entitled "Father & Son Presidents" will be held at 11 a.m. each day at the Carriage House on the grounds of the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy. Limited parking is available. The programs are free and are approximately one hour in length. Refreshments will precede all lectures.

In a week of lectures by nationally renowned experts and historical dramatic reenactments, the Adam National Historical Park will examine the timeless nature of the Adams family's contributions to the United States of America.

The schedule:

Monday, June 25: Like Father, Like Son: The Adamses in the White House. Richard Norton Smith, director Gerald R. Ford Foundation.

Tuesday, June 26: John Adams Alive. Steve Pearlman, park ranger from Independence National Historical Park, brings John Adams to life in an interactive performance that allows the audience to witness the timeless wisdom of the man Thomas Jefferson called "the colossus of independence."

Wednesday, June 27: John Quincy Adams and the Perils of Presidential Parenting. Lynn Hudson Parsons, State University of New York Brockport. Book signing of John Quincy Adams.

Thursday, June 28: Q&W. Herbert Parmet, City University of New York. Book signing of George Bush: The Life of a Lone Star Yankee.

Friday, June 29: Son of Superman: The Importance of Being George W. Bush. Elizabeth Mitchell, former executive editor George Magazine. Book signing of W: Revenge of the Bush Administration.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

AVERTING THE NIGHTLY GRIND

Bruxism, the grinding and clenching of teeth, is thought to occur in approximately 15% of children and as many as 96% of adults. Aside from creating some frightening sounds, bruxism poses the danger of creating some problems for teeth and surrounding tissues. Consider that the average person who grinds his or her teeth has an average of five 8-second episodes per night, during which the average biting force exerted upon the teeth is 162 pounds per square inch. It is not hard to imagine that tooth sensitivity and wear, as well as joint and muscle fatigue, may occur as a result. Bruxism should be brought to the attention of the dentist in order to institute preventative measures.

Let us help you with answers to your questions about bruxism. Our dental team is committed to performing to his or her highest ability in order to achieve the optimum level of care. We believe that with preventative dental care, daily brushing and flossing, and a well-balanced diet, people can maintain their teeth and gums in good health well into their later years. Record 787 Participants Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run Raises $48,000 For ALS Research

A record-breaking 787 participants recently took part in the fourth annual Jimmy Kennedy Memorial Run for ALS at Veterans Memorial Stadium, which raised an all-time high of $48,000 for ALS research.

All proceeds will benefit the Cecil B. Day Center for Neuromuscular Research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

Also known as the Squirrel Run, the race memorializes Jimmy "Squirrel" Kennedy, a Quincy native who died in 1997 at age 31 of Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), better known as Lou Gehrig's Disease.

His father, Christopher, Quincy school committee member and former Dean of Students at Northeastern University, also died of the degenerative neuromuscular disease.

"The turnout was unbelievable," said co-director Marty Levenson, a childhood friend of Jimmy. "The weather was great. The field was filled with people. I think we have really turned the corner in making this a big event."

Jamie Gallagher of Hull was the overall winner of the five-mile run, crossing the finish line in 24:56. South Boston's Christina Robeson placed first among females, and 15th overall, with a time of 30:43.

Mark Costello took first place among Quincy residents, and 16th overall, finishing in 30:50.

Here are the other results of Quincy participants:

Kyle Costa, Kevin Donovan To Play In National Tournament

Kyle Costa and Kevin Donovan might want to trade in their basketball sneakers for a pair of blue suede shoes.

Members of the Bay State Magic, an AAU basketball team, the Quincy residents are heading to Memphis, Tenn., home of Elvis, to compete in a National Tournament beginning Saturday and running through July 1.

Comprised of seventh-grade boys, the Magic punched their ticket south when they placed fourth at the recent state finals. Under the direction of coach Kalon Jenkins, the team has practiced two nights a week and played in tournaments every weekend since March to get to this point.

Other team members are Jeremy Osborn (Marshfield), Mike Bernazani (Whitman), Winston Tuggles (Canton), Kyle Boyd (North Attleboro), Jeff Rodriguez (Sharon), Zac Solis (Sharon) and Barry Sheehan (Dedham).

Costa, a student at Sacred Heart School in North Quincy, and Donovan, a Central Middle School student, have built a solid resume recently. The two were teammates this past winter on the Sacred Heart (North Quincy) CYO team, which went undefeated during the regular season, finished first in the state and second at a regional tourney in Connecticut.

They also played together in the Patriot League against some of their current teammates. The team finished in second place as it had to split up for the final match when states for CYO and finals for the Patriot League were scheduled on the same day at the same time.

Registration Today, Friday For Instructional Swimming Lessons

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold two sessions for instructional swimming lessons this summer at Lincoln Hancock Community School pool.

Registration for the August session (July 30 to Aug. 17) is today (Thursday) at 9 a.m. and the July session (July 5-26) is tomorrow (Friday) at 9 a.m., and both at the Water Street entrance to the pool.

Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis and class size is limited. The Recreation Department will not accept pre-registration or phone registrations. Post-registration is accepted on a space available basis.

Classes will be held Monday through Friday. Instruction is for children age 6 and over who are Quincy residents.

The following classes are offered for both sessions and are conducted in accordance with the standards of the American Red Cross:

- Level I/II Water Exploration and Primary Skills.

- Level III Stroke Readiness.
- Level IV Stroke Development.
- Level V Stroke Refinement.
- Level VI Stroke Proficiency.

- Guard Start, a program for proficient swimmers ages 11-14 who wish to develop skills that lead to lifeguarding.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1395.

Recreation Department To Host Hershey National Track, Field Youth Program

The Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor the Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program by hosting a community meet, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Registration for the Quincy Meet will be held Tuesday, June 26 at 5:30 p.m. for boys and Wednesday, June 27 at 5:30 p.m. for girls, both at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The meets will begin at 6 p.m. after registration.

The program is open to boys and girls ages 9-14. Participants must show proof of age before they will be allowed to compete. The age of the participant shall be his/her age as of Dec. 31, 2001.

Both boys and girls will compete in three age groups: 9-10, 11-12 and 13-14. Those youngsters currently 8 years old, but who will turn 9 years old before Dec. 31, 2001 may compete in the 9-10 age group. Youngsters currently 14 years old who will turn 15 years old before Dec. 31, 2001 are not eligible.

Participants are not required to have previous track experience or be a member of a community track program. The meet is also open to participants from surrounding communities. There are no entry fees. Spikes and starting blocks are prohibited.

The Quincy Meet will be the first step in a competition that could result in a local athlete advancing to the National Championships in Hershey Park, Pa. New England champions are awarded an all-expense paid trip by Hershey Chocolate, the national sponsor.

"The philosophy of this program is to stimulate participation of all eligible children," Welch said. "It is no way to be construed as an all-star program. This event is run in cooperation with the National Recreation and Park Association and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sport. Quincy's Olympic bronze medal winner, Karen Cashman, was a five-year National Championship participant starting in the Quincy competition. I encourage our residents to take advantage of this excellent program."

The events are as follows:

- Ages 9-10, boys and girls: 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 4x100-yard relay, standing long jump and softball throw.

- Ages 11-12, boys and girls: 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 400-yard dash, 800-yard run, 4x100-yard relay, standing long jump and softball throw.

- Ages 13-14, boys and girls: 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 400-yard dash, 800-yard run, 1,600-yard run, 4x100-yard relay, standing long jump and softball throw.

Each participant may compete in up to three events. If three events are chosen, one event is required to be a field event.

Members of the Quincy Track Club will assist in conducting the local meets.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1395.

HIGHER 'N HIGHER: Quincy High sophomore Washington Morriset (left) receives a plaque from his coach, Scott King, honoring him as the New England high jump champion. Morriset jumped 6 feet, 8 inches at the recent New England Interscholastic Track and Field Championships in Hampton, N.H.

Captures N.E. High Jump Crown With Leap Of 6' 8"

Quincy High's Washington Morriset 'Highest' Jumper

Not only is he the best in the state, Washington Morriset is now the best high jumper in New England.

Only his second year in the sport, the Quincy High School sophomore concluded his storybook season with yet another first-place finish.

With a leap of 6 feet, 8 inches, Morriset captured the high jump crown at the recent New England Interscholastic Track and Field Championships in Hampton, N.H.

"He did a great job and proved he was the best in New England," said coach Scott King. "As a sophomore that's quite an accomplishment."

In addition to this latest achievement, Morriset also grabbed the top spot at the Freshman/Sophomore Invitational, the State Coaches League Championships and the Class B State Meet, and a second-place finish at the All-States under rainy conditions.

It has been a record-breaking spring for the Haitian native, who immigrated to Quincy two years ago with his family. Morriset jumped 6-9 twice this year, breaking the Freshman/Sophomore Invitational and State Coaches meet records as well as Quincy High's. His 6-8 performance at the OCL meet also set a new record.

"As far as his jumping, he is by far the best athlete I've had in my 10 years of coaching," King said.

Morriset showed signs of greatness last year as a freshman, winning the Old Colony League and Freshman/Sophomore championships, and finishing second at the State Meet and sixth at the State Coaches.

Volunteers Needed For MS Bike Tour

Over 300 volunteers are needed to support the WB56 Family First Great Mass Get-away MS Bike Tour to be held June 30 and July 1.

About 1,200 cyclists will ride 150 miles from Marina Bay in Quincy through South Shore coastal towns, including Cohasset and Plymouth, across the Bourne Bridge and on to Provincetown to help fund local programs for people with multiple sclerosis (MS).

Important volunteer jobs include drivers for route support, rest stop volunteers, registration workers, Saturday afternoon work crew at the Mass Maritime Academy, and Sunday work crew for the finish line in Provincetown.

Organized by the Central New England Chapter of the National MS Society, the 17th annual ride is known as one of the most well-planned and well-supported bike tours in the area.

Individuals and groups interested in volunteering should contact Brenda Barbour at 1-800-493-9255, ext. 135, or at brenda.barbour@mnmms.org.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Trigger Points Of Muscular Aches And Pains

By DR. MARTIN RIGBY

Man's muscular aches and pains are as old as the hills. Through time, trial and error many means have evolved to treat these maladies. Heating pads, lotions, exercise and even painkillers have all had their success stories.

A voluntary muscle—that which we have conscious control over—represents the largest organ in our body and accounts for some 40 percent of our body weight. There are close to 700 muscles in the human body that allow us to do such diverse things as run, jump, sew and play the violin. Yet the myofascial trigger point is a malady of the muscles that has practically been ignored by the various health care disciplines.

While trigger points have been around since before man walked upright, there had been little coordinated research about this problem before a woman named Janet Travell began to chronicle the subject.

Travell found that trigger points are muscular injuries created by four causes: acute muscular overload, fatigue, direct trauma and chilling. Any of these muscular insults can lead to physiologic changes within the muscle that can be further characterized by muscular strain, sensitized nerve endings, increased muscular activity in the area (more commonly known as spasms), or decreased circulation to the area. Even with an elementary understanding of the body, most people realize "reduced circulation" should cause concern. Exercise, various therapies and treatments all increase circulation, which in turn fosters regeneration and restoration of overused or injured muscles.

Trigger points are most often found in the postural muscles of the neck, shoulders, pelvic girdle or jaw muscles used for chewing. The shoulder muscles, those at the base of the skull, and the low back muscles are constantly under stress of modern life. Specific causes of muscular stress may include spending a day at your desk or computer, or performing a repetitive activity that requires your body to move continually in an asymmetrical pattern.

There are two types of trigger points: active and latent. An active trigger point is an area of soreness you are aware of, like the knot between your shoulder blades, which can drive you crazy. The latent trigger point exists below the level of consciousness. Many people suffering from latent trigger points will say, "I didn't know I had it until you touched it," when being evaluated for treatment.

There is a theory that latent trigger points may be responsible for some sleep disorders. A patient with a latent trigger point falls asleep in a comfortable position, rolls over onto the trigger point, activates it, feels the pain, and awakes moving off the trigger point wondering why they woke up.

Another characteristic of trigger points is that they have pain referral patterns. A pain referral pattern is when one touches an area of the body and pain is felt in another area of the body.

There are pain referral patterns for trigger points in the low back musculature that may be felt in the hip. In another pattern the trigger points in the muscles at the base of the skull refer pain to the forehead and temples. Trigger points in the pectoralis muscles of the chest may refer pain down the arm. Some trigger points can cause abnormal reflex responses. For example, they can cause a person to have teary eyes, goose bumps, increased sweating or increased salivation. Also trigger points can cause visual disturbances. In addition, trigger points in the neck muscles of a whiplash victim may cause dizziness, imbalance, ringing in the ears and distorted perception. These symptoms should be taken seriously and treated by a qualified health care professional.

Trigger points may present with a grainy type of feeling in a muscle or easily be recognizable as a palpable lump. Having someone press on a trigger point may elicit a "jump sign" from you, which means you jump away in pain. Or the person feeling the trigger point may note a fluttering in the muscle called the "twitch sign." A common symptom of a trigger point is a deep, achy feeling. It can be differentiated from a nerve disorder which has symptoms of numbness, tingling, burning, or pins and needles.

Relief can be obtained by a technique where pressure is applied to the trigger point for 5-30 seconds. You may experience some soreness for a day or two following the treatment, so it is a good idea to repeatedly press on the sore area. It may take a long while for a trigger point to clear up. In fact the cause of the trigger point, such as poor posture or repetitive trauma, must be addressed or the problem will continue.

While trigger points are not life threatening and many people resolve to "live with" their discomfort, the question is "Why?" Trigger points are treated easily. If they are ignored they detract from the quality of life and dilutes one's attention from the truly important things that one would like to accomplish.

Union Congregational

The Chancel Choir at Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, will conclude with a party at the Four's Restaurant, Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, today (Thursday).

The choir, under the direction of Rev. Martha Swanson and Robert Troup, organist, sang a wide range of sacred music this choir season including Gospel, contemporary, traditional and classical music. Members included Arthur Ferris and John Swanson (bass), Merimee Christopherson, Pat Maguire and Lori Ferris (alto), and Jane MacLeod O'Rourke, Louise Swanson, Carolyn Marks and Nelia Giarratani (soprano). These same individuals will provide a variety of solos and duets during the summer worship services and the regular choir season will resume in September.

The choir was recognized during the church's 10 a.m. Sunday service June 17, with Lori Ferris and Arthur Ferris receiving First Year Crosses. The beautiful red and gold crosses featuring a musical cleft are given to new choir members at the end of their first year.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. Arthur Bowler, one of the interim ministers, will be conducting the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

His sermon title is "Never Give Up." He will also have a brief message for the children.

Scripture reader will be Daniel Cosgrove. Bill and Connie MacDonald will serve as greeters.

Music for the service will feature Thomas Boyer, organist.

Harry and Ruth Byorkman will be hosting the Fellowship Hour which is held following the worship service. A one-room Church School will be available for children during the summer months. Childcare is available for infants and toddlers.

Quincy Point Congregational

Rev. Ann Suzedell, pastor, will preach the sermon "The Fugitive" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Paul Thistle is the director of the music and organist.

United Methodist

"Call Answering" will be the sermon title of guest speaker Daniel Bollen at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Ardys Peterson will serve as the lector.

The guest speaker will give the young people's message before they adjourn to the Sunday School rooms.

Following worship service, the Finance Committee will have a "Sandwich Salad" sampler luncheon in Susanna Wesley Hall.

For any further information, call 617-773-3319.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Rev. Alicia Corea will preach the sermon "Dare to be Different" at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

The worship service will be conducted by Beth Little, chairwoman of the Diaconate. A coffee hour will follow the service. All are welcome.

The annual meeting of the church will be held following the coffee hour. All church members are urged to be present.

Annual reports of clergy, officers, chairmen of boards and committees will be presented.

Evangelical Church

Rev. William Donahue will preach at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday at Evangelical Church of Atlantic, 65 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

His sermon topic will be "Living Victoriously. Is It Attainable? Part 2."

Childcare is available during service times. The church is handicap accessible.

Also scheduled Sunday: Prayer meeting, 7:30 to 8:30 a.m.; Children's Cinema & Breakfast, Teens Sunday School, Adult Bible Class and Discipleship Classes, 10 to 11 a.m.; and Children's Sunday School, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Covenant Congregational

Dr. David Sundell, interim pastor, will preach the sermon "Good News for Broken Hearts" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, corner of Whitwell and Granite Sts.

LAURA POWERS of Quincy, a 2001 graduate of Notre Dame Academy High School in Hingham, was the recipient of the first annual Rev. James F. Curtin Scholarship, presented by Rev. Curtin during the 50th anniversary Celebration Mass of his ordination to the priesthood. The Celebration Mass was held at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Board Requests Removal Of Items From Cemetery

The Cemetery Board of Managers requests the removal of all items from gravesites at the city of Quincy's cemeteries by June 30.

The only exception will be planted flowers.

This will ensure that the cemeteries will be properly maintained and safe for visitors, the board said.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

I never feel like not trying any more? Who doesn't. People say they've had it; they work and struggle and just get nowhere. So they become discouraged. . . . It is only human to feel discouraged at times but you should never think about giving up. . . . in many cases the low moment is the beginning of new things.

SCOTT DEWARE

Abraham Lincoln once said that people are about as happy in this world as they make up their minds to be. Plant that seed in your mind and give it every opportunity to grow and flourish.

All of us at some time or another have some castles in our minds into which we slip at the first opportunity. Self-pity is one such castle and the disposition to believe that the world is against us is another.

Above all remember that most of our troubles lie within our hearts. We may want to blame the circumstances and people which surround us every day. Out of the heart proceed the issues of life. Get right on the inside and the outside will take care of itself.

 JUNE 20 & 21 • CALL FOR RESERVATIONS

October 22) Your financial aspects continue to dominate. There still might be problems to work out from past business decisions before you can make plans for the future.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You enter a more positive period, both personally and professionally, but trouble spots can appear. Avoid them by keeping lines of communication open.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't fret about the competition. Since Taurus rules the throat, you could have the advantage of conveying your ideas in tones that are sure to please your listeners.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Of course, as a Gemini, you love to talk. But watch your words very carefully this week. What you say could come back to cause you some unpleasant moments.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Grabby-Crabby side of you dominates. You want it all. But try to temper that urge to splurge so you can take advantage of an upcoming investment opportunity.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Spread that natural sunshine that all you loving Leos and Leonas radiate, and brighten up those gloomy hearts around you. Also, expect a visit from someone from your past.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You like things neat and tidy. That's fine for your closets and desktops, but you need to be more flexible in your relationships. Give a little, and you'll get a lot back.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your financial aspects continue to dominate. There still might be problems to work out from past business decisions before you can make plans for the future.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Travel plans might be up in the air — literally — now that your spouse or partner would rather fly than drive. A thorny workplace issue is close to being resolved.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Use your natural leadership qualities to guide a troublesome workplace project through to completion. A personal relationship is smooth sailing all the way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Aspects for moving to a new location appear to be increasingly favorable. Meanwhile, your loyalty to a friend soon pays off in ways you never expected.

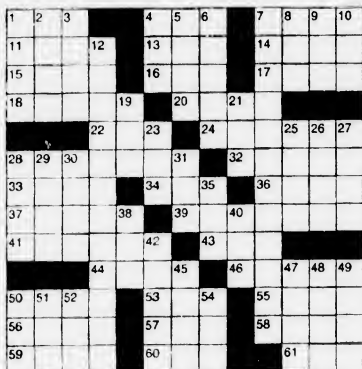

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your ability to be flexible helps get you through changes you hadn't expected, either on the job or at home. Remember to take things one step at a time.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your creative talents are put to the test as you attempt to deal with a suddenly changed situation. It will be up to you to devise a way to work it out successfully.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for bringing people together. While you love to travel, you also love being at home, especially if you can be surrounded by your family.

Walter Hannon III of Quarry Hills Associates and Don Uvanitte of Allied American Insurance Agency, co-chairmen of the Quincy Medical Center Golf Committee, announce the committee members for the hospital's 12th annual Golf & Tennis Tournament on Monday, July 16 at the Wollaston Golf Club.

Committee members include:

Charles Arienti, Ernest Arienti, Bill Barron, Francis X. Bellotti Sr., Michael G. Bellotti, Robert Borr, Larry

Butler, Betty Cifuni, Eric Cohen, MD, Rick Cove, Robert Curry, Tim Fallon, John Farmer, Police Chief Thomas Frane, William Frates, MD, Norma Gacicia, George Gales Jr., MD.

Joseph Goodwin, Mark Gronberg, Paul Harold, Frederick Heller, MD; Michael McFarland, James Mullaney, Arthur Murphy, Kathy Palmer, Renee Picard, Peter Racicot, Sheikh Rahman, Christine Schuster QMC CEO; Guy Spinelli, MD; Stewart Steele, Mary Sweeney, Rep. Stephen Tobin.

The tournament enables area corporations, local physicians and hospital employees to show their support for quality health care at Quincy Medical Center by coming together for an unforgettable day of networking, relaxation and friendly competition.

For more information about sponsorship opportunities and/or participation in the day's activities, contact the Quincy Medical Center Foundation at 617-376-5493 or 617-376-5495.

Jimmy Mullaney Leads Graeber & Davis

Jimmy Mullaney collected four singles to lead Graeber and Davis to a 15-4 win over Feenan Financial in recent Babe Ruth International league action.

Mark Pepjonovich, Bobby Leahy and Kellen Losi each had a pair of hits, Babe Ruth International

while Cris Mercurio smacked a triple. Mike O'Neil and Mike Saville scored two runs apiece. Losi pitched five innings for the win and Joe Ceurvals closed the game with two perfect innings.

For Feenan Financial, Brian Donelin and Alex Mendez each had a hit. Steve Maggio scored two runs and Robert Gardner shined defensively.

Youth Soccer Camp At Fore River Field

Quincy Youth Soccer and NOGA Soccer have teamed up to provide a week-long soccer camp this summer at Fore River Field.

The camp will be held Aug. 6-10 and is open to all Quincy Youth Soccer players regardless of ability. Players ages 4-11 are invited to the first session from 9 a.m. to noon and players 12 and over are invited to the second session from 4 to 7 p.m. All children will initially be grouped by age and then by ability.

As part of the camp program, the NOGA Soccer coaches will also run free clinics for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

NOGA is regarded as one of the premier soccer coaching organizations in the United States, with over 150 coaches who work with 50,000 of America's soccer youth every summer. All staff members hold national coaching licenses from the U.S. and the United Kingdom and many are also qualified teachers.

For more information or to receive a registration form, call director Graham Stafford at 617-479-6122.

New England Women's Baseball Doubleheader At Adams Field Sunday

The New England Women's Baseball League will make its first-ever appearance in Quincy Sunday, June 24, in a double-header at Adams Field beginning at 2 p.m.

Four teams — the Express, Cougars, Robins and Blitz — will participate and the players will sign autographs between games.

Prior to the games, there will be a throwing and baseball clinic for girls ages 10 and up at 10 a.m. The only requirement is that each girl brings a baseball.

Initiated through the efforts of Chris Lindetborg and Len Dawson, the league recently started its third season.

The interest in women's baseball has been highlighted this year by the International Tournament that will be played in July in Toronto, Canada. Many players of the NEWBL took part in tryouts for the team that will represent the United States in the tourney.

South Shore ARC Golf Tournament June 26 At Lakeville Country Club

The 14th annual South Shore ARC Golf Tournament will be held Tuesday, June 26 at the Lakeville Country Club.

Funds raised will help underwrite programs and direct services provided by South Shore ARC (Association for Retarded Citizens).

"Our goal is to outdo last year's tournament by having more fun and raising even more money for South Shore ARC in their 50th anniversary year," said Quincy's Loretta M. Oliva, vice president/loan servicing officer for South Shore Savings Bank, who is tourney co-chair along with Kathleen Bailey of Cohasset.

The 165-yard ninth hole will be designated the "South Shore ARC Dream Hole," where someone can win a million dollars, a Buick automobile compliments of South Shore Buick, and the closest to the pin within six inches will win $1,000. Another hole will feature a $5,000 savings bond sponsored by David and Liz Potter.

South Shore Savings is corporate sponsor and Braintree Cooperative Bank is low net prize sponsor. Fallon Ambulance Services and Mass State Knights of Columbus are sponsoring the chicken barbecue. After the barbecue, there will be an auction with Dan Flynn of Quincy as volunteer auctioneer, and entertainment by New England's own "Rodney Dangerfield."

Other committee members include Jean and Lou Bailey of Cohasset; Leo DelVecchio, Norfolk Mechanical; Robert N. Gramm, RG Manufacturing; Frank S. Lagrotteria, chairman of South Shore Savings Bank Board; Norman Racicot, Fallon Ambulance; and George Mathieson, South Shore ARC.

Interested golfers and sponsors should contact George Mathieson at 781-335-3023, ext. 120.

Quincy Improves To 3-1; Morrisette Struggling

After four games, both the Morrisette and Quincy legion baseball teams are heading in opposite directions from just a year ago.

Quincy pulled out a 3-2 win over Milton Monday night at Adams Field to improve to 3-1, matching its win total from last year's 3-17 campaign.

Morrisette, on the other hand, continues to struggle at the plate as it was no-hit last Friday in a 10-0 loss to Braintree, dropping them to 1-3. Last year it was 3-1.

Quincy travels to Weymouth tonight (Thursday) and tomorrow it heads to Braintree. Morrisette played Canton yesterday and will travel to Randolph tomorrow. On Saturday night, the two local teams will meet for the first time at 7:30 at Adams Field.

Legion Baseball

In the Milton game, Mike Feetham picked up the win, allowing two runs on seven hits in a complete-game effort. He fanned seven and walked only two. Feetham also went 2 for 3 at the plate with an RBI and a run scored.

Brian Thornton and Chris Lockhead knocked in the other runs. Wayne Moynihan made a spectacular diving catch in center field in the seventh inning to prevent a Milton rally. "One of the finest catches I have ever seen," Benn said.

Quincy topped Cohasset, 6-3, last Wednesday at home. Conrad Leger went the distance to earn the win, striking out seven and yielding nine hits and two walks. Ryan Murphy went 3 for 4 with a double and run scored. Moynihan went 2 for 4 with a double and an RBI, and Pat Jaehing added an RBI single.

In Morrisette's loss, Keith Doherty missed his scheduled start as he had to pitch in the high school all-star game. Catcher Tom Hughes took his spot and lasted two innings. Steve Pizzi, Rob Muollo and Joe Thorley all pitched in relief.

Again, the real problem was the offense which couldn't figure out Braintree's Nick Angelini. Morrisette is sitting just .161 as a team and it hopes that Brian O'Hanley's return from B.C. High, fresh off its state championship, will jump-start its stagnant offense.

Wisialko & Associates Defeat South Shore Buick

Wisialko and Associates recently knocked off South Shore Buick, 21-8, in the first round of the Mary Pratt Softball playoffs.

Looking to capture the title for the fifth straight year, Wisialko and Associates was led by Casey Lorman (3 for 4, home run), Lisa Schifone (3 for 4, triple) and Marilyn Power (3 for 4, double). Ashley McLassac picked up the win and Mary Bloomer (7-1) finished out the game.

Kerri McAttee has played great defense at third base and catcher all year, while second basemen Marissa Powers and center fielder Deanna Laccabucci have also shined in the field. Felicia Avelante has a team-high 10 triples and Kellyanne Moore has provided clutch hits down the stretch.

In other action:

West All-Stars 3

East All-Stars 2

The West rallied for two runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to knock off the East, 3-2, in the Mary Pratt Softball All-Star Game at McCoy Field.

Nicole Murry earned MVP honors, stroking a triple and single and robbing East's Kerri McAttee of a hit with a sensational catch in center field.

Pitchers Rachel and Rebi Sorensen combined for 13 strikeouts and only one walk. Jessica Carella and Michelle Boyd played well defensively.

For the East, Lisa Schifone was the team's MVP with a double and a single, and strong defensive play. Casey Hannon added a single. May Ho played well in the field. Mary Bloomer and Theresa Maconochie pitched well, combining for 10 strikeouts.

In other action:

Everlasting Engraving 17

Mansfield & Nolan 6

Rachel Sorensen struck out nine to pick up the win as Everlasting Engraving (13-1) finished the regular season in first place. Michelle Boyd singled and doubled, while Kerry Power and Christine Perry added hits.

For Mansfield & Nolan, pitcher Rose Bell fanned seven. Danielle LaRose, Kendra Ciccone and Michele Repucci each had a hit.

Everlasting Engraving 15

Wisialko & Associates 7

Rachel Sorensen punched out 17 and walked three to pick up the win. Michelle Boyd powered the offense with four hits, including a home run and a double. Kelly Barden (triple) and Stephanie Stone (double) each had two hits. Stone made a nice catch in right-center field.

For Wisialko, Lisa Schifone smacked a triple and a double and Casey Lorman added a double. Mary Bloomer pitched well.

Everlasting Engraving 22

St. Moritz 12

Christine Perry ripped two doubles and Kelly Barden added a triple to pace the offense. Rebi Sorensen fanned 11 to earn the win.

For St. Moritz, Caitlyn Miller had two hits and Alysia DiMuzio played well in the field.

MWRA Awards Railroad Contract To Twin Rivers

The Fore River Railroad in Quincy will be operated by neighboring Twin Rivers Technologies beginning July 1 and the new operating contract will generate an additional $300,000 in revenue for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

"This is a positive for both us and the ratepayers," said Barbara Gottschalk, the MWRA's interim executive director. "It allows us to ensure optimal freight-rail services while also maximizing revenue."

The contract was awarded after a lengthy bidding process wherein a selection of 10 total bidders was narrowed down, first to five qualified firms and then eventually to one. The firms involved were competing to offer the Fore River Railroad the highest percentage of revenue.

The Fore River Railroad Corporation is owned by MWRA. It came as part of the purchase of the Fore River Staging Area in 1987 from General Dynamics. The railroad is approximately 2.7 miles long and extends from the Twin Rivers Technologies Plant to the interchange with CSX Transportation in Braintree.

The railroad serves two purposes. It is used, in large part, by Twin Rivers Technologies to transport freight cars full of fatty-acids which are produced at their plant in Quincy. Those acids are used to make different kinds of soap.

The MWRA utilizes the railroad to transport pelletized fertilizer which is produced at its sludge-to-fertilizer facility at Fore River Shipyard.

Since 1992, the Quincy Bay Terminal Company has run the railroad.

Red Cross Babysitter's Training

The American Red Cross in Quincy is offering a Babysitter's Training course for 11-14 year olds beginning July 17.

Participating youth are trained in safety, basic childcare, safe play, first aid and critical emergency action skills.

Course cost is $50, and includes a nylon zippered bag containing first aid supplies, flashlight, notepad and Babysitters Handbook.

The course will run Tuesday, July 17 through Thursday, July 19 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

To register, call the American Red Cross at 617-770-2600 or stop by the Red Cross Quincy office at 1495 Hancock St.

Registrations must be pre-paid.

Quincy which caused a lawsuit to be initiated against the city by the developer of the huge Highpoint apartment complex on Quarry Street. The city of Quincy lost millions of dollars in neighborhood traffic and street improvements, and lost millions of dollars in building and license fees.

• "The Mayor's delegation of his authority to subordinates and advisors caused the finances of Quincy City Hospital to deteriorate over a five year period, and forced the city to accept a bailout plan, placing the cost of the bailout on the overburdened taxpayers of Quincy.

• "The poorly negotiated Quarry Hills Golf Course project. The city of Quincy owned the land and negotiated an ill-advised deal which will benefit contractors and developers at the expense of the taxpayers. Quincy will only receive 10% of the net income, and no real estate taxes for 50 years."

Phelan said, "Quincy cannot afford two more years of poor judgment and lack of leadership. The time for change is now."

Phelan was raised in Quincy as one of eight children. He attended Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, Central Middle School, and is a graduate of North Quincy High School where he was elected NQH basketball team captain. He is a cum laude graduate of Suffolk University Law School and a practicing Quincy attorney.

Phelan is married to the former Tracey Tobin and they have four children: Rachel, 11; Brianne, 9; Kerry, 4; and William Arthur, 2.

He is the son-in-law of former Mayor and Quincy Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin and brother-in-law of state Rep. Stephen Tobin.

Phelan will kick off his campaign Thursday, June 28 at 6 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry St.

municipal projects, and for his department.

"We're breaking new ground," said White, who added his first action would be to confer with the Solicitor's Office on the matter.

After hearing testimony from both the developer and union representatives Monday night as well as during a previous hearing May 21, councillors concluded that Roseland/Faxon Woods LLC, through its contractor Peabody Construction of Braintree and sub-contractors, had not provided prevailing wage to at least some of its full-time workers on the project site, which has been under construction since the fall of 2000.

James Coyle, a business agent for the Ironworkers Union and president of the South Shore Building Trades Council, testified that at least two full time workers of subcontractor Turner Brothers, LLC had been paid roughly $17 per hour at the job site for work which should be in the $40 per hour range.

Coyle — who was joined in testimony Monday night by Michael Cheney, former city councillor and current consultant to the South Shore Building Trades, and Kirt Fordyce of the New England Regional Council of Carpenters — also rejected claims by Sanford Matathia, the developer's attorney, that the developer could not obtain an appropriate prevailing wage schedule for the project.

"Had I known it was such a hard document to come by, I would have brought along copies of it," said Coyle.

Fordyce brought along four signed documents from Turner employees affirming that they had not been paid prevailing wage. For reasons of confidentiality, the documents were handed directly to Roseland's Matathia and were not entered as public documents.

In defense of the developer, Matathia presented oral and written arguments examining each of the REO provisions and detailing how Roseland/Faxon Woods LLC had satisfied the language of the provisions.

Repeatedly Matathia emphasized that, being a private developer, Roseland attempted but could not obtain appropriate prevailing wage schedules from state authorities.

The real issue was not the developer's adherence to the REO language but whether the intent of the council and manner of enforcement were accurately spelled out in the permit, said Matathia, who urged councillors to "specify the intent with greater clarity."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who sparred verbally with Matathia during several stages of the meeting, expressed his disapproval that, after almost 30 days to prepare a response to the charges, the developer's attorney had not reviewed medical records or payrolls firsthand to substantiate claims of REO adherence.

Pointing out that contractors and sub-contractors were not likely to disclose their own violations, Raymondi called Matathia's assurances from such groups "double hearsay."

'No-Need' Committee Meeting

The "No-Need" Committee, which seeks the overturning of a beer and wine license recently granted to Tedeschi Food Shop at 751 East Squantum St., was scheduled to hold a meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd.

After years of trying, Tedeschi's received a beer and wine license for its store April 17 of this year by a 3-2 vote of the License Board.

The state's Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) has granted an appeal hearing on the matter set for Aug. 8.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

• Granted a one-day beer and wine license to the Merrymount Association for its 77th annual Fourth of July festivities to be held July 3 from 5 to 11 p.m. The license was also granted for the rain date, July 4.

• A hearing regarding non-compliance to correct violations at the licensed rooming house listed at 356 Washington St. was canceled after Chairman Joseph Shea sent a letter to Anthony DeBartolo and the matter was resolved.

Phelan, Sheets At Odds Over Financial Figures

By CRAIG SAUTERS

Incumbent James Sheets and School Committeeman William Phelan, his challenger for the mayor's office, were at odds publicly for the first time Tuesday over city financial figures and what they mean.

Phelan labeled "inaccurate" reported statements by the mayor concerning his administration's history of tax increases.

Sheets responded by saying the figures in question were a comparison of budget increases between the 1980's and 1990's and not tax increases, as was reported in a June 20 article in The Patriot Ledger.

"It was a misquote, absolutely," Sheets said. "I was talking about budgets, not taxes."

In a statement released Tuesday, Phelan took issue with the June 20 article where Sheets was quoted as saying that property taxes rose faster in the 1980's than during the 1990's during his administration, with an 88 percent increase from 1982 to 1990 as opposed to a 56 to 60 percent increase in the 1990's.

"These figures are incorrect," Phelan said, adding his own figures that taxes increased only 16.5 percent from 1982 to 1990 as opposed to a 30 percent increase during the Sheets administration "at a time when the city enjoyed a thriving economy."

But Sheets said his figures were accurate if applied to budgets and not taxes. The mayor then provided a list of annual city budgets from 1982 to 2002 which showed an 85.05 percent increase from the FY 1982 budget of $63,650,972 to the FY 1990 budget of $117,788,340 and a 63.93 percent increase from the FY 1991 budget of $120,665,106 to the FY 2002 budget of $193,093,967.

Sheets attributed the slight discrepancy from actual totals to those reported in the newspaper to a more detailed inspection by Auditor Michael McFarland.

Sheets, who added that tax increases are capped by Proposition 13, said that he has never sought an override and that his office immediately called Councilor Fred McAuley, who served a mayor during the 1980's, to explain the misquote and that

$30 Million, 464-Room Hotel Opens Marriott Ribbon Cutting A Grand Affair

By CRAIG SALTERS
Marriott International CEO J.W. Marriott, Jr., and Flatley Company President Thomas J. Flatley personally attended grand opening ceremonies for their first project together: the 464-room Marriott Hotel overlooking the Crown Colony Office Park.

Calling it "a day of gladness and happiness," Flatley thanked the more than 250 guests who attended ribbon cutting ceremonies held last week and welcomed them to the first full-service hotel to open in the South Shore in 25 years, a hotel which boasts restaurants, 15,000 square feet of deluxe meeting and banquet space, and a 325-space parking garage. "This is a day of thanks," said Flatley, who called the $30 million project "one of the finest hotels" in the East Coast, city or suburban. Flatley also expressed pride in his corporation's partnership with Marriott. "There was no question Marriott was the flag we wanted to fly," said Flatley, who added future partnerships are being considered, including a possible hotel in Southboro.

The new hotel, which opened for business May 15, marks the first Quincy presence for Marriott International, Inc., which reported systemwide sales of $19.8 billion for Fiscal Year 2000.

"This is a terrific city from the point of a very strong business base and a very strong tourism base," said Marriott. "You don't always get that."

"This has it all put together and that's what makes it a great hotel city."

At a press conference earlier in the day, Marriott said the goal of the new hotel, owned by Flatley Company and run by Marriott, would be to capture its share of the corporate, conference, and tourism markets southwest of Route 128 extending all the way to Provincetown.

Mayor James Sheets, who praised the entrepreneurial spirit found in both the Marriott and Flatley business empires, called Quincy "a city that belongs to America" and expressed pride that guests at the new hotel "will be learning so much about the history of this great country."

Many Quincy officials attended the ceremony, including Council President Paul Harold; Councillor Michael D'Amico, whose ward is home to the new hotel; Councillors Frank McCauley, Daniel Raymond, and Timothy Cahill; Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman; Acting Police Chief William Falco; and various department heads from across the city.

Construction for the hotel, which employs more than 300 people, began in January of 2000 and took 17 months to complete.

DRIVING DOWN COSTS

To get the most for your fuel dollar, consider the following improvements in your driving habits. If your engine needs a tune-up, it could be wasting 15% or more of its fuel. This may be due to misfiring spark plugs, an inefficient fuel system and malfunctioning emission controls. Beyond that, if your tires are eight pounds underinflated, which is not all that uncommon, their rolling resistance increases by 5%. If the wheels are as little as 1/4 inch out of alignment, rolling resistance can increase another 2%. If the cooling system thermostat is stuck in the open position, causing the engine to run too cool, engine efficiency can be reduced by another 7%. Fixing these problems reduces fuel bills.

Gasoline has become very expensive. Our ASE Certified service technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained for maximum efficiency and performance. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), we look forward to giving your car the same level of personal attention we give our own. Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: If wheels are out of alignment or underinflated, they are susceptible to accelerated wear.

A Benefit For Sharon, True 'Profile In Courage'

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A benefit is planned for Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek, a true "Profile In Courage."

It will be held Saturday, Aug. 18 in St. Joseph's Parish Center, Washington Street, Quincy Point, to help her and her family face mounting medical and hospital expenses from the cruel blow she suffered Feb. 28.

Sharon, 42, a former Quincy resident now living in Wauwatosa, Wis., near Milwaukee, contracted a rare and deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria on that date that quickly progressed into septic shock. It started with a strep throat.

She showed signs of improvement at first, but later in order to survive, both her arms had to be amputated and then both her legs were amputated just below her knees.

Her aunt, Lorraine Paolucci, appeared before the License Board Tuesday, where she was granted a one-day all alcoholic license for the event.

According to her aunt and uncle, Gladys and John DiPietro of Quincy, Sharon's spirits remain "high" and that her attitude is "feisty."

Although she is still hospitalized in Milwaukee, Sharon was allowed to go home for eight hours about a week ago where her uncle said she "sat on the back porch with her husband, Lon, and had a glass of wine."

Before any prosthesis is considered, DiPietro said doctors are trying to grow some skin so that they can graft it on her knees. They said her arms are showing progress.

Sharon's plight and courage was reported in The Quincy Sun "Sunbeams" column in May which quoted Sharon through family members as saying, "Don't feel sorry for me. Don't cry over me. I'm going to get better."

FORMER QUINCY resident Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek is determined to overcome the cruel blow she suddenly suffered last Feb. 28. Here she is before it all happened, with her husband, Lon, and children, Kelly, now 7, and Al, now 9.

She also said she didn't want pity.

The column also reported that a trust fund had been set up at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union. DiPietro estimates it has reached approximately $40,000.

Sharon and her husband are parents of two children, Kelly, 7, and Al, 9. Her mother, Rosalie (Kyler) Paolucci, lives on Sumner Street, Quincy Point. Her father, Albert Paolucci, a Quincy firefighter, died during the Blizzard of '78 believed related to shoveling snow during the storm that buried the area under 26 inches.

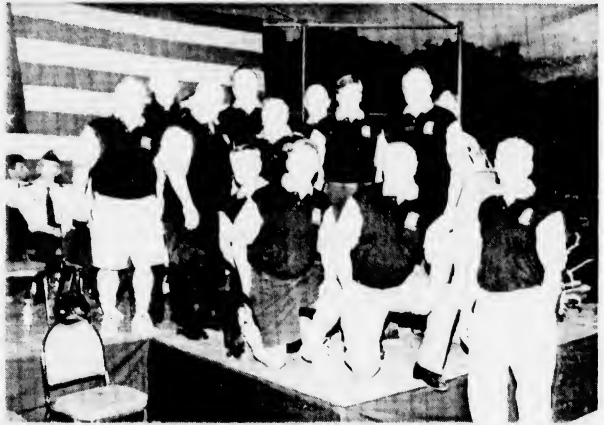

Donations may still be made to the trust fund by sending them to:

Sharon hasn't personally asked for help.

But with steadily increasing medical and hospital expenses, she and her family really need some.

Fifth Grade Sparkle

I really don't know how important MCAS scores are supposed to be but I'm not worrying about them.

I think we have some pretty bright youngsters in our Quincy schools and recently had the privilege of meeting some of them.

They were fifth graders in the classes of Diane Saltis and Mary Ann Lencki at Point Webster Middle School.

DIANE SALTIS

MARY ANN LENCKI

I was invited to share in the celebration of the publication of their first Young Writers Yearbook. My good friend, photographer Bob Noble went with me and, of course, snapped a few photos. (Did you ever see him without a camera?)

We had a most enjoyable time. And for me it was like going home. Despite the many miles and years differences in ages, the kids and I shared something in common. I went to the school when it was Point Junior High and was editor of "The Pointer" yearbook.

The fifth graders were inquisitive and enthusiastic as they turned the tables on my by asking me the questions.

They seemed especially interested in knowing that I was their age when I first knew I wanted to be a newspaperman. That was as a fifth grader at the former Polard School when the old Quincy News invited youngsters to contribute articles. I got one published and when I saw my name in print, I was hooked.

They were also interested -- and amused -- when I told them I thought the classroom we were in that day was the very same one where I learned to recite "The Highwayman." And where my ninth grade teacher, Miss Relenza Manchester would "ride" across the back of the room to help us put some feeling into the lines "... and the highwayman came riding, riding up to the old inn door." She must have done some good riding because I can still remember most of that Alfred Noyes classic even today.

And, of course, if you went to Point back in those days, you always remember Henry Prairie, who was the principal then, and his favorite expression: "Always give it the extra ounce." By that he meant an extra ounce of effort in whatever you do. Good advice then -- and now.

The kids were proud of their first Young Writers Yearbook. And when I got a chance to look over the copy they gave me, I could see why. Short stories, long stories, observations, poems by talented authors like:

Erge Saka, Kayla Duggan, Rebecca Pierrette, Brittany Beliveau, James Yu, Hang Do, Stephanie Blowers, Monica Mui, Katelyn Brennan, Kristen Daskevich.

Point Webster Media Center Open Friday Mornings

School may be on but it will be in Friday mornings during the summer at Point Webster Middle School.

Principal James McGuire said the school's Media Center will be open Fridays -- beginning tomorrow -- from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. for students to read, use computers or just browse the book collection.

The Media Center will be open each Friday morning in July and August for all Point Webster Middle School students and for Grade 4 students from the Marshall School who will be entering Grade 5 at Point Webster in September.

Two teachers, Mrs. Lori Hammerstrom, Grade 5, and Mrs. Barbara Driscoll, Grade 6, will be present to assist the students, McGuire said.

He said funding to open the Media Center during the summer came from $2,000 in mitigation money through Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond.

McGuire urged parents "to take advantage of this wonderful opportunity" for their children to participate.

THIS IS THE artistic work of one of the fifth graders at Point Webster Middle School. He only signed his first name, Michael. But then Rembrandt is best known by a single name.

Karen Marcel, Doris McKenzie, Kimberly Cathcart, Derek McFarlane, Colleen Kilmurray, Priscilla Lee, Audrey To, Claudine Mapa, John Rodrigues, Taneisha Menefee, Richard Chan, Steve La, Brian Karimi, Virginia Wong, Matthew Im, Charlie Peak, David Bowe. (Hope I got them all.)

Later, Mrs. Saltis sent us a packet of artistic cards created by the students with their own "thank you" and other messages.

Can't resist a few excerpts:

Jessica Bennett: "Thank you for coming to our school. Hope you have a good time making the Quincy Sun."

Brittany Parker: "The cake was very good. You should have had a piece. It was delicious. I bet you would've loved it. Thank you again. I had fun."

Katelyn Brennan to both Noble and me: "Thank you for the newspaper even though I already get it. I enjoy sometimes reading it. Mr. Noble, I hope you didn't get any bad pictures. Write back if you can."

Priscilla Lee, to Noble: "Thank you for coming to take our photos. Maybe I will take your picture someday."

Monica Mui to me: "I know you are a very busy person and it must be hard to find time for a party. Thank you for coming back to your old school."

And Monica to Noble: "Thank you for helping us take pictures at the yearbook party. I think you are a talented photographer. Keep up the good work."

Love that last one.

Meeting with the fifth graders that day and attending the re-dedication of the school a few days later, brought back many fond memories.

The school building looks sparkling after the major top-to-bottom renovation project.

And the kids sparkle, too.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of the old Metropolitan Police station at the corner of Cross Street and Furnace Brook Parkway in West Quincy. This was one of two police stations built along the newly opened Metropolitan Parkway running along Wollaston Beach to the

Smooth Flow As Buses Replace Old Colony Service

By PAUL HAROLD

The 114-year-old passenger service of the Old Colony Railroad ended this week, with express buses of the Eastern Mass Street Railway carrying 3,000 commuters to South Station. Some 123 buses left the Quincy Garage between 5 and 6 a.m.

June 28 - July 4
42 Years Ago

Many commuters decided to drive, adding substantial traffic to the Southeast Expressway, but there were no reports of delays. The MDC, State and Registry of Motor Vehicle police were assigned to the expressway and the Neponset River Bridge to keep traffic moving.

At Fields Corner, the MTA added extra cars while some commuters traveled to Stoughton to take the train into Boston.

MILK PRICES IN FLUX

Milk prices were in flux as producers got mixed signals from state and federal regulators. The state Milk Control Commission voted to abolish price controls, but the federal officials said they wanted to insure a fair price for the farmers by fixing prices.

White Brothers of Quincy was selling milk at what they thought was a legal price at 50 cents a half gallon. H.P. Hood slashed its prices to 38 cents a half gallon while Whiting Milk was still awaiting directives from regulators to set its prices.

SHEA TO OPPOSE ELLIS FOR COUNCIL PRESIDENT

Ward One Councillor Charles Shea announced that he would challenge Ward 6 Councillor William Ellis for council president when the council organized in 1960.

Shea and Ellis were part of the young block in the council. Competing for the president's spot put them in contention for the mayoral election in 1961. Councillor James McIntyre was viewed as the swing vote in the council presidency race.

Shea was also serving as state representative.

QUINCY-ISM

Henry Williams, former commander of Quincy Legion Post, said he and other uniformed veterans would protest in front of Midway Mills store in North Quincy because the store planned to open on July 4th. Earlier the Merchants' Division of the Quincy South Shore Chamber of Commerce sent a letter of censure to Midway Mills for their planned holiday opening. . . Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced at the request of parents that a traffic supervisor would be assigned to the busy intersection of Quarry St. and Hall Place. Chief William Ferrazzi said the supervisor's pay would be $92.50 a month. . . At Quincy City Hospital a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Fay of Sea Ave., a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Purpora of Ferriter St. . . Owen Eaton of Vine St. was certified by Civil Service as a permanent sewer foreman. . . George Riley was chairman of the Merrymount July 4th celebration. Mrs. Harry Hershenson headed-up the 35 street collectors who raised money for the parade and day-long activities. . . Quincy Local 5 CIO defeated the Milton Town Team, 6-2, giving them the lead in the South Shore Baseball League. Quincy's Dick Taylor was the winning pitcher. . . A $1,400 popcorn machine was missing from Grant's on the Parkway. . . Chapter 90 money was available to widen Canal St. and Revere Rd. . . Tire dealer Walter Hannon gave his autobiography to the Rotary Club. . . Robert Foley was in charge of the sports contests for the Baker Improvement Association's July 4th. . . Mayor Della Chiesa wrote to President Eisenhower asking that the first 50-star flag fly over the Adams Birthplaces. The 50th star was for the new state of Hawaii. . . Thomas Burgin was chairman of the committee to establish a memorial for former Mayor Thomas McGrath. . . A shower was held for Loraine Avitable who was engaged to Louis DiMartino. . . Mildred Kusser of Edgewater Dr. was certified by Civil Service as a telephone operator at the hospital. . . Fireworks at Houghs Neck and Merrymount were cancelled at the last minute because the Providence, R.I. company in charge didn't deliver the shells and firing equipment. . . Playground district supervisors included Paul Breslin, Leo Long, Ken Fallon, Jr. and Frank Mullen.

READERS FORUM

Keep And Maintain Present QHS, Central Middle

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is very kind of Mayor Sheets to want to build a new Quincy High School and we appreciate his thoughtfulness, but it is an unnecessary expense and endeavor and many citizens, although thankful for the offer, would like to decline the gift.

The current large, well-built school, with over 450,000 square feet of floor space on a 24-acre site of clean land, has a tremendous amount of space for new educational programs, ball fields, a school horticulture garden program, more parking and any necessary expansions for future growth and additions. If Quincy High School is too large, perhaps the city offices that rent expensive office space below the Quincy movie theatre could relocate to the recently remodeled offices in the high school that are scheduled to be demolished to create open space.

The planned high school on Faxon Field will have only 295,000 square feet of floor space and will not have capacity for the amount of vocational students that currently attend the Center for Technical Education (CTE). The new school has a planned capacity for 430 vocational students, however, 565 vocational students currently attend the CTE. It will cost an average of $10,000 per student per year to send Quincy vocational students to other towns for each student the new, small vocational program cannot accommodate. The large and modern CTE, with luxurious space, was only built 33 years ago but it is also scheduled to be demolished to create open space.

As with many city properties, Quincy High School and Central Middle School have experienced a history of poor maintenance and upkeep; however, it is not a good solution to build a $70 million high school because a school suffers from poor maintenance. The same pattern of poor management and care will carry on into the new school.

Citizens should insist that

Quincy preserve and maintain the beautiful historic brick and granite Central Middle School and the present comprehensive Quincy High School with state-of-the-art facilities. To acquire more space for expansion, parking or a ball field, the city could buy property from the Pasqualluci Contractors who own most of the real estate surrounding Central. Quincy could then repair and maintain the current large, historic Quincy High School on its perfect 24-acre campus in downtown Quincy for our high school students.

Coddington St. Site Not Best For New QHS

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It was very discouraging to read that the mayor's choice of a site for building a new Quincy High School on Coddington St. was voted by the School Committee 5-2.

The two dissenting members, Linda Stice and Christine Cedrone, are to be congratulated for having the courage and intelligence to stand up for educational principles and the hard work of the Siting Commission.

If the mayor and the five members of the School Committee found that it was too expensive to move the DPW to the shipyard location, what thought was given to moving it to the site off Quincy Ave., originally the site for the high school? Surely, it can't be because of fear of another scare tactics campaign that no company could conquer the contamination problem. The present DPW seems to have already existed with some contamination. The city owns the land off Quincy Ave.

The Coddington St. site is not good educationally because the middle school students would be sandwiched between the high school and Quincy College. Secondly, it's not a satisfactory site because the new high school would be built in an area subject to flooding as well as increasing flooding problems for residents nearby. The state and federal agencies also have to give an OK because of wetlands. The state, educationally, must also approve.

In the hurry now to get on with the project, we are very apt to make a very serious mistake. Do people forget what problems were formed when the present Center for Technical Education was finally to be built on supposedly the best part of this land?

Minestrone Salad

I think most of us will agree, there is nothing in the world like a cup of hot soup on a cold winter's day. There are so many varieties of soups, but a favorite is a minestrone soup. So recently I saw a great recipe for minestrone salad and couldn't believe how great it is especially for the summer.

You can prepare this recipe early on a predicted hot day and keep it refrigerated until ready to serve. The following also includes ingredients for the dressing.

Minestrone Salad

1/4 pound green beans or half a 9 ounce package of frozen green beans
1/4 cup medium shell pasta about 8 ounces of black beans
1/4 cup fresh basil (cut)
3/4 cup shredded carrots
3 scallions (cut up)
1/4 cup white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 teaspoons sugar

2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard
3 cloves garlic, (minced)
1/8 teaspoon red pepper (optional)
1 small tomato cut in wedges
2 tablespoons parmesan cheese

If using fresh green beans, trim ends and cut in 2-inch pieces.

In a large pan, boil two quarts of water. Add the fresh or frozen green beans and shell pasta. When it comes to a boil again, reduce the heat and boil gently, uncovered for 10-12 minutes or until pasta and beans are just tender. Drain and rinse with cold water and drain again.

In a large bowl, combine and pasta and bean mixture. Add the black beans, basil, carrots and onions.

For the dressing, whisk together the vinegar, oil, sugar, mustard, garlic and if desired, the red pepper. Pour dressing over the bean mixture and toss lightly. Gently stir in tomatoes. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese.

Continental Congress To Be Re-Enacted At 'Old House'

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park announces two programs to commemorate significant events in American History and in the Adams family's story.

On Sunday, July 1, Adams National Historical Park and The Bostonian Society will invite the public to play a part in one of the nation's greatest dramas: the passage of the Resolution for Independence by the Continental Congress on July 2, 1776.

There will be two sessions of Congress on Sunday, July 1 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. at the Old State House in Boston as part of Boston Harborfest. Members of the audience will assume the roles of the delegates to the Continental Congress who debate the issues and pass the Resolution.

The importance of the passage of this Resolution was noted by John Adams in a letter to his wife, Abigail dated July 3, 1776 in which he wrote: "Yesterday the greatest question was decided which was ever debated in America; and a greater perhaps never was nor will be, decided upon men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, that those United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

On Wednesday, July 4, at Adams National Historical Park, members of the audience will assume the roles of delegates to the Continental Congress and will represent their colony in a debate that will determine the fate of a nation.

Led by the "Atlas of In-

JOHN STANWICH, supervisory park ranger at Adams National Historical Park, will portray John Adams as members of the audience assume the roles of delegates to the Continental Congress Wednesday, July 4 at the Old House, 135 Adams St. Sessions will take place at 11 a.m., 2 p.m., and 7 p.m. dependence," John Adams, the debate promises to become heated as the time draws short before the final vote is called.

There will be three sessions of Congress at the Adams National Historical Park "Old House", 135 Adams St., on Wednesday, July 4 at 11 a.m., 2 p.m., and 7 p.m.

Following the evening program the delegates and the public will be invited to take part in a candlelight walk from the "Old House" to the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center where there will be an official reading of the Declaration of Independence, after which bells will proclaim liberty throughout the land and all participants will be invited to replenish themselves with cake and beverage at the Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

Following the July 1 and July 4 programs, each delegate will sign the Declaration of Independence, ring the Liberty Bell, receive a copy of the declaration, and savor the victory by eating a slice of liberty cake.

All programs have a limited capacity and will be reserved on a first-come, first served basis. Those who wish to attend should call the Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center at (617) 770-1175 to reserve a place at one of the sessions or for more information about these or other programs.

ANDREW CARD

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

Andy Card To Appear At Historical Society Fundraiser July 27

White House Chief of Staff Andrew Card, Jr. will appear at the Quincy Historical Society's Capital Fund Drive kickoff Friday, July 27.

The event will be held at noon at the John Adams Building at State Street South.

Originally scheduled for June 1, it was postponed due to the funeral that day of Congressman Joseph Moakley which Card attended.

Tickets for the event are $100 and are available from the Quincy Historical Society at 617-773-1144 or from Society President Joyce Baker at 617-471-5439.

Card, a native of Holbrook which he served as a state representative, and Baker are longtime personal acquaintances.

"I am very appreciative that Andy was able to include us in his busy schedule so quickly," said Mrs. Baker. "I know he recognizes the importance of this area's rich and diverse history. His participation July 27 will really help us underscore that point."

Mrs. Baker also confirmed that through the courtesy of owner Atty. George Burke and the cooperation of Mayor James Sheets, the Colonel John Quincy Tarkand will be on display at the event.

The Capital Fund Drive inaugural event is sponsored by State Street Bank and Trust.

Quincy Historical Society's Capital Fund Drive, chaired by Congressman William Delahunt, has set a target of $250,000 to preserve and restore the society's home, the national landmark Adams Academy Building, and creating there a major new exhibit on Quincy history.

Mrs. Baker also announced a new member of the Capital Fund Drive Committee. Joining Burke, Jay Cashman, Arthur Connolly and Peter O'Connell is James T. Larkin of Greenwich, Conn., a Quincy native and retired executive at American Express.

QHS 1946 Class Reunion Sept. 7

The Quincy High School Class of 1946 will have their class reunion Sept. 7 at the Best Western Adams

Inn. For more information, call James DeCristofaro at 617-773-5478.

2 Residents To Attend Eleanor Roosevelt Center Workshop In N.Y.

Quincy residents Elizabeth Bloomer and Alicia Cappellano have been selected to participate in the Eleanor Roosevelt Center's prestigious Girls' Leadership Workshop (GLW) to be held from Saturday to July 9 in Hyde Park, N.Y.

Bloomer, who attends Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree, and Cappellano, a student at Quincy High School, were among only 30 girls chosen for each of the program's two summer sessions from more than 300 applicants.

GLW, celebrating its fifth year and conducted at Eleanor Roosevelt's historic home and retreat at Val-Kill in Hyde Park, draws on Roosevelt's life and example, as well as the contemporary women's movement to inspire and challenge a select group of high school sophomore and juniors.

According to GLW coordinator Maryann Fallick, participants "are already leaders in their schools and communities and some have made a difference on the state and national levels."

GLW aims to develop skills, self-esteem, confidence and self-definition, as well as social consciousness in participants.

In addition to the workshop, the nine-day session features panels of women leaders in various fields and a trip to the United Nations and the Eleanor Roosevelt Monument in New York City.

Delahunt 'No Place For Hate' Guest Speaker

Congressman William Delahunt will discuss the importance of diversity and the role of education tomorrow night (Friday) from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the council chambers of City Hall as part of the "No Place For Hate" campaign sponsored by the Quincy Human Rights Commission.

Delahunt will be introduced by Mayor James Sheets, who will be in attendance along with city councillors and other city officials.

Both as a former Norfolk County district attorney and a member of Congress, Delahunt has been one of the leading advocates for human rights issues, said Nancy McDonald, chairwoman of the Quincy Human Rights Commission.

Refreshments will be served.

Majors Forster Promoted To London Headquarters

Farewell Sunday For Salvation Army Commanders

Majors Ed and Flo Forster, commanding officers and pastors of The Salvation Army in Quincy who have been appointed to the Army's international headquarters in London, England, will officially leave here Sunday.

A public service of farewell will be held at Quincy Temple, Elm and Baxter streets, at 11 a.m. A public reception will follow the service.

The Forsters, who have been Salvation Army officers for 36 years, have served in Quincy for the past two years. They are originally from Somerville, but had not lived in the Boston area since they left while still in their teens to enter the Army training college for officers in New York.

MAJOR ED FORSTER

MAJOR FLO FORSTER

They have served 28 of their 36 years in pastoral ministry and community service work. In addition, they served for seven years in editorial work for the Army at its national headquarters in Alexandria, Va., and its Canadian national headquarters in Toronto. The majors spent one year as dean of students and campus services coordinator at the Army's college of officers in Suffern, N.Y.

Their appointments in London will be as Editor-in-Chief of all international publications and editorial office supervisor, respectively.

When asked how it felt to be leaving their family of four adult children behind in this country, Major Flo Forster said, "We will miss them, but they are all married and settled with jobs and ministries of their own. We will especially miss our first grandchild, Riley, who was born June 14. She lives in Sharon with our son and his wife — so close now, but soon so far away."

The Forsters do plan to fly back this Christmas to be with their family and particularly to check up on their granddaughter's growth and development.

Major Ed Forster said,

"We've enjoyed serving in Quincy. Everyone has been wonderful to us. We will miss being here when the Red Sox win the pennant and then the World Series this year."

In reflecting on their life of ministry, he said, "God is good. He has always blessed us and He keeps His promises to all of us to be with us in all circumstances."

City Council President Paul Harold presented the Forsters with a certificate in recognition and appreciation of outstanding service to the community at the Army's Advisory Board meeting in June. The Forsters also have received a personal letter of congratulations from General John Gowans, the international leader of The Salvation Army. Both of these commendations will be shared in the public farewell service on the first of July. There will also be an enrollment of children who are between the ages of 7-13 as Salvation Army junior soldiers in the farewell service.

The Forsters will be succeeded in Quincy by Majors Doug and Linda Jones, who have served as commanding officers of the Army in New Bedford for the past 11 years. A public service of welcome and a public reception for them will be held Sunday, July 8 at 11 a.m. at the Quincy Temple.

Thinking About Leaving Quincy? Think Again

Call it stubborn loyalty, but this is where I grew up. I know the stores, the streets and the people like the back of my hand. It's where I raised my family. I'm staying here and moving to River Bay Club retirement community. They offer everything I need for now and in the future. Florida, that's for vacations.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

TENDONITIS

Tendonitis occurs when tendons, which connect muscles to bones, become strained due to stress or overuse. Pain and swelling are the main symptoms of tendonitis. Symptoms may come and go at first, then worsen if a person continues to stress the area. Four foot tendons are common sites for tendonitis. The Achilles tendon will hurt when the foot touches the ground or when the heel lifts off the ground. The posterior tibial tendon will hurt when the foot moves forward while walking or when the heel shifts from side to side. The anterior tibial tendon may hurt when going down stairs or walking or running on hills. The peroneal tendon may hurt when standing or pushing off the ground.

Because your feet are the foundation of your entire body, keeping them strong and healthy is fundamental to your well-being. If foot problems point to trouble elsewhere in the body, or result from other conditions, we will work with the members of your health care team to ensure your good health. Patients can be seen at our main office in Randolph at 999 North Main Street, as well as at the Quincy Medical Center, where we offer free valet parking. All appointments are scheduled by calling 781-986-3668. I am also affiliated with the Brockton, Milton, Good Samaritan and Carney Hospitals.

P.S. Treatment for tendonitis is aimed at reducing pain and swelling and limiting activity so the tendon can heal.

Kevin Coughlin Candidate For Ward 3 Councillor

Kevin Coughlin of 19 Small St., North Quincy, announces his candidacy for Ward 3 City Councillor.

Coughlin is president of the Montclair Wollaston Neighborhood Association wherein he has been an officer since 1994 and he is co-chairman of The Quincy Family Council, Mayor's Commission on the Family.

A resident of Ward 3 since birth and a community activist, he has been twice nominated as a Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year, was honored in 1996 by IMPACT QUINCY as a "Community Hero" for his efforts in the area of youth substance abuse prevention, and received statewide recognition by the Boston Parents Paper as the Family Advocate of the Year Public Friend in 1998.

In 1999 he received a Quincy City Council commendation for community service and he was inducted into the Boston University Collegium of Distinguished Alumni in May, 2000 for his public and community service.

As part of his service with the M.W.N.A., he served on the Stop and Shop oversight committee monitoring the North Quincy Super Stop & Shop development. Concerned about the easy availability of children to alcohol and the desensitizing of children to alcohol use and abuse, Coughlin led the voices of area residents concerned about the granting of beer and wine licenses in Stop & Shop and other food stores.

He actively participated in his neighborhood's opposition to the addition of a gas station to the overcrowded Stop & Shop parking area. Through the M.W.N.A. he also created grant based scholarships for students in the Montclair and Wollaston Schools for musical instruments and summer recreation camps.

Coughlin has been a proactive member of the Montclair School PTO since 1987 and vice-chairman of the School Parent Advisory Council since 1995. He served on the school's Building Needs Subcommittee as a leading advocate of school improvement in the area of infrastructure, technology, and the maintaining of reasonable class size and has testified before the School Committee, City Council, and many other municipal and state boards regarding issues affecting children and families.

He was the initial proponent to the mayor for a senior citizen tax credit in return for service to the city, borrowing from a program he first observed in Chelmsford. He was also an initial proponent of a new access ramp scheme for North Quincy from I-93 to mitigate traffic which has so adversely affected a large sector of Ward 3.

An Assistant Chief Probation Officer with the Middlesex Probate and Family Court where he has worked for 22 years, Coughlin has been recognized by judges, various Bar Associations, and mental health associations, including the Massachusetts General Hospital's Children and Law Program, for his career of advocacy on behalf of children and families. He is a 2001 nominee for the Trial Court's Employee Excellence Award for service to the public and was elected statewide in October 2000 as president of the Massachusetts Probate Probation Officers Association.

Coughlin is a member and past director of the Quincy Lions Club, a member of the Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus, the Sacred Heart Parish Council, and a coach for Sacred Heart Youth Basketball since 1994.

A graduate of Boston College High School and Boston University, he is married to Domenica (Giubilo) Coughlin, a former high school teacher and a licensed care provider. They have three children, Maria, James, and Matthew.

A kick-off fundraiser will be held Tuesday, July 10 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Hollis Ave.

For more information or to assist the campaign, call (617) 328-7749. Contributions may be directed to: The Coughlin Committee, c/o Domenica Coughlin, 19 Small St., Quincy, MA 02171.

TOM BOURQUE, a teacher who, along with concerned parent Beth Stevens, headed efforts to organize the North Quincy Senior Stay Out, which recently held its sixth alcohol-free post prom party, is flanked by Senior Stay Out Book Award Winners Duy Nguyen and Julia Matos. The book awards were recently renamed for the event and for Bourque and Stevens.

Fun For All At NQHS Senior Stay Out 2001

The North Quincy High School Class of 2001 recently celebrated its Senior Prom and its Senior Stay Out Party, marking the sixth annual safe, fun, and alcohol-free post prom party sponsored by parents of North Quincy students.

Over 300 seniors and their guests enjoyed a night of free food and fun activities which included karaoke, a Jeopardy game show, tattooing, caricatures, a bungee run, a Velero obstacle course, and the always popular "Cash Cube."

This year, as in the past six years, State Street Bank generously hosted the party at their Willard Building cafeteria.

Funds for the Senior Stay Out were donated by Quincy businesses and other generous contributors. This year Senior Stay Out also received a grant from Project Prom Sense sponsored by District Attorney William Keating and the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance Grant for alcohol-free community events.

A Senior Student Parent

ANDREA MARSHALL receives two prom tickets from teacher Tom Bourque as this year's winner of the Senior Parent Raffle, which raised funds for the recent North Quincy High School Senior Stay Out party.

Raffle for a pair of prom tickets was held to raise money for the Stay Out. This year's winner was Andrea Marshall.

The after prom party was started six years ago by a group of concerned parents headed by Beth Stevens and teacher Tom Bourque. This year's event marked Stevens' sixth and last year as chairwoman. To thank her and Bourque, the two annual $250 Book Awards will be named the Beth Stevens and Tom Bourque Senior Stay Out Book Awards.

This year's award winners were Julia Matos and Duy Nguyen.

Jo-Ann Bragg To Seek Third Term On School Committee

Jo-Ann Bragg, vice chairman, will seek a third term to the Quincy School Committee.

She will officially announce her candidacy Thursday, June 28 at a 6 p.m. poolside cookout at the home of Gina Scanlan and Will Smith, 15 Glendale Rd.

Bragg was elected to her first term in 1993 and was re-elected to a second term in 1997 with a strong first-place finish. She has served as chairman of the School Committee's Budget and Finance, School Building Needs and Rules, Post Audit and Oversight subcommittees, and has been an active member on the School Policy, Special Education, Health and Security subcommittees as well as the first School Council Ad Hoc subcommittee.

She was unanimously elected as vice chairman in January, 2000.

"I love Quincy and I care about my community," she said this week. "I grew up here. I attended elementary school in Quincy, and graduated with honors from Central Junior High, North Quincy High School, and Quincy College."

Recently celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary, she and Richard Bragg have three children: Michelle and Lisa graduated from the Quincy Public Schools, and their son, Jonathan, is soon to be a junior at North Quincy High School. They have one granddaughter.

Jo-Ann Bragg is a certified tax accountant with over 22 years of experience as owner and proprietor of Up & Running, an income tax and accounting business. From 1993 to 1995, she served on the Board of Directors of the Quincy School-Community Partnership. In 1992, she was elected to the Board of Directors of Quincy After-School Child Care, where she currently serves as treasurer and business manager for an organization which offers after-school care in nine elementary schools across the city and several extended-day Kindergarten programs.

Bragg became actively involved in her children's schools in the 1980's. She has served as president of the Parker School PTO and treasurer of the Wollaston School PTO, and has been a member of the Central Middle Home School Association and the North Quincy

JO-ANN BRAGG

High Parents' Advisory Council. She is a past president, vice president and treasurer of the Citywide Parents' Council, where she was a key leader advocating many issues that today are a reality in the Quincy public schools, including: full-time nurses in every school; faculty, staff, and students trained in CPR/First Aid; an expanded World Language Program; the elimination of user fees for athletics and extra curricular activities; increased pay for substitute teachers; increase in textbooks, library books, supplies and technology; more professional development for teachers; more time-on-task for students with an increase to the school day; increased security to make the schools safe; and a system-wide plan to re-open, renovate and build new schools, securing maximum funding from state sources to lessen the cost to taxpayers.

"I have demonstrated my willingness to work hard and do my homework, and I am committed to meeting the challenges that face our city. I have visited every public school in Quincy several times in the past decade," she said. "I have seen the needs first-hand. The young people of Quincy are our most precious resource; they are the future.

We need to provide them with the skills necessary to be productive and successful in the world of work."

ful in the world of work."

She added: "There are many important educational decisions that will need to be made in the next few years: choosing the next Superintendent of Schools, adding literacy specialists to our elementary schools, to further advance students' reading and writing skills and thus improve their ability to succeed in passing the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System tests.

"Other avenues to help students achieve success include adding full-time Kindergarten programs and expanding early childhood education. I look forward to the challenges ahead and will continue to work to the best of my ability to find solutions that are in the best interests of all. With over 20 years of active involvement in the Quincy Public School system, a strong work ethic, and a parent's perspective, I am asking the voters of Quincy to once again give me the opportunity to serve them by electing me to another term."

Michael Berry To Head Finn Council Campaign

Michael J. Berry of Marine Avenue, Houghs Neck, will head the campaign of Joe Finn, candidate for city councillor at-large.

Berry is chairman of the Ward 1 Democratic Committee and a member of the IBEW Local 103 of which he has been recording secretary for 14 years. He recently graduated from Harvard University's Union Trade program.

Berry is a member of the Quincy Community Action Board of Directors and has been active in the community, including the Boy Scout program in the Quincy area.

He has coached youth sports including Koch Club baseball, International League baseball and Quincy Youth Soccer.

Berry helped wire the lights at Veterans Memorial Stadium and each year he and other members of Local 103 have donated many hours of electrical work at Quincy's First Night celebration.

"I am honored that Joe and the committee has selected me to lead Joe's campaign," Berry said. "It is time for a councillor at-large that has new ideas and is dedicated solely to Quincy's future."

Finn noted that Berry and other members of the committee asked him to consider running for councillor at-large this year but that he first wanted to hear from voters.

"The committee developed a survey card, passed it door to door so I could hear from Quincy voters," Finn said. "As a result of the response, I am running. I thank Mike for that effort and know he will do a great job managing my election."

Anyone wishing to join the Finn committee or to meet with him are asked to call 617-770-1917.

City Plans To Upgrade Main Computer Systems

The City Council recently approved a five-year re-lease, with upgrade, of IBM main computers for City Hall as well as the School and Police Departments as requested by Charles Phelan, director of Data Processing.

The new servers will offer a minimum of 200 percent performance improvement, Phelan said, allowing the city to tackle such jobs as the re-design of its city web page.

"The current computers were manufactured in 1995, before the web really took hold," explained Phelan.

Data Processing's first priority will be to install the new system for the School Department during summer vacation, then upgrade police department computers in the fall in conjunction with a program to install laptop computers in police cruisers.

The new system is not expected to be fully implemented until the beginning of 2002, Phelan said.

The new lease, Phelan explained to councillors at their June 18 meeting, would allow the city to upgrade existing server platforms while "level-funding" that portion of the city's annual budget for the next five years.

Phelan provided a cost comparison for councillors showing that proposed IT System annual costs would actually be slightly less than the current cost of $95,503.

An additional benefit, Phelan said, would be improved data backup in the unlikely event of system failures.

Under its current lease agreement, the city has the option to buy its existing computers but Phelan urged against purchase, arguing that, however useful and dependable the current computers were, leasing was the best way to ensure the latest technology for city computer systems.

Stice Named Chairwoman Of Supt. Search Committee

sees Quincy College, the application process was approved and the job subsequently advertised in every public school building throughout the school system.

Applicants should send a letter of application, a resume, and certification to: Jo-Ann Bragg, vice-chairwoman, Quincy School Committee, 70 Coddington St., Quincy MA 02169.

Deadline for applications is July 13, 2001.

The Search Committee will interview candidates in August and recommend finalists for further interviews by the School Committee.

The School Committee is expected to vote to appoint the next superintendent of schools at its regular meeting Sept. 5.

Stice and Mariano researched the process used by previous School Committees in Quincy and other communities in selecting a new superintendent. Their recommendation on which process to use was unanimously approved.

GUMMING UP THE WORKS

New research shows that there is a connection between periodontal disease and chronic respiratory infection. An analysis of data on nearly 14,000 people who participated in the National Health and Nutrition Examination Survey showed that those with more periodontal (gum) disease had a higher prevalence of diminished lung function. Periodontal disease is caused by serious bacterial infections in the mouth, which destroy gum tissue and cause tooth loss. The researchers speculate that bacteria that collect in the mouth with periodontal disease make their way into the upper airways. That paves the way for other germs to infect the lower respiratory tract, thereby exacerbating chronic lung problems like bronchitis. All this provides more good reason to brush and floss twice daily.

as your overall health, a periodontal evaluation is a good idea. We are trained to detect and treat gum disease. We will be happy to answer any questions you may have about the health of your teeth and gums. We will discuss your particular problem and recommend the treatment that is right for you. Vote Due In Fall Public Hearing Closed On South Quincy Home Depot

Acting as special permit granting authority, the City Council Monday night closed its public hearing on the proposed construction of a Home Depot retail store at the former Raytheon property in South Quincy.

The council now has 90 days to make a decision on the permit, which would allow Home Depot USA to raze the 230,000 square foot Raytheon building and build an 118,900 square foot single-building retail store and a 17,000 square foot garden center.

Traffic was still the number one concern voiced by residents at the meeting, which was a continuation of a May 21 public hearing in which Home Depot representatives touted the advantages of their plan, including a commitment to contribute 40 percent to design costs for the new ramps at Crown Colony Office Park and an above-grade "flyover" which would create direct access to the retail store.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said further meetings of the council on the issue were not necessary but that more information was still needed on traffic issues, particularly the impact to side streets and the interim period between the construction of the Home Depot and the proposed ramps, which are estimated to cost $18 million.

In addition to answering questions regarding traffic, Home Depot representatives promised to restrict delivery truck access to major arteries, that the company had no intentions of closing its existing West Quincy store, and that, even in the event of such a closing, any future use of the West Quincy site would require P.U.D. approval by the council. Home Depot recently purchased the 16-acre former Raytheon site for $16.75 million.

Keenan Calls For Street, Sidewalk Management Program

John F. Keenan, candidate for city councillor at-large, wants the city to implement a comprehensive street and sidewalk management program.

Keenan's proposal calls for an inspection of each street, recommendations for the type of work needed on each, such as pothole filling, crack sealing, overlay paving, or reconstruction, and then a ranking of the streets in order of priority, based on the type of work needed. A financial plan would be developed, and the work could be scheduled.

"Right now," said Keenan, "there is no such comprehensive plan in place."

Keenan pointed out that the city has a long-term water main replacement plan similar to what he is proposing for streets and sidewalks.

The City Council will vote on a $950,000 bond for street and sidewalk work, to be paid over five years. Commenting on the bond, Keenan said, "The city should make sure that the work done with the bond money is part of a plan, and that it gets real value for the investment. There are streets in the city that have been paved within the last five years that already need additional work. If the city is going to bond street and sidewalk work, and pay for the work over five years, it better make sure the streets last at least that long before they need work again.

"It's common sense planning and financing. As a homeowner, you wouldn't take out a five year loan for home improvements if you knew the work was going to have to be redone in three or four years, and the city shouldn't put itself in that situation either."

"Financially, things are tight in the city and will get tighter over the next few years," said Keenan. "If the city does not have a comprehensive road and sidewalk plan in place, and does not have a matching financial plan, most likely the work will be done in a piecemeal fashion, with most of it being put off. We'll end up with roads in worse shape and an enormous bill to pay for what would have cost less if done in accordance with a program

"With some planning, we can address the problem in a financially sound manner."

Neighborhood Housing Receives $10,000 From GMAC Mortgage

Neighborhood Housing Services has recently been the recipient of a $10,000 donation from GMAC Mortgage Company and participating GMAC affiliated realtors, to be used for the purpose of a down payment lottery for potential first time homebuyers.

Neighborhood Housing Services was looking for a better way to assist the middle-income homebuyers in the surrounding South Shore towns; they went to GMAC Mortgage and asked them to sponsor the lottery idea. Without hesitation the Braintree office of GMAC mortgage and 3 participating GMAC real estate offices immediately stepped up to the plate.

Unlike other lotteries and grant programs there are no income limits or requirements attached to this lottery. All applications regardless of income level or family size are eligible. Property must be purchased within Massachusetts and can be a single family home, condo or multi-family.

Ten names will be drawn

from the applications that are submitted, no completed application will be omitted from the lottery process. The selection committee will then interview the ten families and select a winner on August 15th. The winner will have 3 months to find a home or the money will be passed on to the runner-up.

These workshops are free and are scheduled throughout the summer. For a lottery application or for further information you may contact Neighborhood Housing Services at 617-770-2227 or GMAC Mortgage at 781-356-5500.

Participating GMAC real estate offices include: B&S Real Estate GMAC, Weymouth office, Premier Properties GMAC, Eastern, Raynham, Bridgewater and Classic Homes GMAC, Quincy.

Squantum Gardens Meeting Rescheduled For July 10

A meeting of the Oversight Committee of the City Council to address possible rent increases for senior residents of Squantum Gardens, originally scheduled for Tuesday night, has been rescheduled for Tuesday, July 10 at 7 p.m.

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, chairman of the Oversight Committee, said the decision to reschedule came after he learned that neither Frederic Marx, attorney for the private non-profit Elder Housing Corporation (EHC) which runs Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace, nor City Solicitor Stephen McGrath were able to attend the originally scheduled meeting.

"This is a very important meeting," said Newton, who agreed with fellow councillors that time was of the essence since the issue at hand, an EHC letter to Squantum Gardens seniors dated May 31 announcing $75 rental increases and referring to terminations of tenancy, calls for the changes to become effective July 1.

"I want to have the meeting as soon as possible but we're talking about HUD (Housing and Urban Development) and complex legal issues," Newton said. "We need to have all of the major players present."

Newton, who rescheduled the meeting during unrelated public hearings held Monday night, also informed councillors that, during a recent presentation to Squantum Garden residents, EHC officials had said the July 1 date was no longer in effect.

Councillors, at the suggestion of Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, pressed for written documentation stating there would be no rental increases or terminations of tenancy on the July 1 date.

Elder Housing Corporation, a private non-profit created by the city to manage Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace, property transferred recently to the city for $1 by the U.S. Navy, plans its first-ever rental increase for tenants, from $750 to $825, which it says is mandated by increased costs and approved by HUD.

Helen Murphy, former assistant to Mayor James Sheets, serves as executive director of the Elder Housing Corporation, whose board members include: Arthur Wahlberg, chairman; Paul Hines, vice-chairman; James Mullaney, treasurer; Thomas Clasby, Jr., secretary; Stephen DesRoche; Robert Galligan; Lester Gerry; Paul Kennedy; Thomas Koch; Luke MacNeil; John Molloy; and Gerard Weidmann.

Jimmy Liang Candidate For City Councillor At-Large

JIMMY LIANG

Declaring that the "next generation" of leadership in Quincy has arrived, Jimmy Liang recently announced his candidacy for councillor at-large before a group of supporters in Quincy Center.

Liang pledged a positive campaign on values that have made Quincy a "great city with strong neighborhoods and caring people."

He also laid out some of the themes of his platform.

"This generation of leadership will embrace the good in Quincy that has given us the chance to be successful, and look ahead with optimism, the desire to serve, and a wish for a brighter future for all our citizens: our students, our elders and our growing families," he said.

Liang acknowledged that Quincy has undergone changes due to the migration of many families from Asia over the past 20 years. He credited his parents for deciding to live in Quincy that provided him with many opportunities. He particularly thanked the many educators in the Quincy schools, beginning at the Parker Elementary School and continuing through Central Middle School and North Quincy High School for supplying the "support and attention I needed to be successful."

To ensure that future generations of students get the same support and attention, he announced his support for the construction of a new Quincy High School and the renaissance of Central Middle School at the location of the current high school.

"The full implementation of the building program will keep class sizes small and supply students with the state-of-the-art facilities they need to compete in today's world," he said.

Citing language and cultural barriers to elder services, Liang called for bilingual and cultural training for all senior service providers.

"My grandmother is like many seniors, striving to maintain her independence, and in need of services that support her needs," he noted. "Although Quincy offers many good quality services, some elders have difficulty accessing transportation, health care and housing. Improvement is needed to ensure that all our elders get the services they need."

The city's economy will also be central to the Liang platform, he said. He expressed the need to continue to support Quincy businesses, large and small, because they drive the economy by providing jobs and a more diverse tax base. Without a strong business community, Quincy residents would pay higher tax bills and, as in other towns, pay separately for basic services such as rubbish removal.

"While economic development is essential to the success of any city and Quincy is no exception, we must work hard to ensure that no one is left behind," he said.

Liang cited housing as an example. "Many families are being squeezed out of the housing market. I support affordable housing initiatives that are community based and neighborhood sensitive."

Liang said he supports the proposed affordable housing trust fund as a "means to strengthen" our neighborhood housing organizations so they can work with housing advocates and neighborhoods to "strengthen the families that are the fundamental building blocks of our community."

Concerning the condition of streets and sidewalks Liang said, "We are all very proud of the improvements that have been made to our business districts. They were necessary and positive changes; however, more attention needs to be paid to our back roads and side streets."

He said he supports the Mayor's initiative to provide an additional DPW crew and encouraged the administration to look for more ways to improve neighborhood streets.

"People know that we can not pave every street at once, but they want a predictable program that is based on road condition and is distributed fairly across the city."

LEADERSHIP: The Next Generation

Jimmy Liang represents the next generation of Quincy's Leaders
Looking to the future, honoring the past

In 1983 the Liang family left Guangdong Province, China with a dream for a better life. They settled in Quincy to provide their three sons with a fine education and the opportunity to succeed. Jimmy Liang's parents instilled the value of hard work, commitment and the resolve to turn dreams into reality. He is now co-owner of Fuji, the successful Wollaston restaurant. Jimmy Liang wants to contribute to the city that made his American dream come true.

- Families and neighborhoods are the building blocks of strong communities
- Public education provides our families with opportunities for success
- Language and cultural barriers to elder services need to be bridged
- Economic development is essential to providing critical public services, but should leave no family or neighborhood behind
- Affordable housing will strengthen our families and neighborhoods
- Safe and well maintained streets, sidewalks, parks, playgrounds and open spaces promote healthy neighborhoods

CAVAUGH STADIUM in North Quincy was recently rededicated as part of ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Quincy Flag Day Parade. Two bronze plaques were installed, one rededicated to Charles J. Cavanaugh, for whom the park was named, who was killed in action during World War II, and the other plaque commemorating Cavanaugh Stadium as the site of the first Quincy Flag Day parade in 1952. Appreciating one of the new plaques are, from left: Simone Leary, granddaughter of Richard Koch, founder of the parade; Simone Koch, widow of Richard Koch; Quincy Fire Department Lt. William Phelan; and Robert Campbell.

SIMONE LEARY, age 11, a fifth grader at Sacred Heart School, delivered an address on her grandfather, Richard Koch, and the meaning of Flag Day during rededication ceremonies at Cavanaugh Stadium, site of the city's first Flag Day Parade in 1952. Behind Leary are Robert Campbell, QFD Lt. William Phelan, and Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, Cemetery, and Forestry Departments.

Where Flag Day Parade Originated Rededication Ceremonies Held At Cavanaugh Stadium

Cavanaugh Stadium in North Quincy was recently rededicated in conjunction with a 50th anniversary commemoration of the Quincy Flag Day parade, which originated at Cavanaugh Stadium in 1952.

Hosted by the Quincy Park Department and the Quincy Flag Day Committee, the program featured musical performances from the Sacred Heart School, Parker Elementary School, and Atlantic Middle School.

Students from the combined Atlantic/Parker band played patriotic music led by music teacher Richard Siriano and students from the Parker and Sacred Heart Schools sang patriotic songs.

"This ceremony was a great opportunity to include our youngsters in honoring our nation's flag," said Thomas Koch, chairman of the Flag Day Parade Committee and executive director of the Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments. "Even as the Flag Day parade grows, we must never lose its original message of instilling in our children the importance of our national symbol."

Two new bronze plaques were installed on two newly-constructed granite pillars at the Birch St. entrance to the park. One plaque was rededicated to Charles J. Cavanaugh, for whom the park was named. Cavanaugh was killed in action while serving in the US Army in Germany in 1945.

The second plaque commemorates the 50th anniversary of the Flag Day Parade and Cavanaugh Stadium as the site of the first parade.

"I must congratulate Superintendent Creedon, music teacher Dick Siriano, and the children from all the schools that participated in this ceremony," added Koch. "They did a wonderful job playing patriotic music and memorizing and singing their songs."

Preventable Scooter Injuries On The Rise

By PETER RACICOT

As scooters continue to ride their way into popularity, injuries have soared along with sales, causing the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission to issue a warning.

Emergency room-related injuries to scooters increased 700 percent last summer, with more than 4,000 scooter-related injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms in August alone, and more than 9,400 emergency room-treated injuries in the first eight months of 2000.

As summer vacation begins more children are expected to take to the streets on scooters and parents need to take precautions to prevent these accidents. Nearly 90 percent of the injuries are to children under 15 years of age.

The best prevention for injuries is the use of protective gear, which can cost less than $35. The most obvious protective gear is the helmet. As with bicycling, a helmet is essential in preventing injury to all areas of the head. It must be buckled and fit snugly to be effective and it should be rated or approved by a nationally recognized standard. Parents should insist on helmets, scooters are no different than bikes or blades. Elbow and kneepads offer protection in falls. Fractures and dislocations accounted for nearly one-third of the injuries.

Scooters should never be ridden at dusk or night and should be used on a smoothed, paved surface without traffic. Scooter riders should avoid wet or icy road conditions or streets with water, sand, gravel or dirt.

As with any sport, practice is important and children need to know how to operate scooters properly. Children should begin at a speed and at angles that they are comfortable with and avoid daring tricks and stunts until they are really ready to handle them. Riders will have more trouble stopping a scooter than they do a bike with brakes and they need to learn to stop with the rear fender brake and by lowering one foot to the ground. The rules of the road call for scooters to yield to pedestrians and announce their intentions to pass.

Keeping the equipment well maintained is essential. Before climbing aboard, riders need to check out all the bolts, steer tube extension and handlebars to make sure they're securely fastened.

(Editor's note: Peter Racicot is vice president of Business Development for Fallon Ambulance Service. The company provides emergency 9-1-1 service to Milton, Quincy, Brookline, Braintree and Dedham, and primary backup to Boston and Randolph, as well as medical transportation for a number of nursing homes, hospitals and HMO's throughout Greater Boston.)

Health Screenings July 17 For Stroke, Vascular Disease

Quincy Point Congregational Church Homes, Inc., 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy, will hold a health screening to detect the risk of stroke and vascular disease Tuesday, July 17.

Life Line Screening will offer three screenings: Carotid Artery Screening test, an Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm (AAA) test and an Ankle Brachial Index (ABI). There will also be a bone density screening for women, which tests for the early detection of osteoporosis.

A physician reviews the results of each test to ensure accuracy of the results before the findings are mailed to each individual. Individuals whose screening suggests further evaluation are encouraged to seek appropriate follow-up care with their own physician.

Anyone interested must register at least 24 hours in advance. Test cost $40 each ($35 for osteoporosis test), with discounts available for three or more tests. For an appointment or more information, call 1-800-407-4557.

WHAT ABOUT THAT PAIN IN THE NECK?

We've all heard the expression, "You give me a pain in the neck," meaning that stress can affect us in a painful way, especially if there is weakness in one's neck.

The neck is the most delicate part of the spine and the most easily injured. It is comprised of seven separate bones that are loosely connected together by ligaments and muscles. The structure of the neck allows for great mobility, but also predisposes it to injury. Poor posture, occupation, falling asleep in a chair or on the couch, car accidents, falls, twists and strain take their toll on the neck (cervical spine).

The part of the nervous system housed within the bones of the neck is an extension of the brain. Displacements or misalignments of the neck bones may cause pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves commonly referred to as "pinched nerves."

Some of the symptoms seen most often with pinched nerves in the neck are: headaches, sinusitis, dizziness, neck pain, shoulder pain, and pain, numbness and/or tingling into the arm, hand or fingers.

One should always consult a chiropractor after a motor vehicle accident, fall or strain, even if you do not think you are hurt.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Pitching A Concern With Five Games In Five Days

Morrisette Evens Record After Wins Over Randolph, Milton

By CHRIS POISSON

Looking strictly at the box score, Morrisette's 18-3 victory over Randolph last Friday night appears to be a resounding, confidence-boosting win.

After a 1-3 start with an offense that looked as stale as a week-old doughnut, Morrisette pounded out 16 hits across Adams Field and received solid pitching to notch its second win of the season, both at the expense of Randolph.

However, Morrisette manager Ray Cattaneo said Monday morning that it wasn't a good game — for either American Legion baseball team.

"It really wasn't a good game," he said, as both teams decided to call the game after five innings. "We did some hitting, but it wasn't against a good pitcher. It doesn't really give you any confidence. I feel bad for Randolph. They had no one left to pitch. They had to pitch kids that never pitched before. The same thing could happen to us this week."

Indeed, by the time Fri-

day evening rolls around Morrisette will have played five games in five days. Cattaneo, though, didn't have to worry Monday night at Milton because he had his ace, Keith Doherty, on the hill and the result was a 4-1 win that pushed Morrisette back to the .500 mark (3-3).

On Tuesday, John O'Connell was scheduled to start at Weymouth and yesterday (Wednesday) Morrisette hosted Canton. Tonight it will battle it out with rival Quincy at 8 and tomorrow it hosts West Roxbury at 8 p.m.

Doherty is off to a similar start he had this past spring at North Quincy High School. Monday's win improved his record to 2-0 and he still has not allowed an earned run, as Morrisette committed an error in the fourth frame that led to Milton's only tally. The left-hander scattered six hits and a walk and struck out seven.

In the first inning, Morrisette grabbed a 1-0 lead when Pat Bregoli's sacrifice fly brought home Dan O'Toole, who had reached on an error and advanced to third on the play.

Morrisette added a trifecta in the third. With one out, Joe Fitzpatrick reached on an error, stole second and crossed the plate on Doherty's RBI double. Brian O'Hanley followed with a single and advanced to second on the throw. Joe Thorley's groundout scored Doherty from third and moved O'Hanley to third, who later scored on a wild pitch.

In the Randolph game, O'Hanley (RBI) and Dan Duggan each had three hits, while Thorley (2 for 3), Neal Gavin (1 for 1) and Bregoli (1 for 1) added three RBIs apiece. Chris Doherty (2 RBIs) and Pat Duff (RBI) contributed with two hits each.

O'Toole yielded two runs on five hits over four innings to even his record at 1-1. Steve Pizzi pitched a scoreless fifth inning in relief.

Lipton Cup Regatta July 6-8 At Squantum Yacht Club

The 15th annual Lipton Cup Regatta will be held July 6-8 at the Squantum Yacht Club, 646 Quincy Shore Drive.

The festivities will begin Friday, July 6, with registration from 7 to 9 p.m.

The Lipton Cup, which will host 1,000 sailors from Canada to Florida, is expected to include the following classes of sailboats in the race: N10, Optimist, Laser, International and Club 420, One Design 14, Hustler, Thunderbird, Rhodes 19, 210's, Vanguard 15's and Indians.

The Lipton Cup trophy, originally given to the Massachusetts Bay Yacht Clubs Association in 1930 by tea magnate Sir Thomas J. Lipton, was first awarded to Herbert Allbright, a victorious skipper in the Indian class sailboat.

After more than 55 years of inactivity, the Lipton Cup trophy, nearly three feet tall and a silver Victorian splendor, is once more the object of grand sailboat racing competition in the waters of Massachusetts.

Pre-registration forms are available at the Squantum Yacht Club on Wollaston Beach, 617-328-9759, or by contacting Don McGilvray at 617-328-5730.

Volunteers Needed To Support MS Bike Tour Saturday, Sunday

Over 300 volunteers are needed Saturday and Sunday to support the WB56 Family First Great Mass Get-away MS Bike Tour.

About 1,200 cyclists will ride 150 miles from Marina Bay in Quincy to Provincetown to help fund local programs for people with multiple sclerosis (MS).

Important volunteer jobs include drivers for route support, rest stop volunteers, registration workers, Saturday afternoon work crew at the Mass Maritime Academy, and Sunday work crew for the finish line in Provincetown.

Organized by the Central New England Chapter of the National MS Society, the 17th annual ride is known as one of the most well-planned and well-supported bike tours in the area.

Individuals and groups interested in volunteering should contact Brenda Barbour at 1-800-493-9255, ext. 135, or at brenda.barbour@main.ms.org.

Quincy Granite Football Kicks Off Season July 7

The Quincy Granite semi-professional football team will kick off the 2001 season Saturday, July 7 against the Boston Cowboys at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7 p.m.

In its inaugural season in the Eastern Football League last year, Quincy finished the regular season with a 6-4 record and fell to Middleboro, 14-7, in the first round of the playoffs.

The Granite has made some changes in the front office this season. Kicker Paul Doherty decided to hang up the cleats to become the new general manager, as Joseph Desmond decided to step down from that position to serve as an advisor.

Offensive guard Mike Lynch, a captain, and wide receiver Charlie McCall have retired but will remain with the team as part of the coaching staff.

Quincy also has a new official team sponsor, Old Kent Mortgage Co.

The EFL has added a 14th team, the Eastern Mass Mavericks, to the league and it has also increased the regular season games from 10 to 11. Quincy will play six home games, including the season opener, and five away games and will have a bye Sept. 15.

The other home dates are: Hyannis Hurricanes, July 21; Clinton Irish Blizzard, Aug. 4; Eastern Mass Mavericks, Aug. 11; Randolph Oilers, Aug. 18; Charlestown Townies, Sept. 8.

The away games are: Randolph Oilers, July 13; Boston Cowboys, July 28; Maine Pride, Aug. 25; Middleboro Cobras, Sept. 1; Mass Havoc, Sept. 22.

Atlantic Captures All-City Basketball Crown

Dave Jaehnic scored a game-high 12 points as Atlantic recently knocked off Snug Harbor, 32-24, to capture the Quincy Recreation All City Basketball championship.

Kyle Costa chipped in with seven points, while Kevin Donovan added six. Matt Edgerly four and Nilson Wong three.

For Snug Harbor, James Hazelhurst led the team with eight points. Tommy Hazelhurst scored five points. Joe Maskell and Cory Wynne each had four and Sean Craig picked up three. Pat Austin and Bobby Martin played solid defense.

Recreation Director Barry Welch presented championship trophies to Atlantic and certificates to Snug Harbor.

The single-elimination tournament, which has been conducted for over 40 years, is made up of nine teams that represent recreation programs from all neighborhoods of the city.

In the semifinals, Atlantic defeated Beechwood, 30-26, behind Jaehnic's 20 points. Wong scored eight and Aileen Croke two.

For Beechwood, Ted Fawell tallied a team-high 14 points. Tom Power (six), John Murray (four) and Jesse Buckley (two) also scored.

Snug Harbor reached the final with a 33-29 win over Point Webster. James Hazelhurst shouldered the offense with 18 points. Wynne (six), Timmy Hazelhurst (four), Marcus Mandrell (two) and Craig (two) also contributed.

For Point Webster, Parker Scott led the team with 13 points. Danny Neenan (six), Bradley Louw (four), Alex Scott (three), Mike Neenan (two) and Tony Pepdjonovic (one) also scored.

In first-round action, Montclair topped Sterling with a 44-42 win in overtime. Terrence Sibley poured in 19 points and Nate Giguere netted 16 to pace the offense. Josh Brabizon (five), Chris Garvey (two) and Victor Zok (two) also scored.

For Sterling, Jose Ortiz scored 14 points and Jake Quinlan 13. Steve Byrnes (eight), Chris Range (six) and Jessica Malone (two) also added to the offense.

Point Webster downed Bernazzani, 39-38, with a buzzer-beater. Parker Scott scored a game-high 20 points and Pepdjonovic added 17. Rob Perkins had two points.

For Bernazzani, Chris Tulu scored 12 points to lead the team. Tom Ross added 11, Andrew Loud six, Brendan Linnane five and Dave Djerf four.

Snug Harbor upended Merrymount, 36-32, as seven players figured in the scoring. Mandrell had 11 points, Craig nine, James Hazelhurst six, Wynne four, Maskell three, Jessie Depina two and Jamie Amaro one.

For Merrymount, Frank McKenna and Terrence O'Connell each scored 11 points. Dan Arredondo chipped in with four, while Jeff Karasic and Sandro Junkovic had three apiece. Wemerson Nouseira played well defensively.

Atlantic defeated

Squantum, 38-24. Wong scored 10 points, Jaehnic eight, James Sullivan six, Croke six, Matt Edgerly four and Costa two.

For Squantum, Johnny Black scored a team-high 12 points. Mike Powers added eight and Mike Faherty four.

Beechwood ousted Montclair, 40-31, behind Fawell's game-high 18 points. Power added 13, Murray seven and David Ray two.

For Montclair, Sibley led the team with 12 points. John Ridge chipped in with eight, Giguere seven and Garvey four.

Soccer Camp At Fore River Field Aug. 6-10

Quincy Youth Soccer and NOGA Soccer have teamed up to provide a week-long soccer camp this summer at Fore River Field.

The camp will be held Aug. 6-10 and is open to all Quincy Youth Soccer players regardless of ability. Players ages 4-11 are invited to the first session from 9 a.m. to noon and players 12 and over are invited to the second session from 4 to 7 p.m. All children will initially be grouped by age and then by ability.

As part of the camp program, the NOGA Soccer coaches will also run free clinics for parents and coaches on Tuesday, Aug. 7 and Thursday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

For more information or to receive a registration form, call director Graham Stafford at 617-479-6122.

Erin Flaherty Completes Collegiate Cross-Country, Track Career

Erin Flaherty of Quincy recently concluded an exceptional career in cross country and track at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn.

At the university's recent all-sports banquet, Flaherty was honored in women's cross country and women's indoor track as the recipient of the Jones Award, presented annually to the outstanding competitor in each of Wesleyan's 14 varsity women's athletic teams.

Flaherty served as the team captain in cross country, indoor track and outdoor track this year.

A two-time letterwinner in soccer in 1997 and 1998, Flaherty converted to cross country in the fall of 1999 and proved to be a top performer. She finished among the team's top five in every race, usually the second or third Cardinal runner to hit the tape.

Flaherty paced the team to the finish line three times during the 2000 season, including a strong 15th-place finish out of 119 competitors at the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC) meet. She was also named a NESCAC acareceived NESCAC academic all-star honors during the indoor season as well.

During the outdoor season, Flaherty anchored the 4x800-meter relay to a team record with a time 9:27.68, good enough for fourth place at the New England Championships. Her top individual performances included a fifth-place showing in the 1,500 meters at the ECAC Division III meet and sixth-place finishes in both the 800 meters and 1,500 meters at the NESCAC Championships.

Daughter of Ruth and Brian Flaherty of Granger Street, Quincy, Flaherty is a 1997 graduate of Quincy High School, where she was a three-time indoor track letterwinner and four-time outdoor track letterwinner, while qualifying for the state meet in the mile. She was also a four-time letterwinner and team captain in soccer.

At Wesleyan, Flaherty received her degree in both economics and government, served as a tour guide and pre-frosh host for Cardinal Key, and was chairperson of the economics majors committee.

demic all-star in 2000.

Lettering in both indoor and outdoor track three times, Flaherty competed in events ranging from 400 meters to 3,000 meters over the course of her career. The highlight came this past winter when she finished 12th nationally in the 1,500 meters at the NCAA Division III Indoor Championships. She also set a team record for the mile indoors, running a 5:07.76.

Flaherty ran the anchor leg of the 4x800-meter relay that placed second at the ECAC Division III indoor meet, and last year she was part the 4x800-meter relay that set an indoor team record with a time of 9:37.63. She

McNamee Kicks Off Councillor Campaign

Brian McNamee, candidate for councillor-at-large, officially kicked off his candidacy recently before a crowd of supporters at Pat Flanagan's.

In his remarks, McNamee was critical of the current council as well as the administration for what he referred to as "repeated poor judgment on critical financial matters affecting the city."

McNamee cited what he said were promises made to the voters of Quincy and what he said they eventually got.

"They say, let's return to our ship building heritage. We get lost aid to the tune of $7,800,000 for Quincy Point and the enrichment of a foreign citizen. They say to our seniors, come to Squantum Gardens and we'll provide you with affordable living. Our seniors get a 10 percent rent increase and new increases every year until HUD says they're paying enough.

"They say let's build a Little Fenway Park. We get land violations and luxury apartments without affordable housing. They say, let's celebrate our rich American Heritage and moor the Amistad next to the Southern Tide Mill. We get a parking lot full of cars made in Germany, a CVS, and yet another traffic light."

McNamee urged a re-ordering of the city's financial priorities and pledged, "If you vote for me on election day, I will represent your interests, not special interests -- I will be your faithful servant."

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

• Allowed the transfer of Johnson's Filling Station to Prime Energy, 700 Hancock St., a regular gas station. Steve Spano is district manager and Masoud Buisir, manager. No auto repair will be done on the premises.

• Placed on hold a request from Peter Palmer, doing business as Petar's Automotive, 330 Quincy Ave., for a five car Motor II used car license. Police Chief William Falco said he wants to look into the situation. Chairman Joseph Shea, Falco and building inspector Walter White will revisit the site.

• Granted a one-day beer and wine license to the South Quincy Italian Festival Committee, (The South Quincy Bocce Club, the 92 Club and D&D Deli) for the annual festival at Malnati's Block, Saturday, Sept. 8 (rain date Sept. 9) from 11

Food Fest, Auction To Benefit Father Bill's Place Aug. 1

The 7th annual Food Fest & Auction to benefit Father Bill's Place will be held Wednesday, Aug. 1 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the Summer House, Marina Bay, Quincy.

Scott Wahle, WBZ Channel 4 Morning New anchor, will serve as honorary chairperson. Wahle and his family are residents of the South Shore.

Proceeds from this year's event will help support Father Bill's Place in its mission to assist people who are in need of a home. At Father Bill's Place, the need for emergency beds is at an all-time high, according to shelter director John Yazwinski.

"Most nights the shelter is at overflow capacity, with the largest group being that of young adults ranging in age from their teens to mid-twenties. Your support of this event will assist Father Bill's Place to help these young adults with shelter, substance abuse counseling, mental health services, housing search and housing supportive services. With your help," Yazwinski said, "we can end homelessness one person at a time."

The annual Food Fest & Auction will highlight the culinary creations of restaurants and chefs on the South Shore, and offer rare sports memorabilia and unique gift items for auction.

More than 1,000 people are expected to participate in this event.

Admission is $75. To order tickets or to donate an auction item, call Linda at 617-770-3314.

OBITUARIES

John M. Corcoran, 81 Quincy Attorney, Navy Veteran Of World War II And Korean War

A funeral Mass for John M. Corcoran, 81, of Quincy, a Navy veteran of two wars and a lawyer who practiced in Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. John's Church.

He died June 23 at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston after a period of failing health.

Born in Milton, Mr. Corcoran attended Braintree schools and was a 1938 graduate of Braintree High School. He attended Boston University and New York University, and received his law degree from Northeastern University.

He was a partner in the law firm of Flavin, Corcoran and Farrington before retiring several years ago.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean War. He attended Officer Candidate School at Northwestern University, was commissioned in the Naval Reserve, and saw duty in the Pacific. He was on Saipan, engaged in preparation for a landing on Kyushu, Japan, when the atomic bomb was dropped on Nagasaki. His unit eventually landed in Japan and occupied the Sasebo Naval Base.

Mr. Corcoran was recalled to active duty in 1951 as a lieutenant during the Korean War and was assigned to the Naval Intelligence School in Washington. Upon graduation, he was transferred to the foreign section of the Office of Naval Intelligence at the Pentagon, where he participated in and wrote strategic naval studies on Nice, Trieste, Catania, Saigon, Vladivostok and other strategic ports.

A member of the Norfolk County and Massachusetts bar associations, he was town counsel for Marshfield for 10 years. He also served as a special assistant attorney general for Edward W. Brooke.

He was a longtime member of the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, where he served as general counsel and on the board of governors. He was a former member of the board of directors of Quimol Inc.

Mr. Corcoran was chairman of the South Shore Red Cross, a board member of the Family Counseling and Guidance Centers and was chairman of the Royal Lake board of trustees in Braintree. He was chairman of the Marshfield Republican Town Committee and was a delegate to several Republican state conventions.

He was a life member of the Naval Intelligence Professionals in Washington, and a member of the Northeastern University Law Alumni, the American Legion post in Quincy and the Quincy Hospital Community Leaders Committee.

He is survived by his wife Edith G. (Gardner) Corcoran; a brother, Daniel F. Corcoran Jr. of Hope, Maine; a sister, Laura B.V. Collette of Brockton; and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to charity.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

FREEDOM - what a wonderful, meaningful word! One synonym for the word is privilege . . .

And privileged we are . . . In our American way of life, we have more privileges than any people on earth. We are privileged to worship where and when we wish . . . privileged to work where we choose . . . privileged to educate ourselves to any degree we wish . . . privileged to seek and earn better living conditions . . . privileged to travel where and when we wish . . . privileged to express our thoughts, to agree or disagree with our fellow men . . . privileged to be able to vote the way we wish and for whom we wish . . .

INDEPENDENCE . . . FREEDOM . . . is a day by day privilege that must be earned. It is not a concession we can take for granted. And so, on this 4th of July, would it not be fitting and proper for all of us to bend our knees and fold our hands and give thanks for the privilege of being an AMERICAN?

 Sheets had never suggested McCauley had increased taxes at a higher rate.
 Disputed figures aside, Phelan's three page statement calls into question the city's financial health in general. In it, Phelan criticizes the mayor for bringing the city to the brink of its excess levy capacity and having insufficient funds in the city's so-called "rainy day" accounts. He also charges that some current budget projections show the city facing a $1.2 million deficit in the coming fiscal year.

 "There is no planned shortfall," responded the mayor.
 Phelan also charges that the mayor acted improperly when he recently transferred $525,000 from the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund, a special account created by home rule petition made up of builders' fees which can only be used for sewer work.

 "He improperly withdrew funds earmarked for sewer repair and used in order to give the appearance that there was additional monies available in the stabilization fund," Phelan charged.
 But Sheets said that statement was false. "The Sewer Rehabilitation Fund was used to pay down the debt service on sewer projects, it's that simple," said Sheets, calling the move a perfectly legitimate step recommended by McFarland.

 Reached at his home Tuesday, Councillor McCauley confirmed that the mayor's office had indeed called him to explain the "budget versus taxes" situation. "He's correct on budgets, not taxes," McCauley said.

But McCauley differed with the mayor on his use of the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund, saying the funds cannot be used to pay the debt service.
 "The mayor is incorrect on that one," said McCauley, who has drafted a letter requesting Sheets send down an appropriation and remedy the matter.
